Record Cold (-28) Continues; Slashes Christmas Sales

Record cold—as low as 28 below zero—benumbed the East Tuesday, compounding the misery of the Atlantic seaboard's worst pre-winter blizzard. The digging out task was monumental and anguishingly slow.

No relief from the deep freeze was in sight before Thursday, the Weather Bureau said. Christmas business losses already were in the multimillions.

A bright sun, replacing snow clouds, mocked the area, the warmth of its rays dissipated in the icy air. However, gale winds subsided after piling up snowdrifts to a depth of nine feet.

The death toll from the weekend storm passed the 200 mark in 19 states and the District of Columbia. Auto accidents, shipping mishaps, freezing and weather-induced heart attacks contributed their share to the awesome total.

Communities isolated by the storm got their first deliveries of milk and bread since last week. Other food supplies also were moving in once again, averting any threat of famine.

Low Temperatures

Record low temperatures for the date were listed in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and New England. In northwest Pennsylvania, in Jefferson County, the overnight low was -28 degrees. In Wyoming County near Buffalo, N.Y., it was -14.

Pittsburgh had a record -1, New York City 7.4 above zero and Philadelphia, Newark and Boston 8 above.

The far below freezing temperatures helped preserve mountainous piles of snow against the onslaught of plows, bulldozers and other removal equipment. The only way to get rid of it was to cart it away, since there was no melting.

The combination of snow and cold caused New York's Sanitation Commissioner Paul Scrivane to declare: "This is the toughest snowstorm I've seen in 24 years in the department."

Nevertheless, the giant coastal cities from Washington to Boston began the long pull back to normal. Transit moved again on some semblance of a schedule.

Some schools reopened, but attendance was so far off that many closed again. New York City public and private schools reopened for 1.4 million pupils, but attendance ranged only from 2 to 44 per cent.

On high seas and coastal waters, ships moved with freedom once more from the gale that had buffeted them so cruelly.

Gizenga Assumes Control

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—A leftist lieutenant of deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba proclaimed himself Tuesday ruler of the Congo, raising fears of civil war in this troubled land.

From Lumumba's old stronghold of Stanleyville in the northeast Congo, Antoine Gizenga cabled United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold he had assumed the premiership.

The deputy premier in Lumumba's old regime also announced that the capital of the Congo henceforth would be Stanleyville instead of Leopoldville.

Gizenga's proclamation is expected to have little effect in areas beyond his control, but his allies in the Soviet and African blocs are expected to rally to his cause in the United Nations and may extend diplomatic recognition.

It was Gizenga's rebellious regime in Oriental Province that threatened to round up and behead white hostages unless Lumumba was released from army prison in Thysville east of Leopoldville.

This threat was dropped when the United Nations intervened.

President Joseph Kasavubu and Col. Joseph Mobutu, heading the pro-Western regime in Leopoldville ignored the ultimatum. The U.N. mission in the Congo immediately notified foreign diplomats in Leopoldville of Gizenga's challenge to the Congolese government.

Many fear Gizenga's bid for power could start new warfare between Mobutu's army and the provincial government at Stanleyville supported by the Communists. Mobutu boasts strong support in Equator Province, to the west of Oriental Province. He has reinforced his troops in Equator.

The U.N. mission is not expected to recognize Gizenga's proclamation now.

Western diplomats said they have expected such a move by Gizenga ever since Lumumba was captured trying to reach Stanleyville and was brought back to Leopoldville.

When Lumumba fled from his guarded mansion in Leopoldville two weeks ago, many Western diplomats were convinced the Soviet bloc and some Afro-Asian governments were ready to give him immediate diplomatic recognition when he reached Stanleyville.

Lumumba never accepted his dismissal in September by Kasavubu. The Soviet bloc and some African nations strongly supported his defiance, while the Western powers recognized Mobutu's provisional government of commissioners.

Kennedy Chooses McNamara For Defense Secretary Post

Ford President Must Give Up $400,000 Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy has persuaded Robert S. McNamara, 44, to give up a $400,000-a-year job as president of Ford Motor Co. to serve as secretary of defense.

"I came to the conclusion that personal considerations must be subordinated to the best interests of the United States," McNamara told reporters Tuesday after Kennedy announced the Ford executive had agreed to accept the $25,000-a-year Cabinet post.

Both men were smiling as Kennedy—a year younger than McNamara—made the announcement from the steps of his Georgetown home.

Kennedy said he realized that McNamara—who became president of the giant Ford company only five weeks ago—was making a personal sacrifice. In addition to surrendering a big salary, McNamara said he will divest himself of big holdings of Ford stock.

The president-elect chose the occasion to give a strong sendoff to his secretary-designate, whom he said he met for the first time last Thursday.

Kennedy pledged effective leadership for the nation's all-important military system which he said will be second to none and "so strong it can defend the peace."

Is Republican

McNamara—who described himself as a registered Republican "but I vote as a political independent"—was the fifth of 10 Cabinet appointments to be made so far.

Another may be announced Wednesday, it was indicated after a day which saw high-ranking visitors from organized labor, agriculture and other fields shuttle in and out of the Kennedy home.

In picking a motor company leader to run the immense Defense Department, with its $40 billion budget, Kennedy followed the lead of President Eisenhower. The first secretary of defense in the Eisenhower administration was Charles E. Wilson, then president of General Motors Corp.

Like GM, Ford does a big contract business with the military.

McNamara made it clear he is divesting himself of 24,250 shares of Ford stock and an option on 30,000 more. In addition, he said he is disposing of 100 shares of Scott Paper Co. stock and stepping out as a director of the paper firm.

Cost Heavily

Presumably, these stock sales will cost him heavily in taxes. In getting rid of these holdings, McNamara will be sidestepping difficulties Wilson met after Eisenhower nominated him top man in the Pentagon. The Senate, which considered the nomination, demanded that Wilson divest himself of all stockholdings which might set up a conflict of interest, and Wilson complied.

Asked how long he plans to stay at the helm of the Defense Department, McNamara replied: "I will stay on as secretary of defense as long as my work is satisfactory to the administration."

Kennedy chipped in with a comment that all who accepted appointments should be willing to stay a long time.

It was disclosed he went to the Pentagon last Thursday and talked for some time with Thomas S. Gates, now holding the defense secretary's berth. Gates had been mentioned in speculation about who would get the Pentagon post.

Ahead of the announcement of McNamara's selection, Kennedy conferred with AFL-CIO President George Meany, Chairman Harold Cooley, D-N.C., of the House Agriculture Committee and others of influence.

Meany stalked away from the house, refusing to tell newsmen what went on, but it was assumed the still-to-be-filled post of secretary of labor figured in the discussions.

Possibility

A leading possibility for that job is Arthur Goldberg, the giant labor federation's general counsel.

Cooley was more talkative than Meany, saying he was definitely not a candidate for the agriculture secretary spot in the Cabinet. Cooley, who will have much to say about the fate of any Kennedy administration farm legislation, said Rep. W. R. Poage of Texas was the man he would like to see head the Agriculture Department.

Another caller was Ralph Bradley, president of the Illinois Farmers Union. He dodged saying whether he might like the farm post, but asserted he feels Kennedy is "deeply committed" to pick a secretary of agriculture from the Midwest.

The Cabinet so far, including McNamara:

On Launching Pad

U.S. Moon Rocket Poised For Takeoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A giant moon rocket stands poised on its pad, ready for another attempt Wednesday to launch the first U. S. lunar satellite.

Scientists made final preparations Tuesday to fire the towering Atlas-Able rocket on the exacting mission of propelling a 388-pound space craft aloft and guiding it into orbit about the moon, some 240,000 miles away.

The space craft, named Pioneer VI, is packed with electronic instruments designed to make the most extensive study ever attempted of lunar environment. They will collect and transmit information on radiation, magnetic fields, micrometeorites and other space properties.

This data is needed before man ventures forth to the moon. If he is not properly protected, deadly radiation would kill him before he got there. And a strong magnetic field could upset a space vehicle's guidance system and send it off course.

Favorable Time

The most favorable time for the launching is a five-day period starting now. The chance of success is greater in this period because the paths of the earth and the moon are most closely aligned as they orbit about the sun—and the sun therefore is not in a position to distort the rocket.

If the launching is not accomplished in this time, it will be postponed until the next optimum period, which occurs each 28 days.

The Atlas-Able is designed to push the space craft to the necessary 23,200-mile speed needed to put it on the proper path. Then a "start-and-stop" rocket in the payload will be commanded by ground signal to steer Pioneer VI to the moon.

The "start-and-stop" rocket—with two small thrust chambers jutting from the top and bottom of the satellite—can be fired six times, four to increase speed and two to slow it.

The reverse commands are scheduled to be issued when the space craft reaches a point about 4,400 miles from the moon. This will slow the velocity to about 2,800 miles an hour, enabling the vehicle to be drawn into the moon's gravitational field.

Special Trains Will Carry Deadly, N-Tipped Rockets

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Deadly, nuclear-tipped Minuteman missiles, rolling through the countryside on special trains, could be fired within 50 seconds of an alert, an Air Force general said Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. O. J. Ritland of Los Angeles, commander of the Ballistic Missile Division, told a news conference the solid-fuel Minuteman could be launched from any one of thousands of preselected rail sites.

About 150 of the intercontinental missiles will be carried on trains shuttling over the nation's railroads.

Ritland said each train would consist of about 13 cars 70 feet long. Four or five will contain the missiles and their launching equipment. The rest will house the crew and control mechanism.

Launch Train

The missile commander spoke to 50 U.S. rail executives gathered for their first look at a full-scale mockup of a Minuteman launch train. The Boeing Airplane Co. here is prime contractor for Minuteman, which is expected to be in combat readiness in 1962.

Lt. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of the Air Research and Development Command, also disclosed at the news conference that barges and freighters were being considered for ocean-going Minuteman launch sites, but he said he thought they might be too expensive compared with trains and underground silos.

Schriever said in an address before the news conference that an underground radio system for remote control and firing of the missiles has been developed.

"It will represent a virtually jam-proof communications network which is also highly invulnerable to sabotage," he said.

Eventually 450 of the solid-fuel ICBMs are to be stored in silos across the northern tier of states, 150 are to be carried on trains shuttling almost constantly over the nation's railroads.

Mobility

This mobility, Schriever said, will force the enemy "to the uneconomical position of having to expend many missiles for every one of ours he hopes to destroy."

The Air Force has previously estimated that 10,000 missiles would be needed to immobilize the U.S. Minuteman train fleet by wrecking its tracks.

Schriever said the underground radio-launch system, by eliminating costly networks of cables between silos and control centers, would save about $300,000 per missile.

Schriever said the system consists of a network of antennae buried a few feet underground adjacent to each control tower.

Schriever said the Air Force had been developing the system over the past two years.

First test launch of the Minuteman is expected in the next few weeks from a surface pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla. Launchings from railroad cars and silos are due later next year at the Cape and Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

Warm Praises For Newsboys

COMNG under the category of "man bites dog" news was a telephone call coming into The Daily Record office last night.

"I certainly appreciate the care they are taking with the paper these bad days. I can appreciate must get early in the morning but he makes the effort to come all the way up on the porch and put the paper in the letter slot so that it does not get wet or blown away.

"I think he should be complimented."

And so does The Daily Record which also compliments Mrs. Marion Curtis of 208 Wallace St., Stroudsburg, for her thoughtfulness in acknowledging thoughtfulness in others.

Charges U.S. Aids French In Algeria

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union charged the United States Tuesday with sending U2 spy planes over rebel-held areas of Algeria to help the French. The United States labeled the accusation a lie.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin made the charge in the U. N. General Assembly's Political Committee, where he threw Moscow's unqualified support behind an Asian-African resolution calling for a U. N. referendum on self-determination in Algeria.

The Soviet position was set forth as Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold came under mounting pressure from the 46-nation Asian-African group to speak out on the latest violence in France's North African territory.

Francis W. Carpenter, spokesman for the U. S. delegation, issued this statement: "The Soviet charge that U. S. U2 planes are being used to carry out reconnaissance in Algeria is a complete fabrication. We reject it categorically."

The United States has not yet spoken in the committee debate. But the U. S. State Department has officially deplored the latest outbreaks, calling them a setback to President Charles de Gaulle's efforts to achieve a peaceful settlement in Algeria.

Taking Part

Zorin told the committee that U. S. advisors and instructors from NATO bases in North Africa were actively taking part in helping the French bomb Algerian rebel troops.

He said the U2 aircraft based in North Africa were conducting aerial photography of rebel-held territory in order to help the French forces. He asserted De Gaulle had the support of the "new fangled holy alliance of NATO" in waging a campaign of slaughter against the Algerian people.

Zorin denounced De Gaulle's avowed aims for an "Algerian Algeria" as nothing more than a come-on designed to deceive world opinion. He said De Gaulle is actually demanding the unconditional surrender of the Algerian provisional government to which the Soviets have extended de facto recognition.

Youth Saves Brothers In Heroic Dash

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP)—An 11-year-old boy dashed twice through the flames and carried his two baby brothers to safety from second-floor bedrooms of their burning home here Monday night.

Fire Chief Bob Prahl said the boy, Jerry Davis, ran through flames to reach the babies, and dropped into the arms of his mother, waiting at the bottom of a stairway.

The youth suffered severe burns on his hands, face and ears, but was reported in satisfactory condition.

Prahl gave this account of the rescues:

Jerry walked out the front door of his home and saw flames spewing from an upstairs bedroom window. He shouted to his mother, Mrs. Loren Davis, who herded four other children outside. Then young Davis ran upstairs.

There was a wall of flame at a bedroom door but Davis darted through it and found his brother, Mark, 2, huddled in a corner. He carried the boy to the stairway, dropped him to his mother, then followed them outside. Mrs. Davis counted noses and found that Neil, 4, was missing.

They got back into the house. Mrs. Davis boosted Jerry up to a second-floor bannister, and he went into another bedroom, and found Neil in a corner, surrounded by fire. He dropped Neil to his mother and then jumped down the stairway. All got out safely. Neil and Mark suffered only minor burns.

Prahl said the father, a construction worker, was not at home.

Louisiana Integration Issue Boils

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A cold silence—devoid of jeers, taunts or even icy stares—Tuesday enveloped the William Frantz School where nine children, one of them a Negro girl, attended classes.

But contrasted to the 34-degree temperatures in New Orleans, the situation boiled in Baton Rouge where the state legislature fired a new shot in the integration battle.

In the House of Representatives, leaders for Gov. Jimmie H. Davis shoved a bill through to replace the New Orleans School Board. This was the legislature's fourth move to oust the board, though the federal courts have ordered the legislature not to interfere.

Other bills up for consideration, all aimed at preserving segregation in the schools, are directed at the school board and curbing its functions.

Newsmen hustling to Frantz Tuesday morning to cover the arrival of the children under federal marshals' escort found no demonstrators for the first time since the school was integrated Nov. 14.

At McDonogh No. 19, located 20 blocks from Frantz, a chilled handful saw three Negro girls arrive. No white pupils have attended McDonogh since it was integrated.

The State Senate met late Tuesday to consider House-approved action. The bills must be readied for final passage Thursday, when the current 30-day term of the legislature ends. A new session starts Saturday.

A House committee unanimously approved a resolution denouncing a Louisiana State University professor who criticized the legislature's segregation fight as "a national scandal."

The committee huddled in secret session with LSU President Troy H. Middleton, hero of the Battle of the Bulge in World War II.

The resolution calls for an investigation by the joint legislative committee on un-American activities.

Prof. Waldo F. McNeir's letter to State Sen. Wendell Harris described the acts of the legislature trying to block New Orleans school integration "as a disgrace and a national scandal."

The LSU board, said one legislator, should be made to explain "why it has not taken action in rooting out such individuals."

Herter Awarded Belgium Order

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — King Baudouin gave Secretary of State Christian A. Herter Belgium's highest award—the Grand Cordon of the Order of Leopold—Tuesday.

The presentation of an award rarely given a foreigner smoothed over somewhat the rather chilly reception Herter got from the Belgian government on his arrival by plane earlier.

Herter, who came to Brussels as Presiden tEisenhower's personal representative at King Baudouin's wedding Thursday, was given a proper but cool receptio nat the airport. He was greeted only by a second echelon Foreign Ministry official.

Observers believed the lack of warmth may have been due ot some residual resentment over the cordial welcome Herter gave former Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba in Washington last summer. This was at a time when passions in Belgium were high because of atrocities commited by Congolese against Belgians.

Five Runaways Return To Warmth Of Orphanage

CLAYTON, N. C. (AP) — Five youngsters returned Tuesday to warm beds in the orphanage they ran away from 24 hours before—apparently little the worse for a night they spent huddled in the woods in bitter cold weather.

Several of the nearly 1,500 volunteers who had searched for the children through most of the night figured the children were lucky to be alive.

"I don't see why they didn't freeze to death," said Kenneth Johnson, a carpenter, who found the children—three girls and two boys — huddled together for warmth in the 14-degree weather.

One girl, Shirley Pearson, 13, said they ran away from the Knights of Pythias home because they had been mistreated. She said a matron had whipped her brother, Jimmie, 11, and hit him over the head.

Later, after the children had returned to the home, Shirley said she had not been mistreated.

She said she had no thought of leaving until Tula Faye Tester, 13, another of the runaways, came to the house about a week ago.

"She started talking about it," said Shirley, "and I got it in my head."

"I got homesick," said Tula Faye. "I said I wanted to go home, and Shirley said she wanted to go home, too."

Jimmie Pearson told reporters the spanking he received at Thanksgiving had nothing to do with his leaving. He said he had virtually forgotten about it.

"The girls wanted me to go with them," he said. "I didn't want to leave."

The other two runaways were Dennis Walker, 8, and Nina Walker, 6, half-brother and sister of the Tester girl.

Instead of returning from school in Clayton on a school bus as usual, the children walked off and wandered into a thickly wooded area about 2½ miles east of Clayton, a community 25 miles east of Raleigh.

Good Morning!

DeGaulle Still Stands On Algeria Home Rule Policy

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle came home Tuesday night from his Algerian tour and announced he is standing by his home rule policy for the big North African territory, despite rioting there that left 123 dead.

He narrowly missed a new outbreak of rioting by both Algerian Nationalists and Frenchmen in Bone, his takeoff point from Algeria. French troops fired on Frenchmen there for the first time in five days of violence. Seven Algerians and two Frenchmen were killed.

"We have only one policy and it is necessary to follow it. It is the good one," De Gaulle told Cabinet members and deputies greeting him at the airport.

At the same time he dispatched a letter to Louis Joxe, Algerian affairs minister, saying cooperation between the European and Moslem communities is essential.

"All that I have just seen and heard in the course of my inspection has convinced me of this more firmly than ever," De Gaulle wrote. "To assure this cooperation, and to oppose all whose action tends to prevent it—this is the policy of France."

Cabinet Review

He called for a full-scale Cabinet review amid reports he plans to fire any ministers not fully behind his policies.

Behind him in Algeria, De Gaulle had left word for tough treatment of the leaders in the disorders that began with anti-De Gaulle riots by the Europeans and ended in pro-Nationalist riots by the Moslems. Although he never mentioned the riots while in Algeria, they are believed to have roused him to cold anger.

As De Gaulle flew across the Mediterranean, police rounded up 216 suspected troublemakers in Algiers. European settlers' leaders went underground in their determined campaign to keep Algeria part of France.

De Gaulle's parting plea to Algeria had been one for understanding between Moslems and Europeans.

"Without this I see only chaos," he told the soldiers who saw him off at the Bone airfield. Algeria's one million Europeans are outnumbered 10-1 by the Moslems, and they feel independence would end their privileged status in Algeria.

Battle Continues

Just a few miles away in Bone, Foreign Legionnaires had just put down a European student demonstration, killing two and injuring 40 with submachine gun fire. In another part of the city, police fired on a Moslem mob, killing seven and wounding 12.

Most of the bloodshed took place in Algiers, where 96 were killed; in Oran, with 18 dead, and in Bone, with nine dead. Official figures for these cities also added up to 510 wounded, although many more wounded went unreported.

De Gaulle and the Cabinet will meet Thursday morning to review the Algerian situation. He is expected to continue his plans for a Jan. 8 referendum on his Algerian policies.

The referendum will ask voters in France and Algeria to approve final self-determination and the immediate installation of autonomous Algerian institutions. They are expected to vote yes by a comfortable majority.

Rusk Visits Future Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Rusk, top-ranking man in President-elect John F. Kennedy's Cabinet, visited his future office at the State Department Tuesday to begin boning up on the problems he will face.

He met for 40 minutes with veteran diplomat Loy Henderson, deputy undersecretary who is acting as head of the department in the absence of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, and Undersecretary Douglas Dillon.

John Charles Thomas, 68, Famed Opera Star, Dies

APPLE VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—Famed baritone John Charles Thomas, star of opera, concerts and radio during his 45-year career, died Tuesday of cancer at his home. He was 68.

He had been ill for months and in a coma for days. He underwent surgery, described at the time as minor, at the UCLA Medical Center March 18, 1959. Death was attributed to intestinal cancer.

Thomas, one of the most popular singers of his day, was known for the deep, rich quality of his voice. It matched his manly appearance—broad shoulders, huge chest. On his many concert tours he held audiences rapt for two hours or more, working through a repertoire ranging from operatic arias to Negro spirituals.

Part of his charm was his dramatics. His experience on the stage gave him background for convincing enactment of the stories he sang.

Thomas and his wife, Dorothy, moved to this desert community northeast of Los Angeles in 1954. For a time he managed a radio station here.

In 1957 they built a fashionable, ranch-type home overlooking the Apple Valley Golf Course.

Thomas made his farewell concert tour, although it was not billed as such, when he appeared in about 50 cities in 1952-53. For several years prior to that he had been devoting himself to teaching in Los Angeles.

He made his first professional appearance with a Henry W. Savage road company in London, Ont., in late 1912. He soon became a matinee idol in Broadway musicals with many women admirers who exclaimed over his blond hair, fine features and athletic build.

But Thomas complained that singing the same music day after day was distasteful and said that he only stayed in musicals to get enough money to do concerts.

Wasn't Aware Of Carbo Role Says Liston

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heavyweight challenger Charles (Sonny) Liston swore Tuesday he does not know that any underworld characters take a slice of his ring earnings. If he finds they do, he said, he'd get rid of them.

Liston, who carries a long police record in St. Louis as well as a dazzling 30-1 boxing record, told Senate investigators he was unaware that either Frank (Blinky) Palermo of Philadelphia or John J. Vitale of St. Louis acted as his undercover manager.

The Senate unit hopes to drive hoodlums from the prize fight business. It has received testimony that mobster Frank Carbo, racket figure Palermo and ex-convict Vitale split with two others the manager's end of Liston's purses.

Not until Tuesday, testified the top-ranked contender for Floyd Patterson's crown, had he heard that a former manager still gets a cut of his receipts. Subcommittee investigator Robert Turely said then that Frank Mitchell, who managed Liston until 1958, acknowledged privately in October that he received about 25 per cent. Thomas Williams, another staff member, described it as going "to the St. Louis group."

Mitchell declined to answer questions when he was called before the subcommittee last week, pleading the Fifth Amendment's guarantee against possible self incrimination.

Palermo, the pint-sized Philadelphian whose name has threaded the prize fight hearings, preceded Liston as a witness but refused to yield any information. He also invoked the Fifth Amendment.

Palermo, among others, faces trial in Los Angeles next February on charges of attempting to muscle in on the earnings of former welterweight Don Jordan.

Carbo is to be brought to Washington from his New York prison cell Wednesday for questioning by the committee. He is serving two years for undercover matchmaking and managing.

Agricultural Extension Program

THE AGRICULTURAL Extension Service has outlined a new program of activity for Monroe County, Arthur E. Ifft, county agent announced yesterday.

The new project will start early in 1961 (about Feb. 15 to March 15) with each community having an opportunity to participate.

This activity will be part of a statewide effort entitled: "Pennsylvania Growth" and will consist of a series of four discussion meetings dealing with the social and economic problems facing this county as well as other parts of state. The plans call for small groups of interested persons (5 to 10) to meet in homes for a series of 4 weekly discussions. Leaflets called "Fact Guides," containing information and discussion questions will be provided for each participant. These materials are now being prepared by the specialists of the Cooperative Extension Service at the Pennsylvania State University.

Ifft says that the first "Fact Guides" leaflet to be used at the first meeting will deal with the areas showing what is happening to our economy and why we must plan for the future if we are to have satisfactory economic growth. The second discussion meeting will stress the importance of knowing the facts about our communities and emphasize the importance of educational and special training for tomorrow's employed.

Natural, Human

The third discussion period will deal with the natural and human resources and their importance to county development. The final discussion will deal with the topic "How Do We Go To Grow?" This will have discussions for organizing for community action and will help to summarize the series of meetings.

Any interested individual in an organization or a group not in an organization may secure the necessary materials by contacting the Home Economics Supervisor Miss Margaret MacLaren or County Agent A. E. Ifft whose offices are located on the second floor of the Post Office Building, Stroudsburg.

Sub-Freezing Temperatures Wraps State Into Blanket

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SUB-FREEZING temperatures wrapped Pennsylvania in an icy blanket Tuesday as the state, still buffeted by strong winds, dug out slowly from the paralyzing effects of a devastating pre-Christmas storm.

Industries and stores were expected to be back to normal operation Wednesday. Some schools, too, will reopen. Travel difficulties remained, however.

Highway crews plowed and cindered main arteries and rural roads in an effort to untie the state's gigantic traffic knot. Progress was slow but steady. Most main roads were passable.

Biggest obstacles were stalled autos and trucks that blocked the road-clearing efforts of man and machine. And the bitter, freezing temperatures scarcely made the efforts easier.

At least 20 deaths were attributed to the storm and cold weather.

There was one brigh spot: a weather bureau forecast of continued clear skies—with no sign of snow—for the rest of the week, and an abatement of the chilling winds that continued Tuesday to mock the shovels and plows as they rebuilt the man-sized drifts.

Many kids who frolicked for two days in the snow go back to their classes Wednesday. But in Philadelphia, and some of its suburbs, the unexpected but nevertheless enjoyable holiday will continue for another day.

Retail Stores

Retail stores, noticeably absent of Yuletide shoppers as the state recovered from the crippling effects of Sunday and Monday's storm, hoped to make recovery.

The Chamber of Commerce of Greater Philadelphia—it was this area that was hardest hit by the nearly 15-inch snowfall—estimated that Monday's business loss in center city alone was over $2 million.

To recoup some of the business Philadelphia's major downtown department stores and speciality shops decided to remain open Saturday night.

State police, citing the below-freezing temperatures—the mercury dipped to 28 below zero at Siegel in northwestern Pennsylvania's Jefferson County—urged motorists to drive only if necessary. And, if it was, to make sure the vehicles were equipped with chains or snow tires.

Western sections of the state, less severely affected by the heavy snow, reported the lowest temperatures. Nearly everywhere in the west the mercury went below zero.

Philadelphia reported a low of 8, the coldest Dec. 13 since 1895 when it was 13.

The state's largest city still had problems getting its vast public transit system back into full operation. Blocked streets prevented normal runs of trolleys and buses. Only the subway-elevated system ran without interruption all through the storm.

Philadelphia's Street Commissioner, David M. Smallwood, added an unhappy post-storm comment in explaining why his department was slow in plowing operations. Smallwood said streets went unplowed for hours because officials hoped to save $30,000.

Smallwood explained that the Weather Bureau predicted a fall of only four inches, and never publicly revised that forecast. Thus Smallwood delayed for almost 12 hours conversion of trash trucks into emergency plows.

Railroads were operating normally. In the early hours of the storm the railroads were running

But airlines and interstate buses had halted service. These were back to normal with roads and airports cleared.

More stories about the weather came to light as the storm's remains were shoved unceremoniously to the side of the road.

Kane, the McKean County community often called "The Icebox of Pennsylvania," lost its unofficial title. It reported a low of 17 below. It was two degrees colder in Polk, and 11 chillier in Siegel.

Officials at Moyamensing Prison said its van bringing prisoners got stalled in the snow.

Taylor Confers With GOP Leaders On High Position

By HERB LINNEN

HARRISBURG (AP) — Sen. M. Harvey Taylor conferred for several hours with Senate Republican leaders Tuesday amid speculation that his supporters would try to win him the post of floor leader.

But Taylor, emerging from the talks, said he "wouldn't even consider" taking the post in the 1961 legislative session. He added he was supporting the re-election of Sen. James S. Berger, Potter, who was floor leader in the 1959 and 1960 sessions.

Taylor, so speculation went, would be named floor leader, by title, and then would designate a colleague to actually enunciate GOP policy on the floor.

Republicans will pick Senate leaders here next Monday. An organization session called for Monday night was postponed by the bad weather which kept 11 of the 25 GOP lawmakers out of town.

Power Play

It was after the postponement that speculation about a power play to put the 84-year-old Harrisburger into the floor leadership popped up in Senate GOP circles.

Berger conferred with Taylor but left the meeting before other legislative leaders departed. Asked about the report concerning Taylor and whether the topic came up at their meeting, Berger said:

"I don't know anything about it and we didn't discuss anything of the kind."

Taylor said the conference dealt with policy matters that would come up at next Monday's meeting. He didn't elaborate.

Others present for the discussion were Sens. Robert Fleming, Allegheny, caucus chairman; Edward J. Kessler, Lancaster, caucus secretary, Henry J. Propert, Montgomery, and George B. Stevenson, Clinton.

Kessler also said that the matters discussed concerned policy and would be ironed out at Monday's session.

Asked about Taylor's possible role, he replied:

"I personally feel Senator Taylor should get some recognition (in the next session)."

He said he supported the idea of making Taylor chairman of a newly created Senate GOP Policy Committee. He envisioned the job as giving Taylor authority to take over some of the powers now held by the floor leader.

However, Kessler denied knowing of any move to unseat Berger. Nor would he elaborate on what powers might be given to Taylor in such a situation.

Speculation

There was speculation, however, that Taylor was particularly interested in retaining his seat on the General State Authority Board. He is due to lose it when Democrats take over organizational control of the Senate and oust him as president pro tempore after 15 years.

Berger, as floor leader, would sit on the board but he is empowered to appoint someone else to represent him. That is what happened in the House where Rep. Albert W. Johnson, GOP floor leader, designated Rep. W. Stuart Helm, policy committee chairman, to represent him on the board in the last two legislative sessions.

Berger said Taylor hadn't discussed this possibility with him either.

Police Chief Wants Inquest

READING, Pa. (AP)—Russell W. Wren, police chief of nearby Oley Township, said Tuesday he wants a coroner's jury to conduct an inquest into the death of Milan K. Spatz.

Wren said it's hard to believe that Spatz committed suicide Dec. 3 in the woods behind his home in Manatwaney, Berks County.

The state crime laboratory, after an investigation, listed the death as suicide.

Spatz, 49, was clutching his shotgun when found. Five blasts from the gun entered his body and Wren said that the gun has to be reloaded after each shot.

"It is possible that he might have committed suicide," said Wren, "because none of the shots hit any vital spots that would have meant instant death."

NEWFOUNDLAND — The Christmas season officially opened in this area Tuesday night with the lighting of the community Christmas tree by the Greene-Dreher Woman's Club.

The program included a collection for the club's project, "Meals For Millions," and an entertainment by the Brownies of Troop Two, which is sponsored by the club.

Mrs. Olga Manhart presided at the session as president of the unit.

Court Asked For Reversal

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Justice Department said Tuesday it has asked the State Superior Court to reverse four Luzerne County court opinions on driver's license suspensions for out-of-state violations.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Elmer Bolla said the cases questioned the states right to suspend the license of a driver after he had been suspended for a violation in another state.

Bolla cited three cases where the Superior Court had upheld the right to suspend on out-of-state violation where the other state did not order a suspension.

He said there was no difference between these cases and those where the other state does suspend and no question of double penalty.

"That has nothing to do with it," the state attorney said.

He pointed out that the state motor vehicle code gives the secretary of revenue the power to suspend a driver's license, after a hearing, upon receipt of notice of an out-of-state conviction which would be subject to suspension in Pennsylvania.

Bolla said it did not matter if the person had received numerous suspensions in the other state.

Four-Year-Old Asphyxiated

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A four-year-old was asphyxiated Monday after swallowing a toy balloon. Emergency surgery, and the massaging of her stopped heart, failed to save her.

The unusual accident to Jane Marie Frustaci of suburban Belmont Hills occurred in the living room of her home. She was rushed to Lankenau Hospital. The child responded briefly to the heart massage but succumbed several hours later.

Depot Unit Rescues 2 Hunters

SGT. ROBERT Holloway of the Tobyhanna Signal Corps Depot rescue squad yesterday morning located two Scranton-area hunters missing overnight with temperatures near zero.

Kenneth Wagner, 31, South Scranton, and Chester Cessarini, 21, Dunmore, were found walking in the woods about three-fourths of a mile off Route 611 west of Swiftwater.

They told their rescuers that they had walked through the woods all night. They were warmly clad and after inspection by a hospital corpsman who accompanied the rescue squad, the pair left for their homes.

Long Search

State Police of the Mt. Pocono barracks and Coolbaugh Township Volunteer Fire Co. members in addition to the rescue squad had searched throughout the night for them.

Members of the squad, under command of First Lt. James Eitzpatrick Jr., had worked in relays all night as the hunt continued. The group was divided into three units, with two resting while the third searched.

Irked At U. S. Ecuador Head Praises Khru

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, angered by the U. S. position in an old border dispute between Peru and Ecuador, has begun praising Soviet Premier Khrushchev as a great statesman and world leader. His minister of government proposed establishment of relations with Moscow.

Addressing a Guayaquil rally of 50,000 Monday night, Velasco Ibarra hailed Khrushchev's peaceful coexistence line. Following the rally demonstrators hurled rocks through windows at the U. S. consulate building in Guayaquil.

Earlier, a shouting mob destroyed the U. S. consul's private auto in Guayaquil.

Velasco Ibarra mixed in his Khrushchev compliments with declarations he will take Ecuador's dispute with Peru to the United Nations.

Ecuador's current wave of anger—most of it directed at the United States—was touched off by a foreign ation decision last week upholding a 1942 treaty that set the boundary between Peru and Ecuador in a disputed area of the headwaters of the Amazon.

Ecuador denounced the treaty as invalid and said the four guarantors supporting it—the United States, Argentina, Brazil and Chile—"did not heed the voice of justice."

Minister of Government Arujo Hidalgo told demonstrators in Quito "the United States must kill us to impose on us the resolution of the guarantors."

Hidalgo declared, "My personal opinion about relations with Russia is that we must establish these relations soon, for this is the only recourse we have left."

Hearings Scheduled

HARRISBURG (AP)—Hearings on Bell Telephone Co. rates in Pennsylvania will be held in Philadelphia next month, the Public Utility Commission announced Tuesday.

The company's rates have been under investigation by the PUC for several months.

Commissioner P. Stephen Stahlnecker, Philadelphia, will preside at the hearings Jan. 17-18, in the State Office Building.

With him will be Commission examiner Jay Eiseman, also of Philadelphia.

The commission ordered the inquiry after studies of Bell's financial data indicated what the commission termed an excessive return.

Bell was asked to submit proposals to reduce its rates voluntarily for its 2,577,000 customers. However, the utility contended its current earnings were not producing an excessive return on the company's investment.

The City of Pittsburgh and officials of two unions of Bell Telephone workers have asked to intervene in the case.

Court Declares Heller Not Guilty

A MONROE County Court jury debated only 45 minutes yesterday afternoon before returning a verdict of not guilty in the case of Henry Heller, 44, of 39 Stofflet St., Stroudsburg, charged with aggravated assault and battery.

Heller was arrested July 9 and charged with inflicting a knife wound on the left forearm of Peter Gardner, 27, of 163 Elizabeth St. East Stroudsburg, during an argument at Heller's home.

The jury, returning its verdict before Judge Fred W. Davis, had almost as much trouble reaching a decision as to who should pay the costs as it had with the original not guilty verdict.

Prior to the jury's deliberation, Judge Davis told them they were to do nothing about costs if they brought in a guilty verdict.

Faced Costs

If the verdict were not guilty, Judge Davis told them, they could place all the costs on the defendant; all on the prosecutor—in this case Patrolman Russell Decker of the Stroudsburg police; divide the costs between defendant and prosecutor in any percentage they chose, or place all the costs on the county.

When it was apparent they had misunderstood his instructions, Judge Davis repeated them and sent the jury out again. Approximately 15 minutes later, they returned and placed the costs on Heller.

Dist. Atty. James R. Marsh represented the Commonwealth, while John J. Pentz Jr., was the attorney for Heller.

Judge Davis sent Heller back to Monroe County Jail until the costs are paid.

Earlier, another jury convicted Richard Jerome Brands, 28, of 728 Main St., Stroudsburg, on a charge of larceny of a motor vehicle. Judge Davis deferred sentencing.

Brands was accused of taking a car owned by Frank Bachman, Stroudsburg RD 1, from the parking lot at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Home last October.

Anthony Caykosky, 50, Greentown, charged with drunken driving, pleaded guilty and was fined $300 and costs by Judge Davis.

In Contempt

Judge Davis Monday found two area men in contempt of court for not complying with support orders.

George Ladlee Jr., Bushkill, brought in on a bench warrant for an arrearage in support payments for his five-year-old child, told the court he was without work. He was ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings and the warrant was suspended for two weeks or until he gets work.

Harold E. Shock, East Stroudsburg, in arrears $630 for support of his wife, was told to pay the costs, make up the arrearage and start regular payments.

Another support action involving Boyd Williams, East Stroudsburg, was taken under advisement. He had previously been ordered to pay $30 a week for support of his wife and three children and has a $450 arrearage.

VFW Elects New Aide

GEORGE Straka of 939 Chipperfield Dr., Stroudsburg, a former commander of Pennsylvania's 20th District, was named last night as quartermaster of Thomas P. Lamber Post 2540, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Straka will fill the unexpired term of the late Frank J. Weller, who died recently. Weller's term expires in April.

The post also endorsed three of its members for the post of Veterans' Affairs officer for Monroe County, a position Weller held. The post went on record as saying any of the three—Robert Brinn, Stroudsburg; Thomas J. Carmella, East Stroudsburg, and Howard Doll, Canadensis—is capable of handling the job.

To Continue

The post also voted to continue its annual Christmas welfare program for needy veterans and their families in cooperation with the Salvation Army.

Victor Morman, membership chairman, reported 495 members have paid 1961 dues, about 20 behind the same date for last year.

A tribute was paid to Weller who, in addition to being post quartermaster at the time of his death, was a former commander of the post and of the 20th District.

Official Bay State Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Massachusetts came up with its official presidential vote Tuesday, leaving only Illinois and Rhode Island to complete the national count.

Counting official results from 48 states and unofficial totals from the two missing states, Sen. John F. Kennedy's national popular vote plurality over Vice President Richard M. Nixon was down to 113,554 in a total vote of 68,819,348.

The tabulation:

Kennedy	34,220,496
Nixon	34,106,942
Others	491,910

Nixon picked up 1,256 votes in the official Massachusetts count compared with previous unofficial totals. Kennedy, in his home state, polled 1,487,174 to Nixon's 976,750 for a plurality of 510,424.

'Y' Approves Membership Drive Plans

MONROE County YMCA's board of directors last night approved plans for the annual membership campaign during the last two weeks of January and the first week in February.

George Ladlee Jr., Bushkill, brought in on a bench warrant for an arrearage in support payments for his five-year-old child, told the court he was without work. He was ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings and the warrant was suspended for two weeks or until he gets work.

Harold E. Shock, East Stroudsburg, in arrears $630 for support of his wife, was told to pay the costs, make up the arrearage and start regular payments.

Another support action involving Boyd Williams, East Stroudsburg, was taken under advisement. He had previously been ordered to pay $30 a week for support of his wife and three children and has a $450 arrearage.

It also voted, in a separate action, to terminate the contract of Mrs. Inger Miller, program director, effective tomorrow. The move was approved as a means of reducing the operating costs of the association.

Mrs. Miller will receive three weeks of vacation pay which the personnel committee reported was due her under the contract.

Present YMCA staff members and part-time employes will take over the duties previously handled by Mrs. Miller.

Jack Haswell, circulation manager of The Daily Record, was introduced as the membership drive chairman. He said a goal of $8,000 had been set at a meeting with the membership committee headed by Mrs. Alberta Yutz.

The campaign organization will include the chairman, an assistant chairman yet to be named, four division leaders, four team captains for each division and four workers for each team.

In addition, a group headed by Arthur Trogner will assist by selling sustaining memberships in what is known as the Century Club. This is limited to persons who contribute $100 or more to the drive.

Richard Frantz was appointed chairman of YMCA Week, Jan. 22-29, and Gordon Coy as a member of his committee.

John R. Wilson, general secretary, reported an increase in gymnasium, swimming pool and other activities during November, following a lull brought about by unseasonably good weather.

$1,900 Raised

Trogner disclosed that approximately $1,900 was raised by the East Stroudsburg Exchange Club at the Home Fair held in November. The money is being turned over to the general fund of the YMCA. The directors extended a vote of thanks to the Exchange Club and also to the MORA Club members who assisted in setting up the large number of exhibits.

Richard Lee, president of the Mount Pocono Branch, reported a membership of 96 boys and girls in the branch YMCA. Four different groups—two composed of boys and two of girls—meet weekly at the Mount Pocono Fire Hall and engage in a program of supervised activities, Lee said. The branch is under the direction of a 16-member board of managers and is self-sustaining.

Thomas Kistler, president of the county board, appointed Jesse Pierson, Allen Sterner and Joseph Small as members of the nominating committee to select a slate of nine new directors.

One of the vacancies is being created by the resignation of Edward Telling, who is leaving the community to accept a new position in Cortland, N. Y.

Mystery Death In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A Park Avenue elevator operator—an eccentric who disdained his job as well as his own name and liked to pass himself off as "Roland Rolando, animal researcher"—was found dead Tuesday in his zoo-like Manhattan apartment. A giant jungle snake was slithering along the floor.

The cause of his death was as much of a mystery to police as was his off-the-job activities with jungle life.

The left ear of the man, identified by police as Fritz Schmaltz, 57, appeared to have been chewed by some animal.

Patrolman Matthew Stiasty, armed with an ax, had to kill the snake, a 14-foot python, before Schmaltz' body could be removed to a morgue. He apparently had been dead several days.

First Real Christmas Story Revealed Here

THINGS are getting tough all over. The first real-spirited Christmas story that hits the newsrooms has a label attached to it: "Do Not Publish, Please."

The whole story sprang from this claim in the Daily Record's lost and found column:

"Lost — Christmas money. Near 1st Stroudsburg National Bank in yellow envelope. $51. Fri. Eve. Reward. WY 2-4486."

This ad in itself held no credence for a good story, but it was later learned that the money had been found—and returned. Some people have it. Sometimes too much of it. Honesty, that is.

After many hours of tracing down the story, it unfolded that Willard Detrick, of Main St., Stroudsburg, an employe of LeBar's Drug Store found the missing money. When he learned that the story was to be in the newspaper, he was "confused" his mother, Mrs. Margaret Lambert said.

"He (Willard) wants no publicity," she said, "the money has been returned to its proper owner and everyone is happy," she continued. "Can't we just forget the whole thing?" she queried.

It was a good story—honesty, Christmas time, people happy, all this and more. The story all but broke loose on its own account.

Deed Done

"We don't want any big hullaboo," was the way Mrs. Lambert put it. "Why must it be mentioned, the deed has been done and everyone is happy," she continued.

We told her that it isn't only for publicity, but that the story will impress others. It might possibly make some people feel the warmth of honesty, especially during the Yuletide season.

The mother persisted in her request. "Willard is confused," she said, "he asks that the story be kept out of the papers.

It was only after several calls and much persuasion, that the story was finally given the O.K. to write. It is difficult to comprehend the motives, but they were sincere. Only deep understanding, perhaps, can lead to the family's belief in squashing the pending story.

Lost By Teen-ager

The small yellow envelope was lost by Dorothy Kresge, 16, of Stroudsburg RD 2, last Friday evening while Christmas shopping.

The Stroud Union High School junior had worked during the summer in order to save some Christmas money. But she lost the $51 and the Yule season was depressing to the point of despair.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Kresge, decided to run an "ad" in the newspaper. It was also broadcast over the local radio station.

Detrick found the small bank envelope around 10 o'clock Friday night while returning home from work.

Just A Habit

"It's just a habit I have of looking down on the pavement," he said when telling how he spotted the envelope.

Detrick went home and informed his mother of his discovery. They decided to hold the money until it was claimed by someone.

Detrick said it wasn't until late Monday afternoon that he got a chance to read the Daily Record. In it, he looked up the Lost and Found column and noticed the claim submitted by the Kresge family.

Arrangements were made for the Kresges to pick up the money at the drug store.

Said Mrs. Kresge, "it's nice to know honest people are still around."

Whew! Now everyone IS happy.

No Injuries In Accident

NO ONE was injured in a two-car accident at 9:28 p.m. yesterday on N. Fifth St., near Thomas St., in Stroudsburg.

Borough police identified the operators as Arnold Bush, 17, East Stroudsburg RD 2, and Clarence Transue Jr., 18, of 933 Queen St., Stroudsburg.

Slippery conditions of the road contributed to the accident, a sideswiping, police said. Damage was estimated at $375 to Bush's car and $250 to the Transue vehicle.

Mrs. Kellington, 67, Dies

MRS. EMILY B. Kellington, 67, of 510 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, died suddenly last night at her home.

Mrs. Kellington was the daughter of the late Percy and Tessa Croasdale.

Surviving in addition to her husband, Robert A. Kellington at home, are one niece, Mrs. Sarah Stohl, and two nephews, William and Joseph Croasdale.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the Dunkelberger and Westbrock Funeral Home.

Soviet Deceit

While President Eisenhower and his successor, John F. Kennedy, were reaffirming this country's dedication to peace and freedom for all peoples, Communism's leaders were distributing their 1960 blueprint for the world's future.

Included in the 22,000-word manifesto from Moscow are the usual distortions and outright falsehoods by which traditional Marxism changes white into black and wrong to right. New ones have been added to meet changing conditions within and without the Communist camp since the 1957 edition.

Thus, "peaceful coexistence" receives renewed lip service—unless "resistance by reactionary circles" makes more nonpeaceful methods necessary.

In this respect, the reputed differences between Moscow and Peiping are papered over, but the occupied neighbors of both know from experience how little the words mean.

With similar oversight of fact, the manifesto declares communism to be nonexportable—this in the fact of the increasing flow of Sino-Soviet arms and technicians to the scenes of potential revolution.

The arms race is blamed on monopolists who control the capitalist countries, but the existence and use of the largest armies in the world by Russia and Red China are ignored.

With a vigorous twist of truth, all Communist parties are held to be equal and independent — except that Yugoslavia is less equal than most for its transgressions of independence.

And to the hundreds of millions in the underdeveloped nations of Africa, Asia and South America, the manifesto speaks temptingly of abundance once production is in the hands of the workers.

These are the false promises and deceits against which Mr. Kennedy's incoming administration must compete. Unity at home and among the still free people of the world will provide the basis for deeds to outsell the 22,000 words from Moscow.

Election Abuses

Millions of Americans are suddenly awakening to the fact that their elections are open to intolerable abuses, both of inefficiency and dishonesty.

The fact that a month after the election the vote has not been counted in scores of precincts underscores the inefficiency. (We are not talking about any recount; the original count has not been completed.)

The empty ballot-storing boxes, broken seals, and other irregularities turning up in Chicago illustrate the potentials of dishonesty.

It has taken an unusually close national election to jolt Americans enough to stir nationwide demands for reform. Too often in the past abuses have been too easily dismissed as local matters.

It is still true that election laws—and administration—depends primarily on the states. But it has now become starkly plain that election abuses can have national results.

We do not counsel hasty federal legislation. But certainly if slums and schools are of legitimate national concern, elections which affect the choice of national officials are even more manifestly so.

And the national interest so affected should at the very least be expressed in opinion which will support reform movements in the states. We should say also that the effort should look to permanent reform more than to any partisan advantage in the immediate situation.

The most basic improvement in the handling of ballots does, however, depend in large measure on effective party organization at the precinct level. In one-party areas the election machinery is often so much under the control of one side that opposition checking on it to insure fairness becomes highly difficult.

Poll watchers may be lacking. Counting may be in the bosses' control. Even voting machines can be misused. Too often antiquated pen-and-pencil, horse-and-buggy methods foster delays and inaccuracies.

Too often the boxes in which ballots are stored are not properly sealed or are under control of those most interested in altering their contents. Recounts usually only indicate that something is wrong, are unable to say what the correct vote was.

Each party, by better work at the precinct level, can help protect its own—and the public's interest—in an honest ballot.

The public can also help itself by rejecting the cynical "everybody-does-it" attitude. Two wrongs do not make a right. Independent, nonpartisan insistence on blasting out delays and dishonesties wherever they occur is essential—Christian Science Monitor.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Argument Of Growth

The argument of growth is specious unless one considers facts. The growth advocates use the steel industry as an example of the lack of growth because presently this industry works, they say, at about 55 percent of capacity. This is taken to mean that the United States is standing still, or even worse, has gone backwards.

In 1938, the United States had an ingot capacity of 80,000,000 tons; in 1960, the ingot capacity is 148,000,000 tons. This enormous increase is due to the fact that steel capacity was increased to meet war conditions, to supply not only the United States but all its allies, including Soviet Russia.

Subsequent to World War II, the United States not only supplied its own needs, its allies' needs, but also its former foes, and some of the so-called neutral nations. In addition the United States assisted some countries such as Soviet Russia, Brazil and India to establish modern steel plants.

Thus, this country built up competitors for steel, which is not unusual. The British have done the same by the sale of textile machinery to their competitors until the British lost a market that had been exclusively theirs.

What has actually happened to the United States is that it owns a competent standby plant to be used as necessity requires. It is not to be expected that if we help bring competing plants into existence those plants will not sell steel in competition with us.

Nexertheless, in 1938, production amounted to 31,750,000 tons, which was about 39.6 per cent of capacity, whereas in 1960, the American plants are producing 100,000,000 tons of steel which is 65 per cent of capacity. (The 1960 figures are estimates based on 10 months.)

The reason 1938 is taken for comparison is that it was the last non-war year. In 1939, World War II was at first imminent and then occurred. Thus, it was the beginning of an unusual period during which the demands upon the United States were extraordinary and remained so for many years.

In 1938, the steel industry employed 360,000 persons; in 1960, 465,000.

During the campaign, the argument of growth was given an altogether false over-emphasis. The figures which I here provide establish that growth has taken place.

However, a market for 100 percent of production does not exist and cannot, with reason, be expected to exist. What is to become of the stand-by plant and equipment is a social and political problem.

Analyses of other industries will establish that stand-by plants exist in practically all of them that have to do with war. These stand-by plants cannot be employed to monopolize the steel market of the world without damaging other countries to such a degree that we damage ourselves.

There is an old argument that if goods are produced, they will be consumed, that there is no limit to consumption. While this was discussed at great length, pro and con, during the Depression, it has been established by experience that the limit to consumption is price.

No nation can afford to purchase more than it can to pay for in some manner. Even the give-away programs involved political payments which are often resented more than high-price money payments. When commodities are exchanged among countries with a relatively similar standard of living, price is not as great a factor as when the competition is in a low standard of living market.

For instance, in such a market, the United States Steel Corporation would find it difficult to compete profitably against the Skoda Works of Czechoslovakia, because the U. S. wage and tax cost puts a high price on goods, whereas Skoda need only put a political price on goods which means that they can be given away for nothing if political purpose so dictates.

When we speak of American goods outpricing themselves in world markets, we do not include commodities which receive a subsidy out of the taxpayers' earnings through military or economic aid.

However, this load cannot continue because it is beginning to stifle enterprise and forces upon us a cartelization of production and exchange. Economic operations are very complex because they involve many persons, places and techniques.

To simplify them by assuming that short-cuts will achieve what step-by-step methods cannot is an error. If the United States stockpiled steel as it does wheat, our poverty would increase.

The Pennsylvania Story

Fiscal Insanity

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Pennsylvania's taxpaying purse strings may be thrown wide open during the upcoming 1961 session of the Legislature.

Whether this will — or will not — be the case rests pretty much with Pennsylvania's battered Republican blocs in both House and Senate.

There is growing sentiment among many rank and file GOP lawmakers as they lay strategy plans for the upcoming session to let the Democratic Lawrence what it wants on the fiscal front —that is, not hold the purse strings on a tight leash as they have in past sessions with Democratic administrations.

Republican legislative thinking —most certainly justifiable from almost any viewpoint — runs something along these lines:

Within the past six years under Democratic administrations, budget cuts have been engineered by anti-administration Republican lawmakers holding the upper hand of control in the Senate (in the House of Representatives too in the 1957 session), and as one nettled Republican lawmaker put it: "To what avail?"

The point at which he was driving of course was the fact that after six years of holding through Democratic administration budget cuts; "What's the use? We lost our shirt and shoes at the polls November 8!"

Most certainly it is a point well worth taking — and one which disturbed Republican lawmakers are taking seriously. The attitude of many at this point is simply: if paying more taxes is what Pennsylvania taxpayers want, why stand in the way?

It is of course most difficult to conceive of anyone chafing at the bit in a frenzied desire to pay more taxes than necessary — other than those of a fine philanthropic bent.

Yet — if the results of last month's election which saw Republicans lose control of the Senate and the two state fiscal offices of Auditor General and State Treasurer can be accepted as any sign, then this is it.

It certainly isn't too complicated a picture. For example when Pennsylvania's near $2 billion budget was drafted by the Democratic Lawrence Administration during the 1959 session, antiadministration Republican lawmakers chipped around $40 million from the Governor's original budget submission.

The same pattern was followed during the two budget sessions in the preceding Democratic Leader Administration — and yet it was Pennsylvania Republicans who lost heavily at the polls last month!

Certainly under the circumstances GOP lawmakers can obtain a rather strong sense of justification for throwing up their hands in disgust.

As the 1961 session broods around the corner, those then are the salient thoughts going through their minds.

The House of Representatives for 1961 will be in Democratic administration hands by a seatage of 110 to 100. In the Senate the count is split evenly 25-25. It requires 26 votes to pass legislation in the upper chamber.

Support obviously must be forthcoming from the GOP side. On increasing expenditures and taxes should they again exercise restraint as they have before — when it apparently isn't appreciated by Pennsylvania's taxpaying public, if results at the polls can be accepted as any guide?

It is doubtful. Apparently GOP lawmakers are becoming fed up with being made the goat and losing their wool too. From the taxpayer's standpoint alone, the 1961 session should be considerably more than passing interest!

Reports From Congress

Need Water Management

By Congressional Quarterly

(Editor's Note — This is the second of three articles discussing the Nation's water problems.)

Washington — Water management — that's the key to meeting the Nation's increasing demands for water, according to experts throughout the country.

Water consumption in the United States currently averages about 250 billion gallons a day. By 1980, daily water consumption will be up to 600 billion gallons a day — perhaps higher.

All levels of government have begun to look for better methods of water supply management. This is necessary because so much of the available water is denied their use due to waste by pollution, evaporation and runoff.

Water management ranges from proper control of the supply to proper use and re-use;

It means construction of multi-purpose dams to capture and put to work as much water as possible from the Nation's rivers — large and small. These dams, now the backbone of the program, mean increased water storage, flood control, hydro-electric production and recreation facilities.

Good management also means developing and putting to use new supplies of water such as the conversion of saline water into high quality, potable water and control of the weather to make it rain over arid areas. And it means cutting down on pollution, which is rapidly becoming a critical problem for many large metropolitan areas.

Multi-purpose Dam — Experts agree that an effective water conservation program must be based on the development of the river basin — and that generally the best way to develop the river basin is through wider use of the multi-purpose dam. In any given basin, a river or complex of rivers is the central source of water supply, such as the upper Mississippi or the Ohio Rivers.

Two of the best examples of the multi-purpose dam in the United States are the Tennessee Valley and San Luis River projects — the former more than 20 years old; the latter recently authorized by Congress.

During its 20 years, the Tennessee Valley Authority has built more than 20 dams. Its reservoirs can store 22 million acre-feet (an acre-foot is one acre one foot deep) of water and its flood control system can store nearly 12 million acre-feet of flood waters. Its hydro-electric and steam plants have a combined capacity of 10.3 billion kilowatts.

The Federal Government's San Luis project, which will probably be constructed jointly with California, when completed will have a reservoir capacity of up to 2.1 million acre-feet. This water will be divided primarily between irrigation and metropolitan uses.

Saline Water — One way of supplementing the natural water supply is by converting salt and brackish water into potable water. The Federal Government has had a program in operation for several years designed to perfect the saline water conversion process. Construction on the first of five experimental conversion plants was started in Freeport, Texas, last August. The cost of converted water, however, is still too high for general use — $1 per thousand gallons. This is far below what it originally cost to convert saline water, but nearly four times the cost of regular commercial water.

A second method for increasing the natural supply of water is by the modification of weather — that is, making it rain at the right place and at the right time. This is done by "seeding" the clouds.

Water Above Us — Scientists have determined that more than six times as much water flows across the U. S. in the atmosphere than is carried by all the country's major rivers, and that about 99 percent of this is ready to condense under the proper conditions.

In the cloud-seeding process, a substance such as silver iodide either is dropped from aircraft or shot from ground generators. When it hits the clouds it serves as a freezing nucleus for water droplets, which when heavy enough, fall and become rain. The U. S. Weather Bureau conducts this research program, but it admits that several years of research are needed before the process can become a reliable means of increasing the Nation's water supply.

Pollution — The U. S. Public Health Service has said that pollution control in the United States is so far behind the need that 6,000 new municipal sewage treatment plants are needed to catch up. This would involve an average annual expenditure of about $600 million in order to meet this need by 1965.

Sewage usually is treated naturally. That is, when the water, polluted after use, is discharged quality water already there acts as a purifier. This means that the water discharged by one community can be used by a second further down the stream. The larger the industrial or metropolitan area, however, the greater the quantity of low-quality water that is put back into the stream, thus minimizing the effects of natural purification. And some rivers which are the major water supplies for large cities are today traveling cesspools.

Next to the Nation's capital, for example, flows the once-beautiful Potomac River, now unfit even for wading.

Experts agree that effective control of pollution is one of the major tasks that faces the Nation, and that without this control proper water management and development is impossible.

Next: Plans for an adequate water supply.

Inside You And Yours

Dear Doctor

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.

Dear Doctor: When my daughter was a baby, she received X-ray and radium treatments for a tumor in her groin.

Now, 24 years later, she developed high blood pressure and uremia shortly before her first baby was born. The baby lived only five days.

Did the X-ray and radium cause this trouble?

MRS. O. D.

Dear Mrs. D.: Probably not. Your daughter's symptoms probably stem from the living tissue growing in her womb. That's why doctors decided to deliver her baby early.

The high blood pressure, uremia, premature birth and Caesarean section all combined to increase the baby's trouble.

The radiation might explain abnormalities present at birth — but you didn't mention any. Your daughter stands a better than even chance of not having this trouble again.

Too Much Salt?

Dear Doctor: My children eat lots of salt, but my grandchildren hardly touch it. Their father thinks I'm crazy to let my boys eat so much salt, but I think his children should eat more.

Who's right?

MRS. J. P.

Dear Mrs. P.: You're both wrong.

All the children probably fit into that wide range between too much salt and too little. Your salt-free grandchildren eat more salt than you realize — in milk, bread, cheese and so on.

A craving for salt sometimes indicates slow-working glands. Perhaps you'd like to check with your family doctor.

Lump In Neck

Dear Doctor: I have had a lump alongside my Adam's apple for 23 years. Some doctors say it is a cyst, others a tumor and still others a cancer.

Will treatment help my goiter? Or do I need surgery?

Mrs. W. B.

Dear Mrs. B.: All sorts of lumps turn up in the neck. Did these doctors all agree that yours was a goiter?

Lumpy leftovers from old goiters often change into cancer after many years. Most doctors agree that these lumps should come out.

Question Of The Week

Q.: What is your opinion about pulling out unwanted hairs with tweezers?

A.: It hurts; and doesn't help any more than the ordinary razor or depilatory.

Ask your doctor about electrolysis which removes roots as well as hairs.

Veterans Guide

Q—I went on VA's pension roll this year, under the new system effective July 1, 1960, and I understand I will receive an income questionnaire soon, which also will ask about my net worth. Will you explain this term for me, please?

A—Net worth for VA pension purposes is the market value of all the property you own except your home and personal belongings necessary for your day-to-day living, such as your automobile, clothing, and the like—anything necessary for your day-to-day living.

Q. Is a disabled veteran taking rehabilitation training allowed time off for days when he can't be in school or on the job?

A. Yes, the law allows such time off. However, trainees must report their classroom or other absences, using the special Certification of Training form for that purpose, and wherever possible, permission to be absent must be requested and approved.

Q—I understand that by a new law a World War II veteran now has until July 25, 1962, in which to file an application for a GI loan. Just what steps toward getting a loan have to be taken by that date?

A—By that date, a lender must at least have agreed to make the loan and must have requested VA's approval. The new law places no limitation on the time needed to complete the deal, once your lender has agreed and asked for VA's approval.

South Wayne PTA Cites Vet N'fld. Scoutmaster

NEWFOUNDLAND — A life membership honoring Richard Mclain, who has served as scoutmaster of Troop 129, Boy Scouts, for nearly 30 years, was approved by Southern Wayne Joint School Parent Teacher Association during the business meeting at the school. Carroll Fetherman presided.

A budget totaling $430 was accepted as proposed for the 1960-61 school term. Mrs. Robert Rochfort, chairman of the Penny Dinner, reported a profit exceeding $200 received from the dinner.

There was a discussion of the PTA program booklet published this year for the second time in the history of the organization. Mr. Fetherman thanked those who made this informative booklet possible.

It was announced that Mrs. Evelyn Haldaman, of Promised Land, and Mrs. Jacqueline Croft, of Greentown, will represent the PTA at the December 19 meeting of the school board. Mrs. Richard Weiland, Mrs. Haldaman and Robert Madsen volunteered to attend the January 16 meeting of the board.

Library Dates

It was reported that the school library will be open for the use of the adults of the community and the surrounding area from 7 to 8:15 p.m. on the nights that the PTA meets. Mrs. Kathrine Miller is advisor of the library Club, which will be in charge of this service activity.

The senior class was awarded the classroom award for having the highest percentage of parents and teachers present for the meeting.

Donation

There was a discussion of the annual May Day festivities at the school. Leland Cramer, supervising principal, reported that the prom will be held as usual this year, including the crowning of the May Queen and King. However, many of the parents expressed the wish that the afternoon crowning of the king and queen, with the program in which the whole school participated, be again planned.

A donation of $15 to the Boy Scouts of America was approved by the membership.

Devotions were led by the Rev. Dr. Frederick G. Fulmer, retired Moravian pastor.

Speaker of the evening was Dr. Frank Sills, director of physical education at East Stroudsburg State College. His topic was Physical Education in the School and in the Home," and he stressed physical fitness at all times.

The next PTA meeting will be held on January 30, when the speakers will be John Tobey, Wayne County supervisor of special education, and Mrs. Marion Gilpin, who instructs the ungraded class at SWJS. Their topic will be "Special Education." Members should note that the meeting for January is scheduled for Monday instead of the usual Tuesday evening, in order to fit into Mr. Tobey's schedule.

Business Failures Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Business failures in the week ended Dec. 8 climbed to a new post-war high of 360, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. reported Tuesday. Up from 290 in the preceding week, the casualties considerably exceeded the 248 of the comparable week a year ago and were some 21 per cent above pre-war 1939 when the tool was 297.

Here's The Answer

By Andrew C. Lang

Question: I've been trying for days now — on and off — to remove a key that broke off in one of the locks on a door in our house. It's a mortise-type lock and it appears as though it would be an awful nuisance to take it out of the door insert to get at the key. Is there some other way to get the key out?

Answer: Since you have presumably tried all the common pushing, picking and pulling ways, without success, you'll just have to remove the lock, nuisance or not. First take off the door knobs, usually held in place with a small set screw that pushes against the spindle. Remove the lock itself from the mortise in the door by taking out the screws in the front of it and then prying it out of position by inserting an old screwdriver in the keyhole. Do this prying carefully so as not to damage the lock. You will find a metal plate on one side of the lock. Unscrew this plate gently, because rough handling will unscramble the parts inside the lock. When the metal plate is removed, take out the broken key. Replace the metal plate and then try out the lock with a new key. Thus, if the lock is defective, it will not be necessary to go through the whole procedure a second time to put in a new lock. If the old lock still works, replace it in the reverse order in which you removed the various parts.

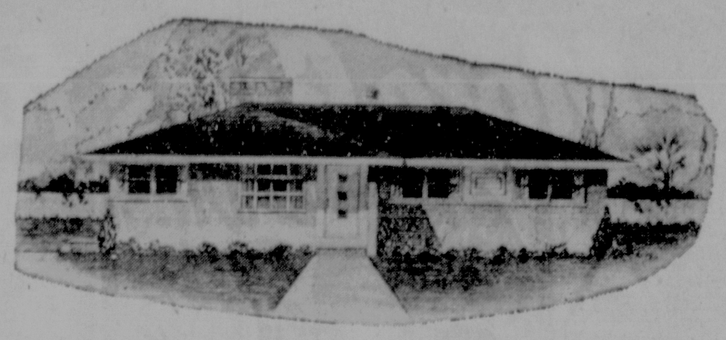
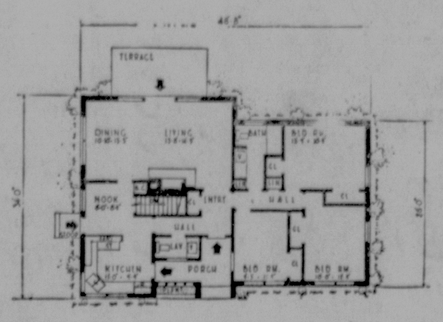
Parade of Homes





DESIGN NO. H-343
House: 1,422 sq.ft.
28,113 cu.ft.

Pleasantly Arranged Interior Is Keynote Of This House

A PLEASANTLY arranged interior, providing excellent traffic circulation, is the keypoint in this home design.

Entrance has direct access to either kitchen or center hall. A powder room is located here accomodating guests as well as those in work area. Arrangement of coat closet in hall is well planned as it is not directly at front door and thus provides ample walking room for those entering.

A colorful planting box is placed near entrance to kitchen. For plenty of sunlight, the kitchen has been planned with corner windows above the sink. Ample counter space is shown. There is a separate breakfast nook with service entrance and also easy access to basement stairs. Notice, too, the nook is very convenient to dining area.

Instead of facing the front of the home, the combined living-dining area is planned to the rear for additional privacy and a view of the yard. Another feature is shown in the doors opening off living area to a lounging terrace.

This entire area will be appreciated during warm summer days and especially by those who enjoy entertaining. A fireplace serves both living and dining rooms.

The opposite wing of the home, separated again for privacy, shows three good sized bedrooms and a bath. There are plenty of windows and no tiny closets, as you can see. The bath contains both vanity and linen closet. There is a second linen closet in hall.

Exterior construction material is of brick veneer. Front door is well protected by wide roof overhang.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. The plan contains 1,422 square feet and 28,133 cubic feet. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic feet in your area.

"Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specification Guide for Design H-343 may be purchased for $9.75 for one set; two for 18.25; three for 26.25; or four for 33.75. You may also purchase The Daily Record Plan Book showing 70 Designs for Today and Tomorrow for 75 cents postpaid. A Toy Box On Wheels Is Ideal Gift

IF IT'S happened once, it's probably happened a dozen times to all of us who shop for Children's gifts. We trot home with a novelty that wins our adult hearts. The child looks at it once, plays with it several times, then relegates it to a corner in preference to some beat-up toy.

A child likes certain things for very adult reasons. Give him a box and he imagines it's a treasure chest. Put a lock on it and he's sure to stow away all his precious possessions with much love and care. A child likes to put things away, providing there's some romantic attachment.

The toy chest on wheels has proven this point in many, many instances. If you're interested in bringing a spark of joy to some youngster's eyes, build this chest. Complete details are provided in the pattern offered. It tells what materials to buy and where and when each is used.

The outlines of the lamb and flower can be traced directly from the pattern onto the wood, thus insuring a professional job. Best of all, no special tools or skill are required.

Send 25 cents in coin, check or money order (no stamps please) for Toy Chest, Pattern No. 65. Send additional 35 cents for 64 page catalog illustrating over 300 other Build it Yourself projects to The Daily Record, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, New York.

WIRE SOLDER USEFUL

WHEN cutting duplicates of odd shaped objects, soft wire solder comes in handy. The pliable wire can be pressed over the object, conforming to the shape, and may then be used as a template for tracing.

HEAT COLD VARNISH

VARNISH flows more smoothly when warmed. If work is being done out-of-doors or in unheated rooms, place can of varnish in pan of hot water. Use hot plate to keep it warm, or replace hot water.

Holiday Doors Sparkle With Christmas Decor

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeatures Writer

ONE American Christmas custom that has grown in recent years is door decoration.

Here are some ideas to help the neophyte in his quest for something different on his holiday door.

Religious symbols. Remove the front of a bird's house, spray it with silver or gold paint to make a small shrine. Place a Christmas figurine in its niche. Attach it to the door with picture hangers. Decorate with pine sprays. You may use a small creche in the same fashion, anchoring the figurines to the bottom of the niche. Special effects may be obtained when light is used with these little shrines.

A festive wreath of aluminum foil and cookies. This has special appeal if there are to be children visitors. Crumple an 18-inch width of foil to about 6 inches, shape it into a circle of about 18-20 inches in diameter while crushing it. When wreath size is established, lap the foil over the wreath, continue adding it until the wreath has enough body for cookies. Cut a long thin rope of foil wrap into 5 inch pieces, 1/8 inch in diameter. Shape into loops. Just after dropping cooky dough on baking sheet insert foil loop ends into cookies, a bit off center. Secure cookies to the wreath with colorful ribbons.

A door basket. Fill it with greens, Christmas ornaments, holly. Outline the door with pine swag, available at most florists, or make it yourself with pine branches.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

OVER THE YEARS we have written a number of stories about various acoustical materials and proper methods of installation to insure satisfactory sound absorption. But we have bypassed any discussion of hardboard in this connection because its dense surface hardly lends itself to the deadening of sound.

Now, however, tests have shown that it is possible to take advantage of the high-impact resistance of hardboard and at the same time reduce the noise in your home. This is done by the use of the perforated type of hardboard backed by sound-absorbing batts. The sound enters the perforations and is smothered by the insulation.

Panels of perforated board are already popular for hanging tools, displaying kitchen utensils, supporting shelves and the like. Special metal clips are available which fit snugly into the perforations and enable items of various sizes and shapes to be hung.

These panels can be purchased in the standard 4 by 8 (feet) size or smaller sheets. They also can be bought flat and smooth or flat with various grooved patterns or corrugated. For acoustical purposes, the hardboard is usually backed by a 2-inch layer of fiber glass, rock wool or wood fiber insulation. It may be put up directly over studs which are properly aligned or, in the case of existing walls, over furring strips. Similarly, it can be applied to ceilings.

One of the big features of hardboard is the fact that its hard surface resists dents and thus is of special advantage in rooms where the walls might otherwise be damaged by children's toys, furniture, etc. Its surface can be cleaned easily.

In some installations, the light and dark brownish tones of hardboard are considered satisfactory and are not painted. In kitchens or other areas where a particular decor is important, the hardboard is painted. Flat paints, semi-gloss or gloss enamels may be used. Rollers are generally preferable when using the perforated type of hardboard, since they have less tendency to clog the holes.

Because hardboard is a product of wood chemistry, it may be worked, cut or drilled like wood. It does not chip or splinter and has no grain to rise and mar the appearance

Pennsylvania Buck Season Scheduled To End Dec. 16

PENNSYLVANIA'S 1960 antlered deer season, or buck season as it is more commonly known, will end Friday at 5 p.m. Eastern Standard Time and will be followed by a one day antlerless deer season, Saturday, Monroe County Game Protector John Doebling announced last night.

The season will open Saturday at 7 a.m. and close at 5 p.m. eastern standard time.

Any person who has not killed a deer this year and who owns the required antlerless deer license may legally hunt this game animal, however; he must seek an antlerless deer in the county for which the license was issued.

License holders who kill an antlerless deer are required to fill out and submit a big game kill report, preferably on the card that accompanies the hunting license.

Jaycees Names Unit For Award

POCONO Mountains Junior Chamber of Commerce President Ben Grudis yesterday announced the naming of a committee to seek the outstanding young man of the year in this area.

The committee, headed by Ray Roberts, will canvass churches, businesses, clubs and service organizations to determine which person has contributed the most to his community. The qualifying person must be between the ages of 21 and 35.

Nomination blanks will be available from local Jaycee and others will be distributed to clubs and organizations.

The Distinguished Service Award winner from the Pocono Mtns. area will be entered in the Pennsylvania DSA contest. The state winner will in turn be eligible for the national competition, which chooses the nation's 10 outstanding young men.

The Distinguished Service Award is presented annually to an outstanding young man of Jaycee age for leadership and service to the community. The winner need not be a member of the Jaycees. Capt. Drummond of the Salvation Army, East Stroudsburg, was the recipient of the award in 1960.

Decision On

The judging committee composed of distinguished senior citizens of this community will base their decision on: Contribution to the general community welfare during the year, leadership ability, personal or business progress.

Roberts stated that presentation of the award will be made at the DSA-Bosses Night Banquet at the conclusion of Jaycee week which will be observed locally from Feb. 6th through 13th.

Assisting Roberts on this committee is Jack Spies, vice-chairman; Scott Straub, Bruce Miller, Ted Stevens and Howard Popkin.

Delaware Water Gap Set For Control Center Setup

DELAWARE WATER GAP—The radio which connects Police Chief Fred Decker's automobile with the Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Water Gap control center has been installed and tested. It was tried out on the mountain slope to make sure that Decker could be reached anywhere.

Borough Council will soon have cards with the control center's telephone number to distribute to every home in the borough. Individuals may call the center day or night in any emergency that needs police care.

This does not mean to notify of fires which still are to be reported to the number given by the fire company here.

Dear Abby

Age Of Unreason

Dear Abby: What causes a man to leave his wife, children, home and church for another woman?

I was married to a man for 21 years. I loved him and tried my best to be a good wife and mother. I was happy and thought he was, too.

Out of the blue he told me he was in love with another woman. He packed up and moved out. He left me six months pregnant with a 14-month-old baby and four older children. The woman he left me for is 12 years younger than I am. He met her at work. She knows our religion doesn't allow divorce and remarriage but she doesn't care. My husband is begging me for a divorce. My heart says no. My friends say yes. I'm all mixed up.

BROKEN-HEARTED

Dear Broken-Hearted: The answer to your first question, "What causes a man to leave his wife, children, home and church for another woman," is "Temporary insanity." (This sometimes passes for "love.") Don't make any decisions while you are in an emotional tumult. Your husband may find his way back to the world of reality soon. In the meantime, tell him "No divorce!"

Dear Abby: When a hostess has a party and some guests bring other people, and a card table has to be set up in addition to the big dining room table which seats 14, WHO should sit at the card table? My husband says the "extra guests" who were not invited by us. I say my husband should sit at the big table and I should sit at the little one.

NOISE AT OUR HOUSE

Dear Noise: In the case of TWO tables — the host should sit at one, and the hostess at the other.

Dear Abby: A boy wrote in telling you he thought it was a "sin" for his mother, who was 44, to have a baby. Well, I don't think it's a "sin," but I have news for you — I doubt if any woman in her right mind would go in for it, at age 44, on purpose.

I am 42 and have a new grandchild. My daughter went on a trip and I am caring for her baby. I've been up for three days and three nights and I can't see straight — but the baby is still going strong. Women past 40 should leave well enough alone, and let the younger ones increase the population. I have no sympathy for them, and neither will their husbands. They'll sleep through it all.

Court Dismisses Republican Suits

CHICAGO (AP) — Republican efforts to reverse the Illinois election victory of President-elect John F. Kennedy suffered a setback yesterday when two suits were dismissed in court.

The suits, brought against Democrat - dominated Cook County and Chicago election boards demanding that official canvass results be altered in favor of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, were dismissed by Circuit Court Judge Thomas E. Kluczynski.

Green Thumb

Philodendron Answers Given By Green Thumber

THIS IS the time of year we receive stacks of letters asking why philodendron leaves turn brown at the tips and edges. Browning is due to dry soil, pot-bound, low humidity, waterlogging, or possibly an excess of plant food salts in the soil.

In areas where water is highly alkaline, rain water, distilled water, or water you get from defrosting the refrigerators are ideal for watering. Philodendron soils should be moist, open and well-drained. To get this you should use one-third sand, one-third loam, and one-third peat, to which is added charcoal, vermiculite, perlite or well-rotted compost. If the mix is not highly organic, chances are the leaves will get smaller and smaller.

Leaves that continue to get smaller and smaller, or which tend to return to juvenile form (not splitting) may be due to a separation of the organic matter from the soil, leaving a hard, cement-like condition which the roots cannot penetrate readily. Such soils are hard to keep moist and the water merely runs down the inside of the pot, leaving the core dry.

Another Reason

Another reason for smaller leaf size, or "plain leaves" may be a lack of light, or possibly simple starvation. Philodendrons are rather heavy feeders and should be fed once every four weeks, using a liquid plant food. I water and feed outs by pouring a liquid food over the totem pole on which the wine is growing.

Excessive yellowing and leaf drop means too much water around the roots, shutting off oxygen. Sufficient water is probably the most essential factor in keeping philodendrons growing evenly, with large uniform leaves.

Light is probably the next most important factor. Small leaves and long leggy vines mean a light shortage. Monstera, sold under the name of Philodendron pertusum, needs more light than true philodendrons, or the leaves will not split as profusely as they should. This is the famous Swiss Cheese plant you see in offices and florists shops.

Hotbed Notes

I'm pleased to know so many gardeners are making hotbeds as described in my Hotbed bulletin. A word of caution to those who have a hotbed: move the hotbed or coldframe to new spots, to avoid weeds, insects and fungus disease problems. Doing this will eliminate the chore of trying to sterilize the soil. It's a mistake to make your coldframes permanent, unless you use them to harden off plants growing in small boxes or containers.

Question Box

Question of the Week—Mrs. T. R. of Easton: "Three years ago I planted a Bittersweet vine and although the plant has made lots of growth it has had no berries. Why?"

Bittersweet has male and female vines. Usually only the fruiting or female plants produce berries, although sometimes a few male flowers will develop on a female plant and produce enough pollen for fruit.

If you plant another vine chances are there'll be berries within a couple years. In nature, the only way to tell a fruiting (female) vine is to study the floral parts (use a magnifying glass). The bittersweet, while highly decorative, isn't too ideal as an outdoor house vine, unless you can keep it within bounds.

I've seen shoots sneaking under the shingles or clapboards of a house. Along fences, walls, on dead trees or on stumps of old fruit trees, the bittersweet is ideal.

If you're looking for a good vine, I think the Queen of them all is the Clematis. There are over 300 species of plants in this family, so you don't have to select the common large flowering Jackmani, with violetpurple flowers. Here are other vines to consider: Dutchman's Pipe, Wisteria, Boston Ivy, Trumpet vine, English Ivy and Silverlace Vine. All are hardy for outdoor use.

D. E. F. of Stroudsburg: "Please tell me if evergreens normally change colors. Ours was a nice deep green but now it's sort of a purplish bronze and I'm afraid it's dying."

Many evergreens take on a purple or bronzy tint during late fall and winter, so it's nothing to worry about. Just as soon as the warm days of spring roll around the foliage will green up again. Evergreens are not always green. Narrow leaved foliage varies in color, depending on the variety. Colors range from light green, midgreen to dark green. Some are gray green, yellow green and blue green.

Location has something to do with color. For example, the Canadian hemlock usually is greener if grown in a semi-shady spot.

When evergreens turn brown on one side (facing strong winds) this change in color is due to a lack of water and is called "windburning" or desiccation. Hot dry winds, salt sprays from roads and sun are factors which cause browning.

Broadleaved evergreens (rhododendrons, for example) often turn brown during fall and winter as a result of dry soil, too much sun or drying winds. They may turn yellowish in winter, greening up after a few warm days. Keep your evergreens watered, right up until the ground freezes hard. Don't count on snow and rain to fill the needs of newly planted specimens.

The governor was en route to Erie from New York, where he was to address an Israel bond rally.

—8 BIG SHOPPING NIGHTS—MOST STORES WILL CLOSE DEC. 24th AT 5 P.M.—

Sponsored By The Stroudsburg Businessmen's Association

Just Between Us — —

The reason for the extra-ordinary amount of traffic on Brown St., in East Stroudsburg yesterday afternoon is easily explained. The Hospital Aux. was meeting at Warrick's.

They had a wonderful attendance — but there was an unusual phenomenon — husbands! Whether because they had a gallant regard for the tender sensibilities of their wives or an ungallant doubt as to their competence in taking care of the family car, the husbands were all doubling as chauffeurs for the afternoon.

There were a number of other unusual circumstances following in the wake of the storm. The Leies' children from Swiftwater went to New York City and got snowbound; while at home where you might expect even more weather, everybody was going about his business as usual.

Going about their business as usual — but in far from usual attire — were the shoppers in from the hills who gave the town the friendly, informal look of an Alaskan trading post.

Personally, I'm all for it — long underwear, parkas and all. While the only time I can read books about the Far North in any degree of comfort is in July, I agree with their contention that we suffer more from the cold in the midst of a civilization geared for comfort than they do under more primitive conditions.

If the difference in temperature between the indoors and outdoors is slight you go around happily bundled up all the time. It's when you have to dress for the tropical warmth of a club meeting room and then have to go through arctic temperatures to get there that you suffer.

Well, maybe you don't but I do. I even got chills reading that those Cub Scouts who won the contest had as their prize an overnight camping trip. My idea of a good prize would be that I didn't have to go.

Smart Women Know How To Put Ideas Over

By Anne Heywood

It was Lord Chesterfield who said, "Women are to be talked to as below men and above children."

Apparently, according to a letter from one of my readers, there are still men in the business world who do not realize that this bit of 18th-century philosophy is outdated.

Ignores Her

"My boss is always ready to listen to efficiency suggestions — even some pretty silly ones—from any and every male in the office," complains my reader. "But when I attempt to contribute one, he looks at me as if I were a kitchen maid who just walked in and sat down with the invited guests!"

Psychologists could suggest a variety of reasons why employers of this type act the way they do toward advice from the distaff side. But whether they resented their mothers in childhood, are currently hen pecked by their wives, or whatever, the fact remains that they present a problem to a willing young secretary looking for an opportunity to show what she can do.

Wise Approach

Since it is not the suggestions themselves, but their source, that the boss of our reader resents, it would be wise for "the source" to start taking account of herself.

First, she had better try to de-emphasize her sex as much as possible.

This means she should always be careful to dress unostentatiously; that she should avoid hair-combing and making-up at her desk; that she should not use the office phone for making or receiving chatty personal phone calls; that she should not abuse the time limit of the coffee loaded with bundles from shopping — in short, she should never, in any way, give the boss the opportunity to grumble to himself: "Just like a woman!"

Any smart secretary who puts her mind to it can think of a million stereotyped feminine foibles to add to this list of don'ts.

Finally, our ambitious young gal should be certain that the suggestions she makes are as good as she thinks they are.

A friend of mine used to say

Resentment Of His Mother Causes Him To Dislike Women.

of a certain type of suggestion-maker:

"It's not so much that she has something to say as that she is filled with the desire to say something."

Beware Of This

It would be wise not to fall into this category.

As a matter of fact, just quietly applying the efficiency measures to one's own job, so that the boss may be confronted with results rather than talk, often works wonders in getting him to seek out your opinions in the future.

(If you would like a pamphlet on "Pointers to the Habit of Success," send me a large, self-addressed stamped envelope in care of this newspaper and I will be happy to send it to you.)

Band Mothers Start Fund For Band Trip

The Band Mothers of East Stroudsburg instead of exchanging gifts at their Christmas party on Monday night, contributed to the fund which they hope will finance a trip for the band to Atlantic City next summer to play at the Lions' Convention.

Entertainment for the party, held in the school cafeteria, featured the Choraliers who have a preview of their "Old Fashioned Christmas program."

At the business meeting, it was announced that a tape recorder had been purchased from proceeds of last year's rug project and that part of the money raised at the recent Band Party will be set aside for the scholarship fund.

The Choraliers were guests of the Band Mothers during the social hour when Christmas refreshments were served from two tables. They were decorated with candles in brass candelabra with one centerpiece composed of two large bells and the other of red, green and gold Christmas ornaments in a large crystal compote.

The committee included Mrs. Lester Dimmick, chairman; Mrs. Lewis Morgan, Mrs. Melva Reid and Mrs. Raymond Gould.

Stroud Choir Sings For Ann Logan

The Stroud Union High School Choir under the direction of Numa Snyder presented a program of Christmas music at the meeting of the Anna Logan Hospital Aux on Monday night at the YMCA

Mrs Allen Zahorik, a member of Book Club, reviewed Peter B Kyne's "The Three Godfathers" telling the story of three bad men and their regeneration through a new-born baby at Christmas

The 34-voice choir from Stroud Union were warmly received. With no school on Monday because of the storm, the program committee had offered to release the group, but despite the difficulty of getting together they were all there.

Their program included "Gloria" by Robert Hall; "Keeping Holy Vigil" a German folk song with Susan Harl as soloist; "Sing Ye Noel," traditional; "A Christmas Song," Croker; "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day," John Marks; "In Bethlehem," Martinique folk song; "Ah Bleak and Chill the Winter Wind" Alfred Burt carols; "Now is the Caroling Season," Priesing. Weldon Adams was accompanist for the group.

Mrs. John Wellington presided at the business meeting when it was reported that all fruit cake had been sold. The group has ordered 12 record albums for the hospital with half of them with music appropriate to the Christmas season.

It was announced that birthday calendars are on sale and may be obtained from any member or by calling Mrs. John Stanford.

An offering was taken to be used by the Gray Ladies for their program at the County Home.

Refreshments were served by the executive committee.

'Chris' Was For Christmas, Saddened For Bushkill Kids

"Chris" was short for Christmas and that's when three youngsters on the Bushkill Falls Road received a thorough-bred Sheltie collie last year from their grandparents to replace another family pet, who had died.

This year — well, let the children tell their own story:

"Just a year ago,
All was happy and gay,
A dear little puppy
Came to Our house to stay
To Replace our pal Taffy
Whom God took away
Chris was not just a dog of any old sort
He was a thorough-bred right to the heart
If his bark, wiggle and whine
Could have come out in rhyme,
He would have told us he loved us
Just as we did him, many's the time.

Now he is dead, due to some inhuman thoughtless person, who was quicker on the trigger than on thought or reason. Chris was killed almost in sight of his home and the kids who held him so dear.

Now as this Christmas approaches and day turns to night
Instead of asleep under our bed when out goes the light,
Our Chris will be sleeping 'neath Mother Nature's blanket of white." "P.S. To the one who did this dastardly thing, we hope before you try it again, you will try to recall being a kid yourself and have this happen to you, not just any old time, but at Christmas especially."

THIS IS CHRISTMAS —

That is the title of a song. It was also the theme of a very splendid concert presented by the increasingly-popular Pocono Community Chorus last Saturday evening at Stroud Union auditorium under the direction of Norma Treible. And it is the thought beating away in unrelenting persistence at the forefront of most brains, at the moment.

To song-writers, Christmas is a time of reverence and joy . . . of mistletoe and sleighbells . . . carols in the night . . . gifts beneath a tree. All of these things were commemorated in glorious jubilation by the chorus. When you work in a store, these things are sometimes submerged in thoughts of the weary shoppers and equally weary salespeople . . . and the Christmas picture takes on that added dimension in which are the stepped-on toes . . . the frazzled nerves . . . the sobbing children and their sometimes impatient parents . . . the empty purses and the strain of trying to satisfy everyone's dream when you know perfectly well it's a losing battle.

Because it is easy to lose sight of the real meaning of Christmas in the feverish scramble of pre-Christmas activity, I am grateful for having heard the concert sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club in benefit of the welfare fund. Mrs. Treible has brought the chorus a long, long way, and is blessed, I think, with a great many unusually fine voices—voices just as excellent solo as blended. Her musicianship is splendid, and her chorus is obviously very carefully and painstakingly prepared. What's more, this is one chorus you can understand. I'm not sure how much of this can be attributed to acoustics at the school, but I do know I've suffered through many a program in a variety of places and not understood a word that was being sung onstage. Saturday evening was a blessed relief from such mumo jumbo.

Particularly do I wish to congratulate Lynn Werkheiser of our Wyckoff credit office for her very fine work as the chorus accompanist. Before Lynn it was the former Ann Meredith, Fran's daughter, who held this position, proving that very little goes on in the county without Wyckoff employees participating. Alberta Yutz, one of the soloists, is a former Wyckoff employee, as is Mary Beatty. Mary is part of a mother-daughter duo in the chorus. The attractive blond center stage was Marie Bean of our Wyckoff alteration room. Come to think of it, the chorus is quite a family affair . . . at least one married couple, Ralph and Grace Potts, are also among the members. I was interested too, in seeing my former teacher, Dorothy Lisette in the audience, and know she must have been very proud of both Alberta and Jeanne Gurr, two of her students, who were among the show's stars. Another former Wyckoff employee, it occurs to me, was the narrator—Howard Atwell, whose speaking voice contributed as much to the middle part of the program as did the voices of the singers.

One more thing—I should like to mention the beauty of the stage with its silver tree and large, apple-sized red ornaments . . . a solid, dazzling mass of red and silver, a truly festive color combination for Christmas that was particularly exciting when repeated in the red party punch . . . the corally-red dresses of the girls . . . and the pretty little shoes, dyed by Blanche Mackey in our Frigidaire washer to match the gowns. It was all thrilling from the first note to the last, when Santa appeared with three adorable, wide-eyed youngsters who were much at home on stage and busied themselves opening packages.

This is Christmas . . . ribbons and fancy papers . . . tinkling cymbals and tinkling glasses . . . mysterious winks behind the backs of the children . . . delightful make-believe in their presence. And in all phases of Christmas, Wyckoff's plays an active part from the first card to the last bill. Shop Wyckoff's today!

Net Income Vs. Taxes

By William A. Doyle

Q. I have been told that the American Telephone & Telegraph system paid over $1.5 billion dollars in Federal, state and local taxes during 1959. That seems like a fantastically high amount. Is this true? If so, how does it compare with the total dividends paid to AT&T stockholders for that year?

A. Yes, it's true. The annual report of the Bell System (AT&T and its principal telephone subsidiaries consolidated) shows total operating taxes of $1,690,289,000. The Federal corporate income tax took $1,054,726,000 of the total bite. The rest went out in state, local and social security taxes.

After paying all taxes and other expenses, net income for all AT&T stock came to $1,113,152,000. That brought the earnings on each outstanding share of AT&T stock to $5.22.

During the year, dividends of $3.30 a share were paid to stockholders for a total of $688,327,000.

So, AT&T paid out well over twice as much in taxes during the year as it paid in dividends to its stockholders. And the tax bill was some 50 percent higher than net income.

Figures such as these certainly prove that corporations and their stockholders carry a huge tax load.

Q. About two months ago, you stated that AT&T stock is still selling at a lower price than it did before the 1929 stock market crash. Isn't it true that if a persons had taken advantage of all the AT&T "rights offerings," he would be way ahead?

A. Since 1929, AT&T has made 11 rights offerings to its stockholders. Twice AT&T stockholders have had the right to buy additional stock. Nine times they have had the right to buy convertible debentures. These debentures could be swapped for stock.

If an AT&T stockholder exercised all his rights and converted his debentures, the AT&T stocks he now owns would have a higher market value than his original number of shares would have had before the '29 crash.

All the rights offerings were made at prices that gave the stockholders a break. That made the rights valuable. The rights were traded on the stock market, just as stocks are traded.

Many people, especially the smaller stockholders, sold the rights. For them, the market value of the stocks they hold is still below the high prices AT&T hit in 1929.

In that boom (and later bust) year, AT&T soared to $310.25 a share. It was split three for one in 1959. So, it now takes three shares of the split stock to equal one share of the old stock. The new stock would have to trade at over $103 a share to pass its 1929 high.

It would be almost impossible to tell exactly how much better off a person who exercised all his rights would be, in comparison to someone who sold his rights.

The value of the rights went up and down in the market, just as the value of the stock has done.

3rd Period Famine

Nazareth Hands E-Burg 63-30 Road Thumping

NAZARETH—Nazareth's Blue Eagles staged a 22 point third period Tuesday night to bury East Stroudsburg High School 63-30.

It was the second loss in a row for the winless Cavaliers, who managed only 24 points in their opener.

The Eagles' man-to-man defense was so effective that the Cavaliers did not get off a field goal attempt for five and a half minutes of the third period and scored only six points in that quarter.

No Double Figures

None of the Cavaliers reached double-figures. Brian Farris led the East Stroudsburg scorers with nine points. Jack Van Horn was next in line with seven. Glenn Kane added six, Jack Fellman, four and Earl Palmer and Don Wescott, two each, to account for the 30 points.

Hal Toth was high for the Eagles with 16 and Ken Butz had 12. Nazareth used 10 players and all but one scored.

The Cavaliers trailed 11-4 at the end of the first frame but were behind by only 11 at the half, 24-13.

But Nazareth scored on the tap to start the second half, when Larry Roth hit a lay-up off a jump ball play.

Out of Reach

Field goals by Ron Gold, Bob Freeman, two foul shots and another bucket by Freeman pushed the Eagles out of reach, 35-13.

Farris broke the Cavalier ice with two free throws, mid-way through the period. Ninety seconds later he added a field goal and after Toth hit for five straight points, Farris ended his and the Cavaliers' scoring in the frame, with another field goal.

Roth, Toth and Butz pumped in three quick baskets in the final minutes and at the end of three quarters Nazareth was in front 46-19.

2 NBA Prospects Here With Kids Today

HAL (KING) Lear, who has reportedly been offered a $12,000 a year contract to play with the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Assn., leads the Harlem Komedy Kids against the Pocono All-Star Coaches tonight at 8:30 at East Stroudsburg State College.

The Knicks' offer supposedly came after Lear scored 48 points against Wilkes-Barre Sunday, to pace the Easton Madisons to a 139-132 Eastern League victory. Lear plays for the Madisons on the weekends and the Komedy Kids during the week.

Lear, the leading scorer in the Eastern League with a 42 point plus average a game, showed up late for Sunday's game and did not have time to warm-up. He had only four points in the first period and had collected 16 by halftime. A phenomenal 32-point second half gave Lear his 48 points. He has been held below 46 points only once this year, a 30 point performance at Baltimore Friday.

Scott Considered

Lear is not the only member of the Kemedy Kids who may be NBA bound. Ray (Chink) Scott, who also plays with the Allentown Jets, is being sought by several big league clubs.

Scott, 6-10, a played at Portland University, but will not be eligible for the NBA until his class graduates this June. He is considered a top draft choice.

Despite his size, Scott is a good outside performer with an excellent two-hand set shot and drive. He is the eighth ranking scorer in the Eastern League and in his last game against Hazleton, scored 32 points.

Two other Eastern League players also appear with the Kids. Jay Norman of Easton and Sonny Hill of Sunbury.

Leading Rebounder

Norman played at Temple University with Guy Rodgers of the Philadelphia Warriors. Norman was the Owls' leading rebounder and is also one of the top boardmen in the EBL.

Against Maryland in the Assn. Regional Tournament National Collegiate Athletic at Charlotte, N.C., in 1958, Norman collected 30 rebounds, even though the Terrapins had two men who were four inches taller than Norman.

Hill, a former Ohio State performer, is only 5-9, but he can "dunk" a basketball and can out-rebound opponents a foot taller.

The Kids are not only fine basketball players, but also top court comedians.

Laugh Workers

Frank Washington, a nine-year veteran of the Harlem Globetrotters and Bozo (The Clown) Walker, of the Broadway Clowns, handle most of the laugh work.

Washington starred with the great Globetrotter teams that featured Goose Tatum, Josh Grider, Marques Haynes and Rookie Brown. Washington appeared in two Columbia motion pictures with the Globetrotters.

The Kids comedy routines include slow motion dribbling, football and baseball plays and trick foul shooting.

Jim Parker, another former Globetrotter, is the club's "dribbler." Parker is capable of keeping the ball away from opponents for minutes at a time by dribbling.

Board Help

Bob Johnson, a 6-6 former Kansas State star, helps the Kids on the boards and is also a double-figure scorer.

The Coaches team is made up of Bob Wert, Walt Bjorn, Wilmont Smith and Dick Merring of Stroud Union; Doug Schoonover, East Stroudsburg; Dale Baker, Bangor; John Melhem, Pius X; John Bush, Tobyhanna; Harry Werkheiser, Pocono; Al Shollenberger, Barrett and Bill Frear, Pleasant Valley.

Ticket windows open at 7:30 an hour before game time.

Late Rally Wins 60-57 For Barrett

HAWLEY—Barrett High School, behind for three periods, poured in 21 points in the last period, to defeat Hawley 60-57 last night.

A. J. Bittner led the winners with 19 and Tom Young added 18. Norb Ryan was the only other Barrett player to hit double figures. He had 13.

Hawley connected on one more field goal than the winners, 24-23 but could manage only 12 trips to the free throw line. The losers hit nine free throws.

Barrett had a fair free throw night but it had 22 attempts, which made the difference. The winners made good on 14 charity tosses.

Barrett trailed 15-12 after one period and after playing Hawley on even terms in the second frame fell four more points off the pace at the end of three periods and was behind by seven.

But Al Shollenberger's team limited Hawley to only 11 points in the last eight minutes and collected 21 itself, to seal the win.

Meet Oregon Saturday

Penn State Forced Indoors For Liberty Bowl Practice

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—A bitter cold wave following on the heels of a heavy snow storm has put the chill on the Penn State football team's training sessions for the Liberty Bowl Saturday in Philadelphia.

Twelve inches of snow over the weekend forced Coach Rip Engle to hold indoor practice Monday.

Despite temperatures in the teens Engle called outdoor practices Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday before the team leaves for Philadelphia.

"We must get out because we are going to have to handle the ball in cold weather," said Engle.

Reports from the training camp of Penn State's Liberty Bowl opponent, Oregon, indicates the Webfoots have been training in moderate temperatures.

But, as Engle pointed out, the Nittany Lions have enjoyed good weather most of the season.

"A cold day Saturday would affect us as much as it would them," he added.

Clearing Weather

Bud Dudley, a promoter of the game, said in Philadelphia recently that advance weather forecasts indicate Saturday in Philadelphia will be clear with temperatures around 40 degrees.

Sources close to Penn State privately indicate they hope Dudley is right, since a warming trend would soften the turf in the huge Philadelphia Stadium and perhaps affect the vaunted speed of the Webfoots.

Engle, meanwhile, is reported preparing some special plays for the game.

Of course, the grey-haired veteran is keeping his own counsel on this angle, but it will be remembered a special play he installed especially for last year's first Liberty Bowl gave Penn State a 7-0 victory over Alabama.

The Lions lined up on the Alabama 17 as if to try for a field goal. Quarterback Galen Hall, in a kneeling position, took the snap, quickly stood up and threw a flat pass to halfback Roger Kochman who raced over for the TD.

Philadelphia Stadium, where the game will be played, is under as much as five feet of drifted snow. But Robert W. Crawford, recreation commissioner for Philadelphia, said the city will clear the snow from the stadium in time for the game.

Stags Blast Bears

NEWFOUNDLAND—Southern Wayne High School put five men in double-figures as it smacked Pleasant Valley 90-48 Tuesday night.

The Stags started slowly, with only a 14 point output in the first period and it looked as if the Bears might make a game of it. But a 25 point second period and a 33 point third frame killed any Pleasant Valley hopes.

Bob Strupcewski led the winners with 24 points while Ed Romascavage collected 23 for the Bears.

Four In Doubles

Tob Duty, Bill Simon, Jordan Deskus and Donnie Barnes also hit double figures for the Stags.

Southern Wayne poured in 35 field goals and 20 of 36 foul shots, while Pleasant Valley collected 16 of each variety.

The Little Stags won the junior varsity game 48-17.

Floyd Gets Neil Award

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson, the first man to regain the world heavyweight boxing championship, Tuesday was named winner of the Edward J. Neil memorial plaque as "fighter of the year" for 1960. The award was made by the Boxing Writers' Association.

It was the second time that Patterson, 25-year-old New Yorker, has been voted the Neil award, named in memory of The Associated Press sports writer who was killed in 1938 while covering the Spanish Civil War. The only other double winner was Carmen Basilio, in 1955 and 1957.

Patterson was the youngest to win the heavyweight crown when he knocked out Archie Moore in the fifth round, Nov. 30, 1956. That made him the Neil winner for that year.

New Clubs Start Stocking Session

BOSTON (AP)—Officials of the new Washington and Los Angeles clubs Tuesday went over final plans before a history-making session in which they will select many of the players who will perform for the two new American League teams.

Wednesday, they meet with League President Joe Cronin and draft 28 players each from a pool provided by the eight existing teams.

The meeting originally was scheduled Tuesday, but was postponed when a blizzard halted all air travel in and out of Boston.

Los Angeles General Manager Fred Haney and Bill Rigney — named as the Angels' field boss only Monday — arrived Tuesday and, along with Washington General Manager Eddie Doherty paid a visit to American League headquarters.

Social Visit

"It was just a social visit," league publicist Joe McKenney said. "We didn't discuss any business. They just dropped by to visit with Cronin."

Los Angeles President Bobby Reynolds and Board Chairman Gene Autry; Washington owner Brig. Gen. Elwood (Pete) Quesada, and Washington Manager Mickey Vernon were due later Tuesday.

They will gather with Cronin and his staff in a closed-door session to pick their players—at a price of $75,000 each — from the 120-man pool.

Each of the eight existing clubs have placed 15 players from their 40-man rosters in the pool. A list of those players has not been announced officially.

Buckeyes Hold 1st In Basketball Poll

By The Associated Press

Jerry Lucas and Co. from Ohio State hold a commanding lead in the first weekly basketball poll by The Associated Press' panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

With the All-America star of last season rolling along with a 27-point average in three winning games, Ohio State already is being boomed for second straight NCAA title. The Buckeyes are idle until Saturday when they play Wichita.

Ohio State drew 35 of the 36 first place ballots in the season's first poll. The other first went to Detroit, No. 3, which was knocked out of the ranks of the unbeaten Monday night by Purdue 83-64. All voting was based on the result of games played through Saturday, Dec. 10.

Bradley Second

Unbeaten Bradley, the No. 2 team, finished last week with a 3-0 record and added its fourth of the year by drubbing Northern Michigan 105-77 Monday. Bradley plays Nevada Wednesday and Wisconsin Saturday. Detroit's only other game this week is a Saturday date with Nebraska.

The leaders with won-lost records and first place votes in parentheses with points on a 10-9-8 etc. basis. (Records through games of Saturday, Dec. 10)

1.	Ohio State (35) (3-0)	359
2.	Bradley (3-0)	272
3.	Detroit (1) (3-0)	189
4.	Indiana (2-1)	145
5.	North Carolina (2-0)	136
6.	St. Bonaventure (4-0)	116
7.	St. John's (3-0)	72
8.	Duke (3-0)	60

Detective Ambushed

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A private detective was embushed in a midtown radio and television store and killed last night by someone who left no clues for police to follow. The detective's partner was wounded seriously.

Both men, employes of the Holmes Protective Agency, were shot in the head by the gunman, who smashed a hole in the locked front door and fled.

William Mitchell, 57, died shortly after admittance to Jefferson Hospital.

The other detective, suffering a wound of the left temple, was James Kilroy, 38.

Police said guns carried by Mitchell and Kilroy were still in their holsters, indicating the two men were surprised when they entered the darkened store to investigate an alarm that had sounded in the detective agency's downtown office, but not in the store.

Police said the culprit apparently broke into the store from the roof, bent on burglary. Found there, partly buried in the snow, was a tape recorder and hi-fi parts.

Lehigh Valley Railroad Hits Government Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Lehigh Valley Railroad claimed Tuesday that if the government compels it to keep providing passenger service a "complete breakdown of carrier rail service" will almost certainly follow.

This, the road said in a brief filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, would mean "serious damage to the public good and loss to thousands of security holders."

Lehigh's brief was written in support of a request to drop all of its remaining passenger operations on grounds that this service is running up big deficits.

The east-west service Lehigh wants to drop consists of:

One train daily to and from Buffalo and New York City, with a cutoff at Depew, N. Y., to and from Suspension Bridge, N. Y., where connection is made with the Canadian National Railway.

Six Days

One train six days a week to and from Lehighton, Pa., and New York City.

Opposition to Lehigh ending this remaining passenger service was voiced in a brief filed with the ICC on behalf of the Cooperative Legislative Committee of the Railroad Brotherhoods in the state of Pennsylvania.

This brief claimed that Lehigh Valley passenger service is vitally needed. Moreover, the brotherhoods challenged the computations used by Lehigh in its claim that passenger service is causing great losses.

Pennsylvania Senator JFK Guest

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., was a luncheon guest of President-elect John F. Kennedy Tuesday.

When Clark arrived at Kennedy's Georgetown home, he declined to tell newsmen what matters he wanted to discuss with the president-elect.

Asked if he intended to discuss appointments, Clark replied:

"I wouldn't want to tell you. Any comment should come from Sen. Kennedy."

At the request of photographers, Kennedy came out to his front doorstep to shake hands with Clark. A reporter asked Kennedy what he intended to discuss with Clark and Kennedy said, "Well talk about legislation." He didn't amplify.

Clark is an outspoken member of a group of Senate Democrats who describe themselves as liberals. In a challenge which Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., interpreted as aimed at him, Clark recently questioned the right of Democrats to head congressional committees if they did not support Kennedy and are not in sympathy with programs in the Democratic platform. Byrd is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

When Clark left the Kennedy home, he still refused to discuss his conference with the president-elect. But he said in reply to reporters' questions that he saw no reason to change his mind on plans for rule changes in the Senate.

He said that Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., has called a conference of the liberal group for Dec. 30. He said he was hopeful a Democratic conference could be held on Jan. 2—"this I strongly recommend," he added.

Clark also said that he still planned to push bills on medical care, Social Security, minimum wages, housing and civil rights. The senator said he expected "trouble from many sources."

The Daily Record

Serving the Poconos

VOL. 72—NO. 217 STROUDSBURG—EAST STROUDSBURG, PA. WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1960 Dial HA 1-3000 7 Cents

Record Cold (-28) Continues; Slashes Christmas Sales

Record cold—as low as 28 below zero—benumbed the East Tuesday, compounding the misery of the Atlantic seaboard's worst pre-winter blizzard. The digging out task was monumental and anguishingly slow.

No relief from the deep freeze was in sight before Thursday, the Weather Bureau said. Christmas business losses already were in the multimillions.

A bright sun, replacing snow clouds, mocked the area, the warmth of its rays dissipated in the icy air. However, gale winds subsided after piling up snowdrifts to a depth of nine feet.

The death toll from the weekend storm passed the 200 mark in 19 states and the District of Columbia. Auto accidents, shipping mishaps, freezing and weather-induced heart attacks contributed their share to the awesome total.

Communities isolated by the storm got their first deliveries of milk and bread since last week. Other food supplies also were moving in once again, averting any threat of famine.

Low Temperatures

Record low temperatures for the date were listed in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and New England. In northwest Pennsylvania, in Jefferson County, the overnight low was -28 degrees. In Wyoming County near Buffalo, N.Y., it was -14.

Pittsburgh had a record -1, New York City 7.4 above zero and Philadelphia, Newark and Boston 8 above.

The far below freezing temperatures helped preserve mountainous piles of snow against the onslaught of plows, bulldozers and other removal equipment. The only way to get rid of it was to cart it away, since there was no melting.

The combination of snow and cold caused New York's Sanitation Commissioner Paul Scrivane to declare: "This is the toughest snowstorm I've seen in 24 years in the department."

Nevertheless, the giant coastal cities from Washington to Boston began the long pull back to normal. Transit moved again on some semblance of a schedule.

Some schools reopened, but attendance was so far off that many closed again. New York City public and private schools reopened for 1.4 million pupils, but attendance ranged only from 2 to 44 per cent.

On high seas and coastal waters, ships moved with freedom once more from the gale that had buffeted them so cruelly.

Louisiana Integration Issue Boils

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A cold silence—devoid of jeers, taunts or even icy stares—Tuesday enveloped the William Frantz School where nine children, one of them a Negro girl, attended classes.

But contrasted to the 34-degree temperatures in New Orleans, the situation boiled in Baton Rouge where the state legislature fired a new shot in the integration battle.

In the House of Representatives, leaders for Gov. Jimmie H. Davis shoved a bill through to replace the New Orleans School Board. This was the legislature's fourth move to oust the board, though the federal courts have ordered the legislature not to interfere.

Other bills up for consideration, all aimed at preserving segregation in the schools, are directed at the school board and curbing its functions.

Newsmen hustling to Frantz Tuesday morning to cover the arrival of the children under federal marshals' escort found no demonstrators for the first time since the school was integrated Nov. 14.

At McDonogh No. 19, located 20 blocks from Frantz, a chilled handful saw three Negro girls arrive. No white pupils have attended McDonogh since it was integrated.

The State Senate met late Tuesday to consider House-approved action. The bills must be readied for final passage Thursday, when the current 30-day term of the legislature ends. A new session starts Saturday.

A House committee unanimously approved a resolution denouncing a Louisiana State University professor who criticized the legislature's segregation fight as "a national scandal."

The committee huddled in secret session with LSU President Troy H. Middleton, hero of the Battle of the Bulge in World War II.

The resolution calls for an investigation by the joint legislative committee on un-American activities.

Prof. Waldo F. McNeir's letter to State Sen. Wendell Harris described the acts of the legislature trying to block New Orleans school integration "as a disgrace and a national scandal."

The LSU board, said one legislator, should be made to explain "why it has not taken action in rooting out such individuals."

Charges U.S. Aids French In Algeria

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union charged the United States Tuesday with sending U2 spy planes over rebel-held areas of Algeria to help the French. The United States labeled the accusation a lie.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin made the charge in the U. N. General Assembly's Political Committee, where he threw Moscow's unqualified support behind an Asian-African resolution calling for a U. N. referendum on self-determination in Algeria.

The Soviet position was set forth as Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold came under mounting pressure from the 46-nation Asian-African group to speak out on the latest violence in France's North African territory.

Francis W. Carpenter, spokesman for the U. S. delegation, issued this statement: "The Soviet charge that U. S. U2 planes are being used to carry out reconnaissance in Algeria is a complete fabrication. We reject it categorically."

The United States has not yet spoken in the committee debate. But the U. S. State Department has officially deplored the latest outbreaks, calling them a setback to President Charles de Gaulle's efforts to achieve a peaceful settlement in Algeria.

Taking Part

Zorin told the committee that U. S. advisors and instructors from NATO bases in North Africa were actively taking part in helping the French bomb Algerian rebel troops.

He said the U2 aircraft based in North Africa were conducting aerial photography of rebel-held territory in order to help the French forces. He asserted De Gaulle had the support of the "new fangled holy alliance of NATO" in waging a campaign of slaughter against the Algerian people.

Zorin denounced De Gaulle's avowed aims for an "Algerian Algeria" as nothing more than a come-on designed to deceive world opinion. He said De Gaulle is actually demanding the unconditional surrender of the Algerian provisional government to which the Soviets have extended de facto recognition.

Youth Saves Brothers In Heroic Dash

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP)—An 11-year-old boy dashed twice through the flames and carried his two baby brothers to safety from second-floor bedrooms of their burning home here Monday night.

Fire Chief Bob Prahl said the boy, Jerry Davis, ran through flames to reach the babies, and dropped into the arms of his mother, waiting at the bottom of a stairway.

The youth suffered severe burns on his hands, face and ears, but was reported in satisfactory condition.

Prahl gave this account of the rescues:

Jerry walked out the front door of his home and saw flames spewing from an upstairs bedroom window. He shouted to his mother, Mrs. Loren Davis, who herded four other children outside. Then young Davis ran upstairs.

There was a wall of flame at a bedroom door but Davis darted through it and found his brother, Mark, 2, huddled in a corner. He carried the boy to the stairway, dropped him to his mother, then followed them outside. Mrs. Davis counted noses and found that Neil, 4, was missing.

They got back into the house. Mrs. Davis boosted Jerry up to a second-floor bannister, and he went into another bedroom, and found Neil in a corner, surrounded by fire. He dropped Neil to his mother and then jumped down the stairway. All got out safely. Neil and Mark suffered only minor burns.

Prahl said the father, a construction worker, was not at home.

Herter Awarded Belgium Order

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — King Baudouin gave Secretary of State Christian A. Herter Belgium's highest award—the Grand Cordon of the Order of Leopold—Tuesday.

The presentation of an award rarely given a foreigner smoothed over somewhat the rather chilly reception Herter got from the Belgian government on his arrival by plane earlier.

Herter, who came to Brussels as Presiden tEisenhower's personal representative at King Baudouin's wedding Thursday, was given a proper but cool receptio nat the airport. He was greeted only by a second echelon Foreign Ministry official.

Observers believed the lack of warmth may have been due ot some residual resentment over the cordial welcome Herter gave former Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba in Washington last summer. This was at a time when passions in Belgium were high because of atrocities commited by Congolese against Belgians.

Gizenga Assumes Control

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—A leftist lieutenant of deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba proclaimed himself Tuesday ruler of the Congo, raising fears of civil war in this troubled land.

From Lumumba's old stronghold of Stanleyville in the northeast Congo, Antoine Gizenga cabled United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold he had assumed the premiership.

The deputy premier in Lumumba's old regime also announced that the capital of the Congo henceforth would be Stanleyville instead of Leopoldville.

Gizenga's proclamation is expected to have little effect in areas beyond his control, but his allies in the Soviet and African blocs are expected to rally to his cause in the United Nations and may extend diplomatic recognition.

It was Gizenga's rebellious regime in Oriental Province that threatened to round up and behead white hostages unless Lumumba was released from urmy prison in Thysville east of Leopoldville.

This threat was dropped when the United Nations intervened.

President Joseph Kasavubu and Col. Joseph Mobutu, heading the pro-Western regime in Leopoldville ignored the ultimatum. The U.N. mission in the Congo immediately notified foreign diplomats in Leopoldville of Gizenga's challenge to the Congolese government.

Many fear Gizenga's bid for power could start new warfare between Mobutu's army and the provincial government at Stanleyville supported by the Communists. Mobutu boasts strong support in Equator Province, to the west of Oriental Province. He has reinforced his troops in Equator.

The U.N. mission is not expected to recognize Gizenga's proclamation now.

Western diplomats said they have expected such a move by Gizenga ever since Lumumba was captured trying to reach Stanleyville and was brought back to Leopoldville.

When Lumumba fled from his guarded mansion in Leopoldville two weeks ago, many Western diplomats were convinced the Soviet bloc and some Afro-Asian governments were ready to give him immediate diplomatic recognition when he reached Stanleyville.

Lumumba never accepted his dismissal in September by Kasavubu. The Soviet bloc and some African nations strongly supported his defiance, while the Western powers recognized Mobutu's provisional government of commissioners.

Kennedy Chooses McNamara For Defense Secretary Post

Ford President Must Give Up $400,000 Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy has persuaded Robert S. McNamara, 44, to give up a $400,000-a-year job as president of Ford Motor Co. to serve as secretary of defense.

"I came to the conclusion that personal considerations must be subordinated to the best interests of the United States," McNamara told reporters Tuesday after Kennedy announced the Ford executive had agreed to accept the $25,000-a-year Cabinet post.

Both men were smiling as Kennedy—a year younger than McNamara—made the announcement from the steps of his Georgetown home.

Kennedy said he realized that McNamara—who became president of the giant Ford company only five weeks ago—was making a personal sacrifice. In addition to surrendering a big salary, McNamara said he will divest himself of big holdings of Ford stock.

The president-elect chose the occasion to give a strong sendoff to his secretary-designate, whom he said he met for the first time last Thursday.

Kennedy pledged effective leadership for the nation's all-important military system which he said will be second to none and "so strong it can defend the peace."

Is Republican

McNamara—who described himself as a registered Republican "but I vote as a political independent"—was the fifth of 10 Cabinet appointments to be made so far.

Another may be announced Wednesday, it was indicated after a day which saw high-ranking visitors from organized labor, agriculture and other fields shuttle in and out of the Kennedy home.

In picking a motor company leader to run the immense Defense Department, with its $40 billion budget, Kennedy followed the lead of President Eisenhower. The first secretary of defense in the Eisenhower administration was Charles E. Wilson, then president of General Motors Corp.

Like GM, Ford does a big contract business with the military.

McNamara made it clear he is divesting himself of 24,250 shares of Ford stock and an option on 30,000 more. In addition, he said he is disposing of 100 shares of Scott Paper Co. stock and stepping out as a director of the paper firm.

Cost Heavily

Presumably, these stock sales will cost him heavily in taxes. In getting rid of these holdings. McNamara will be sidestepping difficulties Wilson met after Eisenhower nominated him top man in the Pentagon. The Senate, which considered the nomination, demanded that Wilson divest himself of all stockholdings which might set up a conflict of interest, and Wilson complied.

Asked how long he plans to stay at the helm of the Defense Department, McNamara replied: "I will stay on as secretary of defense as long as my work is satisfactory to the administration."

Kennedy chipped in with a comment that all who accepted appointments should be willing to stay a long time.

It was disclosed he went to the Pentagon last Thursday and talked for some time with Thomas S. Gates, now holding the defense secretary's berth. Gates had been mentioned in speculation about who would get the Pentagon post.

Ahead of the announcement of McNamara's selection, Kennedy conferred with AFL-CIO President George Meany, Chairman Harold Cooley, D-N.C., of the House Agriculture Committee and others of influence.

Meany stalked away from the house, refusing to tell newsmen what went on, but it was assumed the still-to-be-filled post of secretary of labor figured in the discussions.

Possibility

A leading possibility for that job is Arthur Goldberg, the giant labor federation's general counsel.

Cooley was more talkative than Meany, saying he was definitely not a candidate for the agriculture secretary spot in the Cabinet. Cooley, who will have much to say about the fate of any Kennedy administration farm legislation, said Rep. W. R. Poage of Texas was the man he would like to see head the Agriculture Department.

Another caller was Ralph Bradley, president of the Illinois Farmers Union. He dodged saying whether he might like the farm post, but asserted he feels Kennedy is "deeply committed" to pick a secretary of agriculture from the Midwest.

The Cabinet so far, including McNamara:

Secretary of State—Dean Rusk, head of the Rockefeller Foundation and an old State Department hand under the Truman administration.

On Launching Pad

U.S. Moon Rocket Poised For Takeoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —A giant moon rocket stands poised on its pad, ready for another attempt Wednesday to launch the first U. S. lunar satellite.

Scientists made final preparations Tuesday to fire the towering Atlas-Able rocket on the exacting mission of propelling a 388-pound space craft aloft and guiding it into orbit about the moon, some 240,000 miles away.

The space craft, named Pioneer VI, is packed with electronic instruments designed to make the most extensive study ever attempted of lunar environment. They will collect and transmit information on radiation, magnetic fields, micrometeorites and other space properties.

This data is needed before man ventures forth to the moon. If he is not properly protected, deadly radiation would kill him before he got there. And a strong magnetic field could upset a space vehicle's guidance system and send it off course.

Favorable Time

The most favorable time for the launching is a five-day period starting now. The chance of success is greater in this period because the paths of the earth and the moon are most closely aligned as they orbit about the sun—and the sun therefore is not in a position to distort the rocket.

If the launching is not accomplished in this time, it will be postponed until the next optimum period, which occurs each 28 days.

The Atlas-Able is designed to push the space craft to the necessary 23,200-mile speed needed to put it on the proper path. Then a "start-and-stop" rocket in the payload will be commanded by ground signal to steer Pioneer VI to the moon.

The "start-and-stop" rocket—with two small thrust chambers jutting from the top and bottom of the satellite—can be fired six times, four to increase speed and two to slow it.

The reverse commands are scheduled to be issued when the space craft reaches a point about 4,400 miles from the moon. This will slow the velocity to about 2,800 miles an hour, enabling the vehicle to be drawn into the moon's gravitational field.

Special Trains Will Carry Deadly, N-Tipped Rockets

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Deadly, nuclear-tipped Minuteman missiles, rolling through the countryside on special trains, could be fired within 50 seconds of an alert, an Air Force general said Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. O. J. Ritland of Los Angeles, commander of the Ballistic Missile Division, told a news conference the solid-fuel Minuteman could be launched from any one of thousands of preselected rail sites.

About 150 of the intercontinental missiles will be carried on trains shuttling over the nation's railroads.

Ritland said each train would consist of about 13 cars 70 feet long. Four or five will contain the missiles and their launching equipment. The rest will house the crew and control mechanism.

Launch Train

The missile commander spoke to 50 U.S. rail executives gathered for their first look at a full-scale mockup of a Minuteman launch train. The Boeing Airplane Co. here is prime contractor for Minuteman, which is expected to be in combat readiness in 1962.

Lt. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of the Air Research and Development Command, also disclosed at the news conference that barges and freighters were being considered for ocean-going Minuteman launch sites, but he said he thought they might be too expensive compared with trains and underground silos.

Schriever said in an address before the news conference that an underground radio system for remote control and firing of the missiles has been developed.

"It will represent a virtually jam-proof communications network which is also highly invulnerable to sabotage," he said.

Eventually 450 of the solid-fuel ICBMs are to be stored in silos across the northern tier of states, 150 are to be carried on trains shuttling almost constantly over the nation's railroads.

Mobility

This mobility, Schriever said, will force the enemy "to the uneconomical position of having to expend many missiles for every one of ours he hopes to destroy."

The Air Force has previously estimated that 10,000 missiles would be needed to immobilize the U.S. Minuteman train fleet by wrecking its tracks.

Schriever said the underground radio-launch system, by eliminating costly networks of cables between silos and control centers, would save about $300,000 per missile.

Schriever said the system consists of a network of antennae buried a few feet underground adjacent to each control tower.

Schriever said the Air Force had been developing the system over the past two years.

First test launch of the Minuteman is expected in the next few weeks from a surface pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla. Launchings from railroad cars and silos are due later next year at the Cape and Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

DeGaulle Still Stands On Algeria Home Rule Policy

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle came home Tuesday night from his Algerian tour and announced he is standing by his home rule policy for the big North African territory, despite rioting there that left 123 dead.

He narrowly missed a new outbreak of rioting by both Algerian Nationalists and Frenchmen in Bone, his takeoff point from Algeria. French troops fired on Frenchmen there for the first time in five days of violence. Seven Algerians and two Frenchmen were killed.

"We have only one policy and it is necessary to follow it. It is the good one," De Gaulle told Cabinet members and deputies greeting him at the airport.

At the same time he dispatched a letter to Louis Joxe, Algerian affairs minister, saying cooperation between the European and Moslem communities is essential.

"All that I have just seen and heard in the course of my inspection has convinced me of this more firmly than ever," De Gaulle wrote. "To assure this cooperation, and to oppose all whose action tends to prevent it—this is the policy of France."

Cabinet Review

He called for a full-scale Cabinet review amid reports he plans to fire any ministers not fully behind his policies.

Behind him in Algeria, De Gaulle had left word for tough treatment of the leaders in the disorders that began with anti-De Gaulle riots by the Europeans and ended in pro-Nationalist riots by the Moslems. Although he never mentioned the riots while in Algeria, they are believed to have roused him to cold anger.

As De Gaulle flew across the Mediterranean, police rounded up 216 suspected troublemakers in Algiers. European settlers' leaders went underground in their determined campaign to keep Algeria part of France.

De Gaulle's parting plea to Algeria had been one for understanding between Moslems and Europeans.

"Without this I see only chaos,' he told the soldiers who saw him off at the Bone airfield. Algeria's one million Europeans are outnumbered 10-1 by the Moslems, and they feel independence would end their privileged status in Algeria.

Battle Continues

Just a few miles away in Bone, Foreign Legionnaires had just put down a European student demonstration, killing two and injuring 40 with submachine gun fire. In another part of the city, police fired on a Moslem mob, killing seven and wounding 12.

Most of the bloodshed took place in Algiers, where 96 were killed; in Oran, with 18 dead, and in Bone, with nine dead. Official figures for these cities also added up to 510 wounded, although many more wounded went unreported.

De Gaulle and the Cabinet will meet Thursday morning to review the Algerian situation. He is expected to continue his plans for a Jan. 8 referendum on his Algerian policies.

The referendum will ask voters in France and Algeria to approve final self-determination and the immediate installation of autonomous Algerian institutions. They are expected to vote yes by a comfortable majority.

Rusk Visits Future Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Rusk, top-ranking man in President-elect John F. Kennedy's Cabinet, visited his future office at the State Department Tuesday to begin boning up on the problems he will face.

He met for 40 minutes with veteran diplomat Loy Henderson, deputy undersecretary who is acting as head of the department in the absence of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, and Undersecretary Douglas Dillon.

Five Runaways Return To Warmth Of Orphanage

CLAYTON, N. C. (AP) — Five youngsters returned Tuesday to warm beds in the orphanage they ran away from 24 hours before—apparently little the worse for a night they spent huddled in the woods in bitter cold weather.

Several of the nearly 1,500 volunteers who had searched for the children through most of the night figured the children were lucky to be alive.

"I don't see why they didn't freeze to death," said Kenneth Johnson, a carpenter, who found the children—three girls and two boys — huddled together for warmth in the 14-degree weather.

One girl, Shirley Pearson, 13, said they ran away from the Knights of Pythias home because they had been mistreated. She said a matron had whipped her brother, Jimmie, 11, and hit him over the head.

Later, after the children had returned to the home, Shirley said she had not been mistreated.

She said she had no thought of leaving until Tula Faye Tester, 13, another of the runaways, came to the house about a week ago.

"She started talking about it," said Shirley, "and I got it in my head."

"I got homesick," said Tula Faye. "I said I wanted to go home, and Shirley said she wanted to go home, too."

Jimmie Pearson told reporters the spanking he received at Thanksgiving had nothing to do with his leaving. He said he had virtually forgotten about it.

"The girls wanted me to go with them," he said. "I didn't want to leave."

The other two runaways were Dennis Walker, 8, and Nina Walker, 6, half-brother and sister of the Tester girl.

Instead of returning from school in Clayton on a school bus as usual, the children walked off and wandered into a thickly wooded area about 2½ miles east of Clayton, a community 25 miles east of Raleigh.

John Charles Thomas, 68, Famed Opera Star, Dies

APPLE VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—Famed baritone John Charles Thomas, star of opera, concerts and radio during his 45-year career, died Tuesday of cancer at his home. He was 68.

He had been ill for months and in a coma for days. He underwent surgery, described at the time as minor, at the UCLA Medical Center March 18, 1959. Death was attributed to intestinal cancer.

Thomas, one of the most popular singers of his day, was known for the deep, rich quality of his voice. It matched his manly appearance —broad shoulders, huge chest. On his many concert tours he held audiences rapt for two hours or more, working through a repertoire ranging from operatic arias to Negro spirituals.

Part of his charm was his dramatics. His experience on the stage gave him background for convincing enactment of the stories he sang.

Thomas and his wife, Dorothy, moved to this desert community northeast of Los Angeles in 1954. For a time he managed a radio station here.

In 1957 they built a fashionable, ranch-type home overlooking the Apple Valley Golf Course.

Thomas made his farewell concert tour, although it was not billed as such, when he appeared in about 50 cities in 1952-53. For several years prior to that he had been devoting himself to teaching in Los Angeles.

He made his first professional appearance with a Henry W. Savage road company in London, Ont., in late 1912. He soon became a matinee idol in Broadway musicals with many women admirers who exclaimed over his blond hair, fine features and athletic build.

But Thomas complained that singing the same music day after day was distasteful and said that he only stayed in musicals to get enough money to do concerts.

Wasn't Aware Of Carbo Role Says Liston

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heavyweight challenger Charles (Sonny) Liston swore Tuesday he does not know that any underworld characters take a slice of his ring earnings. If he finds they do, he said, he'd get rid of them.

Liston, who carries a long police record in St. Louis as well as a dazzling 30-1 boxing record, told Senate investigators he was unaware that either Frank (Blinky) Palermo of Philadelphia or John J. Vitale of St. Louis acted as his undercover manager.

The Senate unit hopes to drive hoodlums from the prize fight business. It has received testimony that mobster Frank Carbo, racket figure Palermo and ex-convict Vitale split with two others the manager's end of Liston's purses.

Not until Tuesday, testified the top-ranked contender for Floyd Patterson's crown, had he heard that a former manager still gets a cut of his receipts. Subcommittee investigator Robert Turely said then that Frank Mitchell, who managed Liston until 1958, acknowledged privately in October that he received about 25 per cent. Thomas Williams, another staff member, described it as going "to the St. Louis group."

Mitchell declined to answer questions when he was called before the subcommittee last week, pleading the Fifth Amendment's guarantee against possible self incrimination.

Palermo, the pint-sized Philadelphian whose name has threaded the prize fight hearings, preceded Liston as a witness but refused to yield any information. He also invoked the Fifth Amendment.

Palermo, among others, faces trial in Los Angeles next February on charges of attempting to muscle in on the earnings of former welterweight Don Jordan.

Carbo is to be brought to Washington from his New York prison cell Wednesday for questioning by the committee. He is serving two years for undercover matchmaking and managing.

Agricultural Extension Program

THE AGRICULTURAL Extension Service has outlined a new program of activity for Monroe County, Arthur E. Ifft, county agent announced yesterday.

The new project will start early in 1961 (about Feb. 15 to March 15) with each community having an opportunity to participate.

This activity will be part of a statewide effort entitled: "Pennsylvania Growth" and will consist of a series of four discussion meetings dealing with the social and economic problems facing this county as well as other parts of state. The plans call for small groups of interested persons (5 to 10) to meet in homes for a series of 4 weekly discussions. Leaflets called "Fact Guides," containing information and discussion questions will be provided for each participant. These materials are now being prepared by the specialists of the Cooperative Extension Service at the Pennsylvania State University.

Ifft says that the first "Fact Guides" leaflet to be used at the first meeting will deal with the areas showing what is happening to our economy and why we must plan for the future if we are to have satisfactory economic growth. The second discussion meeting will stress the importance of knowing the facts about our communities and emphasize the importance of educational and special training for tomorrow's employed.

Natural, Human

The third discussion period will deal with the natural and human resources and their importance to county development. The final discussion will deal with the topic "How Do We Go To Grow?" This will have discussions for organizing for community action and will help to summarize the series of meetings.

Any interested individual in an organization or a group not in an organization may secure the necessary materials by contacting the Home Economics Supervisor Miss Margaret MacLaren or County Agent A. E. Ifft whose offices are located on the second floor of the Post Office Building, Stroudsburg.

Sub-Freezing Temperatures Wraps State Into Blanket

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SUB-FREEZING temperatures wrapped Pennsylvania in an icy blanket Tuesday as the state, still buffeted by strong winds, dug out slowly from the paralyzing effects of a devastating pre-Christmas storm.

Industries and stores were expected to be back to normal operation Wednesday. Some schools, too, will reopen. Travel difficulties remained, however.

Highway crews plowed and cindered main arteries and rural roads in an effort to untie the state's gigantic traffic knot. Progress was slow but steady. Most main roads were passable.

Biggest obstacles were stalled autos and trucks that blocked the road-clearing efforts of man and machine. And the bitter, freezing temperatures scarcely made the efforts easier.

At least 20 deaths were attributed to the storm and cold weather.

There was one brigh spot: a weather bureau forecast of continued clear skies—with no sign of snow—for the rest of the week, and an abatement of the chilling winds that continued Tuesday to mock the shovels and plows as they rebuilt the man-sized drifts.

Many kids who frolicked for two days in the snow go back to their classes Wednesday. But in Philadelphia, and some of its suburbs, the unexpected but nevertheless enjoyable holiday will continue for another day.

Retail Stores

Retail stores, noticeably absent of Yuletide shoppers as the state recovered from the crippling effects of Sunday and Monday's storm, hoped to make recovery.

The Chamber of Commerce of Greater Philadelphia—it was this area that was hardest hit by the nearly 15-inch snowfall—estimated that Monday's business loss in center city alone was over $2 million.

To recoup some of the business Philadelphia's major downtown department stores and speciality shops decided to remain open Saturday night.

State police, citing the below-freezing temperatures—the mercury dipped to 28 below zero at Siegel in northwestern Pennsylvania's Jefferson County—urged motorists to drive only if necessary. And, if it was, to make sure the vehicles were equipped with chains or snow tires.

Western sections of the state, less severely affected by the heavy snow, reported the lowest temperatures. Nearly everywhere in the west the mercury went below zero.

Philadelphia reported a low of 8, the coldest Dec. 13 since 1895 when it was 13.

The state's largest city still had problems getting its vast public transit system back into full operation. Blocked streets prevented normal runs of trolleys and buses. Only the subway-elevated system ran without interruption all through the storm.

Philadelphia's Street Commissioner, David M. Smallwood, added an unhappy post-storm comment in explaining why his department was slow in plowing operations. Smallwood said streets went unplowed for hours because officials hoped to save $30,000.

Smallwood explained that the Weather Bureau predicted a fall of only four inches, and never publicly revised that forecast. Thus Smallwood delayed for almost 12 hours conversion of trash trucks into emergency plows.

Railroads were operating normally. In the early hours of the storm the railroads were running late, but they never stopped.

Back To Normal

But airlines and interstate buses had halted service. These were back to normal with roads and airports cleared.

More stories about the weather came to light as the storm's remains were shoved unceremoniously to the side of the road.

Kane, the McKean County community often called "The Icebox of Pennsylvania," lost its unofficial title. It reported a low of 17 below. It was two degrees colder in Polk, and 11 chillier in Siegel.

Eighty criminal trials in Philadelphia were postponed Monday when not only the defendants, but their lawyers, failed to make an appearance.

Officials at Moyamensing Prison said its van bringing prisoners got stalled in the snow.

A 27-year-old Lancaster County woman delivered her own baby when her car got stuck in a big snow drift early Tuesday, just outside Ephrata. The birth was completed on the front seat of the auto.

Taylor Confers With GOP Leaders On High Position

By HERB LINNEN

HARRISBURG (AP) — Sen. M. Harvey Taylor conferred for several hours with Senate Republican leaders Tuesday amid speculation that his supporters would try to win him the post of floor leader.

But Taylor, emerging from the talks, said he "wouldn't even consider" taking the post in the 1961 legislative session. He added he was supporting the re-election of Sen. James S. Berger, Potter, who was floor leader in the 1959 and 1960 sessions.

Taylor, so speculation went, would be named floor leader, by title, and then would designate a colleague to actually enunciate GOP policy on the floor.

Republicans will pick Senate leaders here next Monday. An organization session called for Monday night was postponed by the bad weather which kept 11 of the 25 GOP lawmakers out of town.

Power Play

It was after the postponement that speculation about a power play to put the 84-year-old Harrisburger into the floor leadership popped up in Senate GOP circles.

Berger conferred with Taylor but left the meeting before other legislative leaders departed. Asked about the report concerning Taylor and whether the topic came up at their meeting, Berger said:

"I don't know anything about it and we didn't discuss anything of the kind."

Taylor said the conference dealt with policy matters that would come up at next Monday's meeting. He didn't elaborate.

Others present for the discussion were Sens. Robert Fleming, Allegheny, caucus chairman; Edward J. Kessler, Lancaster, caucus secretary, Henry J. Propert, Montgomery, and George B. Stevenson, Clinton.

Kessler also said that the matters discussed concerned policy and would be ironed out at Monday's session.

Asked about Taylor's possible role, he replied:

"I personally feel Senator Taylor should get some recognition (in the next session)."

He said he supported the idea of making Taylor chairman of a newly created Senate GOP Policy Committee. He envisioned the job as giving Taylor authority to take over some of the powers now held by the floor leader.

However, Kessler denied knowing of any move to unseat Berger. Nor would he elaborate on what powers might be given to Taylor in such a situation.

Speculation

There was speculation, however, that Taylor was particularly interested in retaining his seat on the General State Authority Board. He is due to lose it when Democrats take over organizational control of the Senate and oust him as president pro tempore after 15 years.

Berger, as floor leader, would sit on the board but he is empowered to appoint someone else to represent him. That is what happened in the House where Rep. Albert W. Johnson, GOP floor leader, designated Rep. W. Stuart Helm, policy committee chairman, to represent him on the board in the last two legislative sessions.

Berger said Taylor hadn't discussed this possibility with him either.

Police Chief Wants Inquest

READING, Pa. (AP)—Russell W. Wren, police chief of nearby Oley Township, said Tuesday he wants a coroner's jury to conduct an inquest into the death of Milan K. Spatz.

Wren said it's hard to believe that Spatz committed suicide Dec. 3 in the woods behind his home in Manatwaney, Berks County.

The state crime laboratory, after an investigation, listed the death as suicide.

Spatz, 49, was clutching his shotgun when found. Five blasts from the gun entered his body and Wren said that the gun has to be reloaded after each shot.

"It is possible that he might have committed suicide," said Wren, "because none of the shots hit any vital spots that would have meant instant death."

Christmas Opens In Mountains

NEWFOUNDLAND — The Christmas season officially opened in this area Tuesday night with the lighting of the community Christmas tree by the Greene-Dreher Woman's Club.

The program included a collection for the club's project, "Meals For Millions," and an entertainment by the Brownies of Troop Two, which is sponsored by the club.

Mrs. Olga Manhart presided at the session as president of the unit.

Court Asked For Reversal

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Justice Department said Tuesday it has asked the State Superior Court to reverse four Luzerne County court opinions on driver's license suspensions for out-of-state violations.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Elmer Bolla said the cases questioned the states right to suspend the license of a driver after he had been suspended for a violation in another state.

Bolla cited three cases where the Superior Court had upheld the right to suspend on out-of-state violation where the other state did not order a suspension.

He said there was no difference between these cases and those where the other state does suspend and no question of double penalty.

"That has nothing to do with it," the state attorney said.

He pointed out that the state motor vehicle code gives the secretary of revenue the power to suspend a driver's license, after a hearing, upon receipt of notice of an out-of-state conviction which would be subject to suspension in Pennsylvania.

Bolla said it did not matter if the person had received numerous suspensions in the other state.

Four-Year-Old Asphyxiated

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A four-year-old was asphyxiated Monday after swallowing a toy balloon. Emergency surgery, and the massaging of her stopped heart, failed to save her.

The unusual accident to Jane Marie Frustaci of suburban Belmont Hills occurred in the living room of her home. She was rushed to Lankenau Hospital. The child responded briefly to the heart massage but succumbed several hours later.

Depot Unit Rescues 2 Hunters

SGT. ROBERT Holloway of the Tobyhanna Signal Corps Depot rescue squad yesterday morning located two Scranton-area hunters missing overnight with temperatures near zero.

Kenneth Wagner, 31, South Scranton, and Chester Cessarini, 21, Dunmore, were found walking in the woods about three-fourths of a mile off Route 611 west of Swiftwater.

They told their rescuers that they had walked through the woods all night. They were warmly clad and after inspection by a hospital corpsman who accompanied the rescue squad, the pair left for their homes.

Long Search

State Police of the Mt. Pocono barracks and Coolbaugh Township Volunteer Fire Co. members in addition to the rescue squad had searched throughout the night for them.

Members of the squad, under command of First Lt. James Fitzpatrick Jr., had worked in relays all night as the hunt continued. The group was divided into three units, with two resting while the third searched.

Irked At U. S. Ecuador Head Praises Khru

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, angered by the U. S. position in an old border dispute between Peru and Ecuador, has begun praising Soviet Premier Khrushchev as a great statesman and world leader. His minister of government proposed establishment of relations with Moscow.

Addressing a Guayaquil rally of 50,000 Monday night, Velasco Ibarra hailed Khrushchev's peaceful coexistence line. Following the rally demonstrators hurled rocks through windows at the U. S. consulate building in Guayaquil.

Earlier, a shouting mob destroyed the U. S. consul's private auto in Guayaquil.

Velasco Ibarra mixed in his Khrushchev compliments with declarations he will take Ecuador's dispute with Peru to the United Nations.

Ecuador's current wave of anger—most of it directed at the United States—was touched off by a foreign ation decision last week upholding a 1942 treaty that set the boundary between Peru and Ecuador in a disputed area of the headwaters of the Amazon.

Ecuador denounced the treaty as invalid and said the four guarantors supporting it—the United States, Argentina, Brazil and Chile—"did not heed the voice of justice."

Minister of Government Arujo Hidalgo told demonstrators in Quito "the United States must kill us to impose on us the resolution of the guarantors."

Hidalgo declared, "My personal opinion about relations with Russia is that we must establish these relations soon, for this is the only recourse we have left."

Hearings Scheduled

HARRISBURG (AP)—Hearings on Bell Telephone Co. rates in Pennsylvania will be held in Philadelphia next month, the Public Utility Commission announced Tuesday.

The company's rates have been under investigation by the PUC for several months.

Commissioner P. Stephen Stahlnecker, Philadelphia, will preside at the hearings Jan. 17-18, in the State Office Building.

With him will be Commission examiner Jay Eiseman, also of Philadelphia.

The commission ordered the inquiry after studies of Bell's financial data indicated what the commission termed an excessive return.

Bell was asked to submit proposals to reduce its rates voluntarily for its 2,577,000 customers. However, the utility contended its current earnings were not producing an excessive return on the company's investment.

The City of Pittsburgh and officials of two unions of Bell Telephone workers have asked to intervene in the case.

All Legionnaires and Auxiliary members in the area are invited to attend and participate in the distribution of gifts.

Court Declares Heller Not Guilty

A MONROE County Court jury debated only 45 minutes yesterday afternoon before returning a verdict of not guilty in the case of Henry Heller, 44, of 39 Stofflet St., Stroudsburg, charged with aggravated assault and battery.

Heller was arrested July 9 and charged with inflicting a knife wound on the left forearm of Peter Gardner, 27, of 163 Elizabeth St. East Stroudsburg, during an argument at Heller's home.

The jury, returning its verdict before Judge Fred W. Davis, had almost as much trouble reaching a decision as to who should pay the costs as it had with the original not guilty verdict.

Prior to the jury's deliberation, Judge Davis told them they were to do nothing about costs if they brought in a guilty verdict.

Faced Costs

If the verdict were not guilty, Judge Davis told them, they could place all the costs on the defendant; all on the prosecutor—in this case Patrolman Russell Decker of the Stroudsburg police; divide the costs between defendant and prosecutor in any percentage they chose, or place all the costs on the county.

When it was apparent they had misunderstood his instructions, Judge Davis repeated them and sent the jury out again. Approximately 15 minutes later, they returned and placed the costs on Heller.

Dist. Atty. James R. Marsh represented the Commonwealth, while John J. Pentz Jr., was the attorney for Heller.

Judge Davis sent Heller back to Monroe County Jail until the costs are paid.

Earlier, another jury convicted Richard Jerome Brands, 28, of 728 Main St., Stroudsburg, on a charge of larceny of a motor vehicle. Judge Davis deferred sentencing.

Brands was accused of taking a car owned by Frank Bachman, Stroudsburg RD 1, from the parking lot at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Home last October.

Anthony Caykosky, 50, Greentown, charged with drunken driving, pleaded guilty and was fined $300 and costs by Judge Davis.

In Contempt

Judge Davis Monday found two area men in contempt of court for not complying with support orders.

George Ladlee Jr., Bushkill, brought in on a bench warrant for an arrearage in support payments for his five-year-old child, told the court he was without work. He was ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings and the warrant was suspended for two weeks or until he gets work.

Harold E. Shock, East Stroudsburg, in arrears $630 for support of his wife, was told to pay the costs, make up the arrearage and start regular payments.

Another support action involving Boyd Williams, East Stroudsburg, was taken under advisement. He had previously been ordered to pay $30 a week for support of his wife and three children and has a $450 arrearage.

VFW Elects New Aide

GEORGE Straka of 939 Chipperfield Dr., Stroudsburg, a former commander of Pennsylvania's 20th District, was named last night as quartermaster of Thomas P. Lamber Post 2540, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Straka will fill the unexpired term of the late Frank J. Weller, who died recently. Weller's term expires in April.

The post also endorsed three of its members for the post of Veterans' Affairs officer for Monroe County, a position Weller held. The post went on record as saying any of the three—Robert Brinn, Stroudsburg; Thomas J. Carmella, East Stroudsburg, and Howard Doll, Canadensis—is capable of handling the job.

To Continue

The post also voted to continue its annual Christmas welfare program for needy veterans and their families in cooperation with the Salvation Army.

Victor Morman, membership chairman, reported 495 members have paid 1961 dues, about 20 behind the same date for last year.

A tribute was paid to Weller who, in addition to being post quartermaster at the time of his death, was a former commander of the post and of the 20th District.

Official Bay State Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Massachusetts came up with its official presidential vote Tuesday, leaving only Illinois and Rhode Island to complete the national count.

Counting official results from 48 states and unofficial totals from the two missing states, Sen. John F. Kennedy's national popular vote plurality over Vice President Richard M. Nixon was down to 113,554 in a total vote of 68,819,348.

The tabulation:

Kennedy	34,220,496
Nixon	34,106,942
Others	491,910

Nixon picked up 1,256 votes in the official Massachusetts count compared with previous unofficial totals. Kennedy, in his home state, polled 1,487,174 to Nixon's 976,750 for a plurality of 510,424.

'Y' Approves Membership Drive Plans

MONROE County YMCA's board of directors last night approved plans for the annual membership campaign during the last two weeks of January and the first week in February.

It also voted, in a separate action, to terminate the contract of Mrs. Inger Miller, program director, effective tomorrow. The move was approved as a means of reducing the operating costs of the association.

Mrs. Miller will receive three weeks of vacation pay which the personnel committee reported was due her under the contract.

Present YMCA staff members and part-time employes will take over the duties previously handled by Mrs. Miller.

Jack Haswell, circulation manager of The Daily Record, was introduced as the membership drive chairman. He said a goal of $8,000 had been set at a meeting with the membership committee headed by Mrs. Alberta Yutz.

The campaign organization will include the chairman, an assistant chairman yet to be named, four division leaders, four team captains for each division and four workers for each team.

In addition, a group headed by Arthur Trogner will assist by selling sustaining memberships in what is known as the Century Club. This is limited to persons who contribute $100 or more to the drive.

Richard Frantz was appointed chairman of YMCA Week, Jan. 22-29, and Gordon Coy as a member of his committee.

John R. Wilson, general secretary, reported an increase in gymnasium, swimming pool and other activities during November, following a lull brought about by unseasonably good weather.

$1,900 Raised

Trogner disclosed that approximately $1,900 was raised by the East Stroudsburg Exchange Club at the Home Fair held in November. The money is being turned over to the general fund of the YMCA. The directors extended a vote of thanks to the Exchange Club and also to the MORA Club members who assisted in setting up the large number of exhibits.

Richard Lee, president of the Mount Pocono Branch, reported a membership of 96 boys and girls in the branch YMCA. Four different groups—two composed of boys and two of girls—meet weekly at the Mount Pocono Fire Hall and engage in a program of supervised activities, Lee said. The branch is under the direction of a 16-member board of managers and is self-sustaining.

Thomas Kistler, president of the county board, appointed Jesse Pierson, Allen Sterner and Joseph Small as members of the nominating committee to select a slate of nine new directors.

One of the vacancies is being created by the resignation of Edward Telling, who is leaving the community to accept a new position in Cortland, N. Y.

Mystery Death In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A Park Avenue elevator operator—an eccentric who disdained his job as well as his own name and liked to pass himself off as "Roland Rolando, animal researcher"—was found dead Tuesday in his zoo-like Manhattan apartment. A giant jungle snake was slithering along the floor.

The cause of his death was as much of a mystery to police as was his off-the-job activities with jungle life.

The left ear of the man, identified by police as Fritz Schmaltz, 57, appeared to have been chewed by some animal.

Patrolman Matthew Stiasty, armed with an ax, had to kill the snake, a 14-foot python, before Schmaltz' body could be removed to a morgue. He apparently had been dead several days.

First Real Christmas Story Revealed Here

THINGS are getting tough all over. The first real-spirited Christmas story that hits the newsrooms has a label attached to it: "Do Not Publish, Please."

The whole story sprang from this claim in the Daily Record's lost and found column:

"Lost — Christmas money. Near 1st Stroudsburg National Bank in yellow envelope. $51. Fri. Eve. Reward. WY 2-4486."

This ad in itself held no credence for a good story, but it was later learned that the money had been found—and returned. Some people have it. Sometimes too much of it. Honesty, that is.

After many hours of tracing down the story, it unfolded that Willard Detrick, of Main St., Stroudsburg, an employe of LeBar's Drug Store found the missing money. When he learned that the story was to be in the newspaper, he was "confused" his mother, Mrs. Margaret Lambert said.

"He (Willard) wants no publicity," she said, "the money has been returned to its proper owner and everyone is happy," she continued. "Can't we just forget the whole thing?" she queried.

It was a good story—honesty, Christmas time, people happy, all this and more. The story all but broke loose on its own account.

Deed Done

"We don't want any big hullaboo," was the way Mrs. Lambert put it. "Why must it be mentioned, the deed has been done and everyone is happy," she continued.

We told her that it isn't only for publicity, but that the story will impress others. It might possibly make some people feel the warmth of honesty, especially during the Yuletide season.

The mother persisted in her request. "Willard is confused," she said, "he asks that the story be kept out of the papers.

It was only after several calls and much persuasion, that the story was finally given the O.K. to write. It is difficult to comprehend the motives, but they were sincere. Only deep understanding, perhaps, can lead to the family's belief in squashing the pending story.

Lost By Teen-ager

The small yellow envelope was lost by Dorothy Kresge, 16, of Stroudsburg RD 2, last Friday evening while Christmas shopping.

The Stroud Union High School junior had worked during the summer in order to save some Christmas money. But she lost the $51 and the Yule season was depressing to the point of despair.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Kresge, decided to run an "ad" in the newspaper. It was also broadcast over the local radio station.

Detrick found the small bank envelope around 10 o'clock Friday night while returning home from work.

Just A Habit

"It's just a habit I have of looking down on the pavement," he said when telling how he spotted the envelope.

Detrick went home and informed his mother of his discovery. They decided to hold the money until it was claimed by someone.

Detrick said it wasn't until late Monday afternoon that he got a chance to read the Daily Record. In it, he looked up the Lost and Found column and noticed the claim submitted by the Kresge family.

Arrangements were made for the Kresges to pick up the money at the drug store.

Said Mrs. Kresge, "it's nice to know honest people are still around."

Whew! Now everyone IS happy.

No Injuries In Accident

NO ONE was injured in a two-car accident at 9:28 p.m. yesterday on N. Fifth St., near Thomas St., in Stroudsburg.

Borough police identified the operators as Arnold Bush, 17, East Stroudsburg RD 2, and Clarence Transue Jr., 18, of 933 Queen St., Stroudsburg.

Slippery conditions of the road contributed to the accident, a sideswiping, police said. Damage was estimated at $375 to Bush's car and $250 to the Transue vehicle.

Mrs. Kellington, 67, Dies

MRS. EMILY B. Kellington, 67, of 510 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, died suddenly last night at her home.

Mrs. Kellington was the daughter of the late Percy and Tessa Croasdale.

Surviving in addition to her husband, Robert A. Kellington at home, are one niece, Mrs. Sarah Stohl, and two nephews, William and Joseph Croasdale.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the Dunkelberger and Westbrock Funeral Home.

Soviet Deceit

While President Eisenhower and his successor, John F. Kennedy, were reaffirming this country's dedication to peace and freedom for all peoples, Communism's leaders were distributing their 1960 blueprint for the world's future.

Included in the 22,000-word manifesto from Moscow are the usual distortions and outright falsehoods by which traditional Marxism changes white into black and wrong to right. New ones have been added to meet changing conditions within and without the Communist camp since the 1957 edition.

Thus, "peaceful coexistence" receives renewed lip service—unless "resistance by reactionary circles" makes more nonpeaceful methods necessary.

In this respect, the reputed differences between Moscow and Peiping are papered over, but the occupied neighbors of both know from experience how little the words mean.

With similar oversight of fact, the manifesto declares communism to be nonexportable—this in the fact of the increasing flow of Sino-Soviet arms and technicians to the scenes of potential revolution.

The arms race is blamed on monopolists who control the capitalist countries, but the existence and use of the largest armies in the world by Russia and Red China are ignored.

With a vigorous twist of truth, all Communist parties are held to be equal and independent — except that Yugoslavia is less equal than most for its transgressions of independence.

And to the hundreds of millions in the underdeveloped nations of Africa, Asia and South America, the manifesto speaks temptingly of abundance once production is in the hands of the workers.

These are the false promises and deceits against which Mr. Kennedy's incoming administration must compete. Unity at home and among the still free people of the world will provide the basis for deeds to outsell the 22,000 words from Moscow.

Election Abuses

Millions of Americans are suddenly awakening to the fact that their elections are open to intolerable abuses, both of inefficiency and dishonesty.

The fact that a month after the election the vote has not been counted in scores of precincts underscores the inefficiency. (We are not talking about any recount; the original count has not been completed.)

The empty ballot-storing boxes, broken seals, and other irregularities turning up in Chicago illustrate the potentials of dishonesty.

It has taken an unusually close national election to jolt Americans enough to stir nationwide demands for reform. Too often in the past abuses have been too easily dismissed as local matters.

It is still true that election laws—and administration—depends primarily on the states. But it has now become starkly plain that election abuses can have national results.

We do not counsel hasty federal legislation. But certainly if slums and schools are of legitimate national concern, elections which affect the choice of national officials are even more manifestly so.

And the national interest so affected should at the very least be expressed in opinion which will support reform movements in the states. We should say also that the effort should look to permanent reform more than to any partisan advantage in the immediate situation.

The most basic improvement in the handling of ballots does, however, depend in large measure on effective party organization at the precinct level. In one-party areas the election machinery is often so much under the control of one side that opposition checking on it to insure fairness becomes highly difficult.

Poll watchers may be lacking. Counting may be in the bosses' control. Even voting machines can be misused. Too often antiquated pen-and-pencil, horse-and-buggy methods foster delays and inaccuracies.

Too often the boxes in which ballots are stored are not properly sealed or are under control of those most interested in altering their contents. Recounts usually only indicate that something is wrong, are unable to say what the correct vote was.

Each party, by better work at the precinct level, can help protect its own—and the public's interest—in an honest ballot.

The public can also help itself by rejecting the cynical "everybody-does-it" attitude. Two wrongs do not make a right. Independent, nonpartisan insistence on blasting out delays and dishonesties wherever they occur is essential—Christian Science Monitor.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Argument Of Growth

The argument of growth is specious unless one considers facts. The growth advocates use the steel industry as an example of the lack of growth because presently this industry works, they say, at about 55 per cent of capacity. This is taken to mean that the United States is standing still, or even worse, has gone backwards.

In 1938, the United States had an ingot capacity of 80,000,000 tons; in 1960, the ingot capacity is 148,000,000 tons. This enormous increase is due to the fact that steel capacity was increased to meet war conditions, to supply not only the United States but all its allies, including Soviet Russia.

Subsequent to World War II, the United States not only supplied its own needs, its allies' needs, but also its former foes, and some of the so-called neutral nations. In addition the United States assisted some countries such as Soviet Russia, Brazil and India to establish modern steel plants.

Thus, this country built up competitors for steel, which is not unusual. The British have done the same by the sale of textile machinery to their competitors until the British lost a market that had been exclusively theirs.

What has actually happened to the United States is that it owns a competent standby plant to be used as necessity requires. It is not to be expected that if we help bring competing plants into existence those plants will not sell steel in competition with us.

Nexertheless, in 1938, production amounted to 31,750,000 tons, which was about 39.6 per cent of capacity, whereas in 1960, the American plants are producing 100,000,000 tons of steel which is 65 per cent of capacity. (The 1960 figures are estimates based on 10 months.)

The reason 1938 is taken for comparison is that it was the last non-war year. In 1939, World War II was at first imminent and then occurred. Thus, it was the beginning of an unusual period during which the demands upon the United States were extraordinary and remained so for many years.

In 1938, the steel industry employed 360,000 persons; in 1960, 465,000.

During the campaign, the argument of growth was given an altogether false over-emphasis. The figures which I here provide establish that growth has taken place.

However, a market for 100 percent of production does not exist and cannot, with reason, be expected to exist. What is to become of the stand-by plant and equipment is a social and political problem.

Analyses of other industries will establish that stand-by plants exist in practically all of them that have to do with war. These stand-by plants cannot be employed to monopolize the steel market of the world without damaging other countries to such a degree that we damage ourselves.

There is an old argument that if goods are produced, they will be consumed, that there is no limit to consumption. While this was discussed at great length, pro and con, during the Depression, it has been established by experience that the limit to consumption is price.

No nation can afford to purchase more than it can [illegible] to pay for in some manner. Even the give-away programs involved political payments which are often resented more than high-price money payments. When commodities are exchanged among countries with a relatively similar standard of living, price is not as great a factor as when the competition is in a low standard of living market.

For instance, in such a market, the United States Steel Corporation would find it difficult to compete profitably against the Skoda Works of Czechoslovakia, because the U. S. wage and tax cost puts a high price on goods, whereas Skoda need only put a political price on goods which means that they can be given away for nothing if political purpose so dictates.

When we speak of American goods outpricing themselves in world markets, we do not include commodities which receive a subsidy out of the taxpayers' earnings through military or economic aid.

However, this load cannot continue because it is beginning to stifle enterprise and forces upon us a cartelization of production and exchange. Economic operations are very complex because they involve many persons, places and techniques.

To simplify them by assuming that short-cuts will achieve what step-by-step methods cannot is an error. If the United States stockpiled steel as it does wheat, our poverty would increase.

The Pennsylvania Story

Fiscal Insanity

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Pennsylvania's taxpaying purse strings may be thrown wide open during the upcoming 1961 session of the Legislature.

Whether this will — or will not — be the case rests pretty much with Pennsylvania's battered Republican blocs in both House and Senate.

There is growing sentiment among many rank and file GOP lawmakers as they lay strategy plans for the upcoming session to let the Democratic Lawrence what it wants on the fiscal front —that is, not hold the purse strings on a tight leash as they have in past sessions with Democratic administrations.

Republican legislative thinking —most certainly justifiable from almost any viewpoint — runs something along these lines:

Within the past six years under Democratic administrations, budget cuts have been engineered by anti-administration Republican lawmakers holding the upper hand of control in the Senate (in the House of Representatives too in the 1957 session), and as one nettled Republican lawmaker put it: "To what avail?"

The point at which he was driving of course was the fact that after six years of holding through Democratic administration budget cuts: "What's the use? We lost our shirt and shoes at the polls November 8!"

Most certainly it is a point well worth taking — and one which disturbed Republican lawmakers are taking seriously. The attitude of many at this point is simply: if paying more taxes is what Pennsylvania taxpayers want, why stand in the way?

It is of course most difficult to conceive of anyone chafing at the bit in a frenzied desire to pay more taxes than necessary — other than those of a fine philanthropic bent.

Yet — if the results of last month's election which saw Republicans lose control of the Senate and the two state fiscal offices of Auditor General and State Treasurer can be accepted as any sign, then this is it.

It certainly isn't too complicated a picture. For example when Pennsylvania's near $2 billion budget was drafted by the Democratic Lawrence Administration during the 1959 session, antiadministration Republican lawmakers chipped around $40 million from the Governor's original budget submission.

The same pattern was followed during the two budget sessions in the preceding Democratic Leader Administration — and yet it was Pennsylvania Republicans who lost heavily at the polls last month!

Certainly under the circumstances GOP lawmakers can obtain a rather strong sense of justification for throwing up their hands in disgust.

As the 1961 session broods around the corner, those then are the salient thoughts going through their minds.

The House of Representatives for 1961 will be in Democratic administration hands by a seatage of 110 to 100. In the Senate the count is split evenly 25-25. It requires 26 votes to pass legislation in the upper chamber.

Support obviously must be forthcoming from the GOP side. On increasing expenditures and taxes should they again exercise restraint as they have before — when it apparently isn't appreciated by Pennsylvania's taxpaying public, if results at the polls can be accepted as any guide?

It is doubtful. Apparently GOP lawmakers are becoming fed up with being made the goat and losing their wool too. From the taxpayer's standpoint alone, the 1961 session should be considerably more than passing interest!

Reports From Congress

Need Water Management

By Congressional Quarterly

(Editor's Note — This is the second of three articles discussing the Nation's water problems.)

Washington — Water management — that's the key to meeting the Nation's increasing demands for water, according to experts throughout the country.

Water consumption in the United States currently averages about 250 billion gallons a day. By 1980, daily water consumption will be up to 600 billion gallons a day — perhaps higher.

All levels of government have begun to look for better methods of water supply management. This is necessary because so much of the available water is denied their use due to waste by pollution, evaporation and runoff.

Water management ranges from proper control of the supply to proper use and re-use;

It means construction of multi-purpose dams to capture and put to work as much water as possible from the Nation's rivers — large and small. These dams, now the backbone of the program, mean increased water storage, flood control, hydro-electric production and recreation facilities.

Good management also means developing and putting to use new supplies of water such as the conversion of saline water into high quality, potable water and control of the weather to make it rain over arid areas. And it means cutting down on pollution, which is rapidly becoming a critical problem for many large metropolitan areas.

Multi-purpose Dam — Experts agree that an effective water conservation program must be based on the development of the river basin — and that generally the best way to develop the river basin is through wider use of the multi-purpose dam. In any given basin, a river or complex of rivers is the central source of water supply, such as the upper Mississippi or the Ohio Rivers.

Two of the best examples of the multi-purpose dam in the United States are the Tennessee Valley and San Luis River projects — the former more than 20 years old; the latter recently authorized by Congress.

During its 20 years, the Tennessee Valley Authority has built more than 20 dams. Its reservoirs can store 22 million acre-feet (an acre-foot is one acre one foot deep) of water and its flood control system can store nearly 12 million acre-feet of flood waters. Its hydro-electric and steam plants have a combined capacity of 10.3 billion kilowatts.

The Federal Government's San Luis project, which will probably be constructed jointly with California, when completed will have a reservoir capacity of up to 2.1 million acre-feet. This water will be divided primarily between irrigation and metropolitan uses.

Saline Water — One way of supplementing the natural water supply is by converting salt and brackish water into potable water. The Federal Government has had a program in operation for several years designed to perfect the saline water conversion process. Construction on the first of five experimental conversion plants was started in Freeport, Texas, last August. The cost of converted water, however, is still too high for general use — $1 per thousand gallons. This is far below what it originally cost to convert saline water, but nearly four times the cost of regular commercial water.

A second method for increasing the natural supply of water is by the modification of weather — that is, making it rain at the right place and at the right time. This is done by "seeding" the clouds.

Water Above Us — Scientists have determined that more than six times as much water flows across the U. S. in the atmosphere than is carried by all the country's major rivers, and that about 99 percent of this is ready to condense under the proper conditions.

In the cloud-seeding process, a substance such as silver iodide either is dropped from aircraft or shot from ground generators. When it hits the clouds it serves as a freezing nucleus for water droplets, which when heavy enough, fall and become rain. The U. S. Weather Bureau conducts this research program, but it admits that several years of research are needed before the process can become a reliable means of increasing the Nation's water supply.

Pollution — The U. S. Public Health Service has said that pollution control in the United States is so far behind the need that 6,000 new municipal sewage treatment plants are needed to catch up. This would involve an average annual expenditure of about $600 million in order to meet this need by 1965.

Sewage usually is treated naturally. That is, when the water, polluted after use, is discharged quality water already there acts as a purifier. This means that the water discharged by one community can be used by a second further down the stream. The larger the industrial or metropolitan area, however, the greater the quantity of low-quality water that is put back into the stream, thus minimizing the effects of natural purification. And some rivers which are the major water supplies for large cities are today traveling cesspools.

Next to the Nation's capital, for example, flows the once-beautiful Potomac River, now unfit even for wading.

Experts agree that effective control of pollution is one of the major tasks that faces the Nation, and that without this control proper water management and development is impossible.

Next: Plans for an adequate water supply.

Inside You And Yours

Dear Doctor

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.

Dear Doctor: When my daughter was a baby, she received X-ray and radium treatments for a tumor in her groin.

Now, 24 years later, she developed high blood pressure and uremia shortly before her first baby was born. The baby lived only five days.

Did the X-ray and radium cause this trouble?

MRS. O. D.

Dear Mrs. D.: Probably not. Your daughter's symptoms probably stem from the living tissue growing in her womb. That's why doctors decided to deliver her baby early.

The high blood pressure, uremia, premature birth and Caesarean section all combined to increase the baby's trouble.

The radiation might explain abnormalities present at birth — but you didn't mention any. Your daughter stands a better than even chance of not having this trouble again.

Too Much Salt?

Dear Doctor: My children eat lots of salt, but my grandchildren hardly touch it. Their father thinks I'm crazy to let my boys eat so much salt, but I think his children should eat more.

Who's right?

MRS. J. P.

Dear Mrs. P.: You're both wrong.

All the children probably fit into that wide range between too much salt and too little. Your salt-free grandchildren eat more salt than you realize — in milk, bread, cheese and so on.

A craving for salt sometimes indicates slow-working glands. Perhaps you'd like to check with your family doctor.

Lump In Neck

Dear Doctor: I have had a lump alongside my Adam's apple for 23 years. Some doctors say it is a cyst, others a tumor and still others a cancer.

Will treatment help my goiter? Or do I need surgery?

Mrs. W. B.

Dear Mrs. B.: All sorts of lumps turn up in the neck. Did these doctors all agree that yours was a goiter?

Lumpy leftovers from old goiters often change into cancer after many years. Most doctors agree that these lumps should come out.

Question Of The Week

Q.: What is your opinion about pulling out unwanted hairs with tweezers?

A.: It hurts; and doesn't help any more than the ordinary razor or depilatory.

Ask your doctor about electrolysis which removes roots as well as hairs.

Veterans Guide

Q—I went on VA's pension roll this year, under the new system effective July 1, 1960, and I understand I will receive an income questionnaire soon, which also will ask about my net worth. Will you explain this term for me, please?

A—Net worth for VA pension purposes is the market value of all the property you own except your home and personal belongings necessary for your day-to-day living, such as your automobile, clothing, and the like—anything necessary for your day-to-day living.

Q. Is a disabled veteran taking rehabilitation training allowed time off for days when he can't be in school or on the job?

A. Yes, the law allows such time off. However, trainees must report their classroom or other absences, using the special Certification of Training form for that purpose, and wherever possible, permission to be absent must be requested and approved.

Q—I understand that by a new law a World War II veteran now has until July 25, 1962, in which to file an application for a GI loan. Just what steps toward getting a loan have to be taken by that date?

A—By that date, a lender must at least have agreed to make the loan and must have requested VA's approval. The new law places no limitation on the time needed to complete the deal, once your lender has agreed and asked for VA's approval.

South Wayne PTA Cites Vet N'fld. Scoutmaster

NEWFOUNDLAND — A life membership honoring Richard Mclain, who has served as scoutmaster of Troop 129, Boy Scouts, for nearly 30 years, was approved by Southern Wayne Joint School Parent Teacher Association during the business meeting at the school. Carroll Fetherman presided.

A budget totaling $430 was accepted as proposed for the 1960-61 school term. Mrs. Robert Rochfort, chairman of the Penny Dinner, reported a profit exceeding $200 received from the dinner.

There was a discussion of the PTA program booklet published this year for the second time in the history of the organization. Mr. Fetherman thanked those who made this informative booklet possible.

It was announced that Mrs. Evelyn Haldaman, of Promised Land, and Mrs. Jacqueline Croft, of Greentown, will represent the PTA at the December 19 meeting of the school board. Mrs. Richard Weiland, Mrs. Haldaman and Robert Madsen volunteered to attend the January 16 meeting of the board.

Library Dates

It was reported that the school library will be open for the use of the adults of the community and the surrounding area from 7 to 8:15 p.m. on the nights that the PTA meets. Mrs. Kathrine Miller is advisor of the library Club, which will be in charge of this service activity.

The senior class was awarded the classroom award for having the highest percentage of parents and teachers present for the meeting.

Donation

There was a discussion of the annual May Day festivities at the school. Leland Cramer, supervising principal, reported that the prom will be held as usual this year, including the crowning of the May Queen and King. However, many of the parents expressed the wish that the afternoon crowning of the king and queen, with the program in which the whole school participated, be again planned.

A donation of $15 to the Boy Scouts of America was approved by the membership.

Devotions were led by the Rev. Dr. Frederick G. Fulmer, retired Moravian pastor.

Speaker of the evening was Dr. Frank Sills, director of physical education at East Stroudsburg State College. His topic was Physical Education in the School and in the Home," and he stressed physical fitness at all times.

The next PTA meeting will be held on January 30, when the speakers will be John Tobey, Wayne County supervisor of special education, and Mrs. Marion Gilpin, who instructs the ungraded class at SWJS. Their topic will be "Special Education." Members should note that the meeting for January is scheduled for Monday instead of the usual Tuesday evening, in order to fit into Mr. Tobey's schedule.

Business Failures Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Business failures in the week ended Dec. 8 climbed to a new post-war high of 360, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. reported Tuesday. Up from 290 in the preceding week, the casualties considerably exceeded the 248 of the comparable week a year ago and were some 21 per cent above pre-war 1939 when the tool was 297.

Here's The Answer

By Andrew C. Lang

Question: I've been trying for days now — on and off — to remove a key that broke off in one of the locks on a door in our house. It's a mortise-type lock and it appears as though it would be an awful nuisance to take it out of the door insert to get at the key. Is there some other way to get the key out?

Answer: Since you have presumably tried all the common pushing, picking and pulling ways, without success, you'll just have to remove the lock, nuisance or not. First take off the door knobs, usually held in place with a small set screw that pushes against the spindle. Remove the lock itself from the mortise in the door by taking out the screws in the front of it and then prying it out of position by inserting an old screwdriver in the keyhole. Do this prying carefully so as not to damage the lock. You will find a metal plate on one side of the lock. Unscrew this plate gently, because rough handling will unscramble the parts inside the lock. When the metal plate is removed, take out the broken key. Replace the metal plate and then try out the lock with a new key. Thus, if the lock is defective, it will not be necessary to go through the whole procedure a second time to put in a new lock. If the old lock still works, replace it in the reverse order in which you removed the various parts.

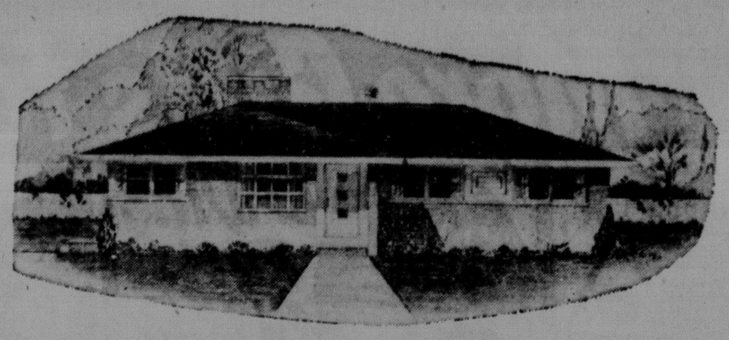
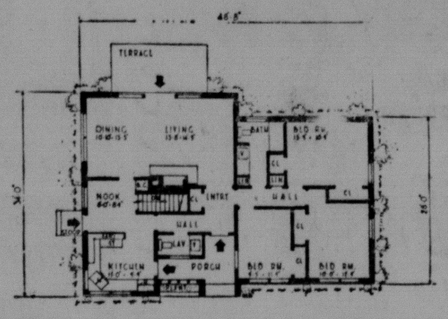
Parade of Homes





DESIGN NO. H-343
House: 1,422 sq.ft.
28,113 cu.ft.

Pleasantly Arranged Interior Is Keynote Of This House

A PLEASANTLY arranged interior, providing excellent traffic circulation, is the keypoint in this home design.

Entrance has direct access to either kitchen or center hall. A powder room is located here accomodating guests as well as those in work area. Arrangement of coat closet in hall is well planned as it is not directly at front door and thus provides ample walking room for those entering.

A colorful planting box is placed near entrance to kitchen. For plenty of sunlight, the kitchen has been planned with corner windows above the sink. Ample counter space is shown. There is a separate breakfast nook with service entrance and also easy access to basement stairs. Notice, too, the nook is very convenient to dining area.

Instead of facing the front of the home, the combined living-dining area is planned to the rear for additional privacy and a view of the yard. Another feature is shown in the doors opening off living area to a lounging terrace.

This entire area will be appreciated during warm summer days and especially by those who enjoy entertaining. A fireplace serves both living and dining rooms.

The opposite wing of the home, separated again for privacy, shows three good sized bedrooms and a bath. There are plenty of windows and no tiny closets, as you can see. The bath contains both vanity and linen closet. There is a second linen closet in hall.

Exterior construction material is of brick veneer. Front door is well protected by wide roof overhang.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. The plan contains 1,422 square feet and 28,133 cubic feet. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic feet in your area.

"Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specification Guide for Design H-343 may be purchased for $9.75 for one set; two for 18.25; three for 26.25; or four for 33.75. A Toy Box On Wheels Is Ideal Gift

IF IT'S happened once, it's probably happened a dozen times to all of us who shop for Children's gifts. We trot home with a novelty that wins our adult hearts. The child looks at it once, plays with it several times, then relegates it to a corner in preference to some beat-up toy.

A child likes certain things for very adult reasons. Give him a box and he imagines it's a treasure chest. Put a lock on it and he's sure to stow away all his precious possessions with much love and care. A child likes to put things away, providing there's some romantic attachment.

The toy chest on wheels has proven this point in many, many instances. If you're interested in bringing a spark of joy to some youngster's eyes, build this chest. Complete details are provided in the pattern offered. It tells what materials to buy and where and when each is used.

The outlines of the lamb and flower can be traced directly from the pattern onto the wood, thus insuring a professional job. Best of all, no special tools or skill are required.

Send 25 cents in coin, check or money order (no stamps please) for Toy Chest, Pattern No. 65. Send additional 35 cents for 64 page catalog illustrating over 300 other Build It Yourself projects to The Daily Record, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, New York.

WIRE SOLDER USEFUL

WHEN cutting duplicates of odd shaped objects, soft wire solder comes in handy. The pliable wire can be pressed over the object, conforming to the shape, and may then be used as a template for tracing.

HEAT COLD VARNISH

VARNISH flows more smoothly when warmed. If work is being done out-of-doors or in unheated rooms, place can of varnish in pan of hot water. Use hot plate to keep it warm, or replace hot water.

Now you can have a kitchen custom-designed especially for you!

Either style can be yours with a Wood-Mode Kitchen. In addition, you have a choice of three different woods, 12 decorator colors and 10 natural wood finishes, plus built-in units and many work-saving accessories.

Holiday Doors Sparkle With Christmas Decor

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeatures Writer

ONE American Christmas custom that has grown in recent years is door decoration.

Here are some ideas to help the neophyte in his quest for something different on his holiday door.

Religious symbols. Remove the front of a bird's house, spray it with silver or gold paint to make a small shrine. Place a Christmas figurine in its niche. Attach it to the door with picture hangers. Decorate with pine sprays. You may use a small creche in the same fashion, anchoring the figurines to the bottom of the niche. Special effects may be obtained when light is used with these little shrines.

A festive wreath of aluminum foil and cookies. This has special appeal if there are to be children visitors. Crumple an 18-inch width of foil to about 6 inches, shape it into a circle of about 18-20 inches in diameter while crushing it. When wreath size is established, lap the foil over the wreath, continue adding it until the wreath has enough body for cookies. Cut a long thin rope of foil wrap into 5 inch pieces, 1/8 inch in diameter. Shape into loops. Just after dropping cooky dough on baking sheet insert foil loop ends into cookies, a bit off center. Secure cookies to the wreath with colorful ribbons.

A door basket. Fill it with greens, Christmas ornaments, holly. Outline the door with pine swag, available at most florists, or make it yourself with pine branches.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

OVER THE YEARS we have written a number of stories about various acoustical materials and proper methods of installation to insure satisfactory sound absorption. But we have bypassed any discussion of hardboard in this connection because its dense surface hardly lends itself to the deadening of sound.

Now, however, tests have shown that it is possible to take advantage of the high-impact resistance of hardboard and at the same time reduce the noise in your home. This is done by the use of the perforated type of hardboard backed by sound-absorbing batts. The sound enters the perforations and is smothered by the insulation.

Panels of perforated board are already popular for hanging tools, displaying kitchen utensils, supporting shelves and the like. Special metal clips are available which fit snugly into the perforations and enable items of various sizes and shapes to be hung.

These panels can be purchased in the standard 4 by 8 (feet) size or smaller sheets. They also can be bought flat and smooth or flat with various grooved patterns or corrugated. For acoustical purposes, the hardboard is usually backed by a 2-inch layer of fiber glass, rock wool or wood fiber insulation. It may be put up directly over studs which are properly aligned or, in the case of existing walls, over furring strips. Similarly, it can be applied to ceilings.

One of the big features of hardboard is the fact that its hard surface resists dents and thus is of special advantage in rooms where the walls might otherwise be damaged by children's toys, furniture, etc. Its surface can be cleaned easily.

In some installations, the light and dark brownish tones of hardboard are considered satisfactory and are not painted. In kitchens or other areas where a particular decor is important, the hardboard is painted. Flat paints, semi-gloss or gloss enamels may be used. Rollers are generally preferable when using the perforated type of hardboard, since they have less tendency to clog the holes.

Because hardboard is a product of wood chemistry, it may be worked, cut or drilled like wood. It does not chip or splinter and has no grain to rise and mar the appearance

Pennsylvania Buck Season Scheduled To End Dec. 16

PENNSYLVANIA'S 1960 antlered deer season, or buck season as it is more commonly known, will end Friday at 5 p.m. Eastern Standard Time and will be followed by a one day antlerless deer season, Saturday, Monroe County Game Protector John Doebling announced last night.

The season will open Saturday at 7 a.m. and close at 5 p.m. eastern standard time.

Any person who has not killed a deer this year and who owns the required antlerless deer license may legally hunt this game animal, however; he must seek an antlerless deer in the county for which the license was issued.

License holders who kill an antlerless deer are required to fill out and submit a big game kill report, preferably on the card that accompanies the hunting license.

Decision On

The judging committee composed of distinguished senior citizens of this community will base their decision on: Contribution to the general community welfare during the year, leadership ability, personal or business progress.

Roberts stated that presentation of the award will be made at the DSA-Bosses Night Banquet at the conclusion of Jaycee week which will be observed locally from Feb. 6th through 13th.

Assisting Roberts on this committee is Jack Spies, vice-chairman; Scott Straub, Bruce Miller, Ted Stevens and Howard Popkin.

Dear Abby

Age Of Unreason

Dear Abby: What causes a man to leave his wife, children, home and church for another woman?

I was married to a man for 21 years. I loved him and tried my best to be a good wife and mother. I was happy and thought he was, too.

Out of the blue he told me he was in love with another woman. He packed up and moved out. He left me six months pregnant with a 14-month-old baby and four older children. The woman he left me for is 12 years younger than I am. He met her at work. She knows our religion doesn't allow divorce and remarriage but she doesn't care. My husband is begging me for a divorce. My heart says no. My friends say yes. I'm all mixed up.

BROKEN-HEARTED

Dear Broken-Hearted: The answer to your first question, "What causes a man to leave his wife, children, home and church for another woman," is "Temporary insanity." (This sometimes passes for "love.") Don't make any decisions while you are in an emotional tumult. Your husband may find his way back to the world of reality soon. In the meantime, tell him "No divorce!"

Dear Abby: When a hostess has a party and some guests bring other people, and a card table has to be set up in addition to the big dining room table which seats 14, WHO should sit at the card table? My husband says the "extra guests" who were not invited by us. I say my husband should sit at the big table and I should sit at the little one.

NOISE AT OUR HOUSE

Dear Noise: In the case of TWO tables — the host should sit at one, and the hostess at the other.

Dear Abby: A boy wrote in telling you he thought it was a "sin" for his mother, who was 44, to have a baby. Well, I don't think it's a "sin," but I have news for you — I doubt if any woman in her right mind would go in for it, at age 44, on purpose.

I am 42 and have a new grandchild. My daughter went on a trip and I am caring for her baby. I've been up for three days and three nights and I can't see straight — but the baby is still going strong. Women past 40 should leave well enough alone, and let the younger ones increase the population I have no sympathy for them, and neither will their husbands They'll sleep through it all.

Green Thumb

Philodendron Answers Given By Green Thumber

THIS IS the time of year we receive stacks of letters asking why philodendron leaves turn brown at the tips and edges. Browning is due to dry soil, pot-bound, low humidity, waterlogging, or possibly an excess of plant food salts in the soil.

In areas where water is highly alkaline, rain water, distilled water, or water you get from defrosting the refrigerators are ideal for watering. Philodendron soils should be moist, open and well-drained. To get this you should use one-third sand, one-third loam, and one-third peat, to which is added charcoal, vermiculite, perlite or well-rotted compost. If the mix is not highly organic, chances are the leaves will get smaller and smaller.

Leaves that continue to get smaller and smaller, or which tend to return to juvenile form (not splitting) may be due to a separation of the organic matter from the soil, leaving a hard, cement-like condition which the roots cannot penetrate readily. Such soils are hard to keep moist and the water merely runs down the inside of the pot, leaving the core dry.

Another Reason

Another reason for smaller leaf size, or "plain leaves" may be a lack of light, or possibly simple starvation. Philodendrons are rather heavy feeders and should be fed once every four weeks, using a liquid plant food. I water and feed outs by pouring a liquid food over the totem pole on which the wine is growing.

Excessive yellowing and leaf drop means too much water around the roots, shutting off oxygen. Sufficient water is probably the most essential factor in keeping philodendrons growing evenly, with large uniform leaves.

Light is probably the next most important factor. Small leaves and long leggy vines mean a light shortage. Monstera, sold under the name of Philodendron pertusum, needs more light than true philodendrons, or the leaves will not split as profusely as they should. This is the famous Swiss Cheese plant you see in offices and florists shops.

Hotbed Notes

I'm pleased to know so many gardeners are making hotbeds as described in my Hotbed bulletin. A word of caution to those who have a hotbed: move the hotbed or coldframe to new spots, to avoid weeds, insects and fungus disease problems. Doing this will eliminate the chore of trying to sterilize the soil. It's a mistake to make your coldframes permanent, unless you use them to harden off plants growing in small boxes or containers.

Question Box

Question of the Week—Mrs. T. R. of Easton: "Three years ago I planted a Bittersweet vine and although the plant has made lots of growth it has had no berries. Why?"

Bittersweet has male and female vines. Usually only the fruiting or female plants produce berries, although sometimes a few male flowers will develop on a female plant and produce enough pollen for fruit.

If you plant another vine chances are there'll be berries within a couple years. In nature, the only way to tell a fruiting (female) vine is to study the floral parts (use a magnifying glass). The bittersweet, while highly decorative, isn't too ideal as an outdoor house vine, unless you can keep it within bounds.

I've seen shoots sneaking under the shingles or clapboards of a house. Along fences, walls, on dead trees or on stumps of old fruit trees, the bittersweet is ideal.

If you're looking for a good vine, I think the Queen of them all is the Clematis. There are over 300 species of plants in this family, so you don't have to select the common large flowering Jackmani, with violetpurple flowers. Here are other vines to consider: Dutchman's Pipe, Wisteria, Boston Ivy, Trumpet vine, English Ivy and Silverlace Vine. All are hardy for outdoor use.

D. E. F. of Stroudsburg: "Please tell me if evergreens normally change colors. Ours was a nice deep green but now it's sort of a purplish bronze and I'm afraid it's dying."

Many evergreens take on a purple or bronzy tint during late fall and winter, so it's nothing to worry about. Just as soon as the warm days of spring roll around the foliage will green up again. Evergreens are not always green. Narrow leaved foliage varies in color, depending on the variety. Colors range from light green, midgreen to dark green. Some are gray green, yellow green and blue green.

Location has something to do with color. For example, the Canadian hemlock usually is greener if grown in a semi-shady spot.

When evergreens turn brown on one side (facing strong winds) this change in color is due to a lack of water and is called "windburning" or desiccation. Hot dry winds, salt sprays from roads and sun are factors which cause browning.

Broadleaved evergreens (rhododendrons, for example) often turn brown during fall and winter as a result of dry soil, too much sun or drying winds. They may turn yellowish in winter, greening up after a few warm days. Keep your evergreens watered, right up until the ground freezes hard. Don't count on snow and rain to fill the needs of newly planted specimens.

The governor was en route to Erie from New York, where he was to address an Israel bond rally.

Sponsored By The Stroudsburg Businessmen's Association

Just Between Us — —

The reason for the extra-ordinary amount of traffic on Brown St., in East Stroudsburg yesterday afternoon is easily explained. The Hospital Aux. was meeting at Warrick's.

They had a wonderful attendance — but there was an unusual phenomenon — husbands! Whether because they had a gallant regard for the tender sensibilities of their wives or an ungallant doubt as to their competence in taking care of the family car, the husbands were all doubling as chauffeurs for the afternoon.

There were a number of other unusual circumstances following in the wake of the storm. The Leies' children from Swiftwater went to New York City and got snowbound; while at home where you might expect even more weather, everybody was going about his business as usual.

Going about their business as usual — but in far from usual attire — were the shoppers in from the hills who gave the town the friendly, informal look of an Alaskan trading post.

Personally, I'm all for it — long underwear, parkas and all. While the only time I can read books about the Far North in any degree of comfort is in July, I agree with their contention that we suffer more from the cold in the midst of a civilization geared for comfort than they do under more primitive conditions.

If the difference in temperature between the indoors and outdoors is slight you go around happily bundled up all the time. It's when you have to dress for the tropical warmth of a club meeting room and then have to go through arctic temperatures to get there that you suffer.

Well, maybe you don't but I do. I even got chills reading that those Cub Scouts who won the contest had as their prize an overnight camping trip. My idea of a good prize would be that I didn't have to go.

'Chris' Was For Christmas, Saddened For Bushkill Kids

"Chris" was short for Christmas and that's when three youngsters on the Bushkill Falls Road received a thorough-bred Sheltie collie last year from their grandparents to replace another family pet, who had died.

This year — well, let the children tell their own story:

"Just a year ago,
All was happy and gay,
A dear little puppy
Came to Our house to stay
To Replace our pal Taffy
Whom God took away
Chris was not just a dog of any old sort
He was a thorough-bred right to the heart
If his bark, wiggle and whine
Could have come out in rhyme,
He would have told us he loved us
Just as we did him, many's the time.

Now he is dead, due to some inhuman thoughtless person, who was quicker on the trigger than on thought or reason. Chris was killed almost in sight of his home and the kids who held him so dear.

Now as this Christmas approaches and day turns to night
Instead of asleep under our bed when out goes the light,
Our Chris will be sleeping 'neath Mother Nature's blanket of white." "P.S. To the one who did this dastardly thing, we hope before you try it again, you will try to recall being a kid yourself and have this happen to you, not just any old time, but at Christmas especially."

Barnyard Centerpiece For Fifth Birthday

The Wyckoff Shopper
"the friendly store"
A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

THIS IS CHRISTMAS —

That is the title of a song. It was also the theme of a very splendid concert presented by the increasingly-popular Pocono Community Chorus last Saturday evening at Stroud Union auditorium under the direction of Norma Treible. And it is the thought beating away in unrelenting persistence at the forefront of most brains, at the moment.

To song-writers, Christmas is a time of reverence and joy . . . of mistletoe and sleighbells . . . carols in the night . . . gifts beneath a tree. All of these things were commemorated in glorious jubilation by the chorus. When you work in a store, these things are sometimes submerged in thoughts of the weary shoppers and equally weary salespeople . . . and the Christmas picture takes on that added dimension in which are the stepped-on toes . . . the frazzled nerves . . . the sobbing children and their sometimes impatient parents . . . the empty purses and the strain of trying to satisfy everyone's dream when you know perfectly well it's a losing battle.

Because it is easy to lose sight of the real meaning of Christmas in the feverish scramble of pre-Christmas activity, I am grateful for having heard the concert sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club in benefit of the welfare fund. Mrs. Treible has brought the chorus a long, long way, and is blessed, I think, with a great many unusually fine voices—voices just as excellent solo as blended. Her musicianship is splendid, and her chorus is obviously very carefully and painstakingly prepared. What's more, this is one chorus you can understand. I'm not sure how much of this can be attributed to acoustics at the school, but I do know I've suffered through many a program in a variety of places ,and not understood a word that was being sung onstage. Saturday evening was a blessed relief from such mumo jumbo.

Particularly do I wish to congratulate Lynn Werkheiser of our Wyckoff credit office for her very fine work as the chorus accompanist. Before Lynn it was the former Ann Meredith, Fran's daughter, who held this position, proving that very little goes on in the county without Wyckoff employees participating. Alberta Yutz, one of the soloists, is a former Wyckoff employee, as is Mary Beatty. Mary is part of a mother-daughter duo in the chorus. The attractive blond center stage was Marie Bean of our Wyckoff alteration room. Come to think of it, the chorus is quite a family affair . . . at least one married couple, Ralph and Grace Potts, are also among the members. I was interested too, in seeing my former teacher, Dorothy Lisette in the audience, and know she must have been very proud of both Alberta and Jeanne Gurr, two of her students, who were among the show's stars. Another former Wyckoff employee, it occurs to me, was the narrator—Howard Atwell, whose speaking voice contributed as much to the middle part of the program as did the voices of the singers.

One more thing—I should like to mention the beauty of the stage with its silver tree and large, apple-sized red ornaments . . . a solid, dazzling mass of red and silver, a truly festive color combination for Christmas that was particularly exciting when repeated in the red party punch . . . the corally-red dresses of the girls . . . and the pretty little shoes, dyed by Blanche Mackey in our Frigidaire washer to match the gowns. It was all thrilling from the first note to the last, when Santa appeared with three adorable, wide-eyed youngsters who were much at home on stage and busied themselves opening packages.

This is Christmas . . . ribbons and fancy papers . . . tinkling cymbals and tinkling glasses . . . mysterious winks behind the backs of the children . . . delightful make-believe in their presence. And in all phases of Christmas, Wyckoff's plays an active part from the first card to the last bill. Shop Wyckoff's today!

Smart Women Know How To Put Ideas Over

By Anne Heywood

It was Lord Chesterfield who said, "Women are to be talked to as below men and above children."

Apparently, according to a letter from one of my readers, there are still men in the business world who do not realize that this bit of 18th-century philosophy is outdated.

Ignores Her

"My boss is always ready to listen to efficiency suggestions — even some pretty silly ones—from any and every male in the office," complains my reader. "But when I attempt to contribute one, he looks at me as if I were a kitchen maid who just walked in and sat down with the invited guests!"

Psychologists could suggest a variety of reasons why employers of this type act the way they do toward advice from the distaff side. But whether they resented their mothers in childhood, are currently hen pecked by their wives, or whatever, the fact remains that they present a problem to a willing young secretary looking for an opportunity to show what she can do.

Wise Approach

Since it is not the suggestions themselves, but their source, that the boss of our reader resents, it would be wise for "the source" to start taking account of herself.

First, she had better try to de-emphasize her sex as much as possible.

This means she should always be careful to dress unostentatiously; that she should avoid hair-combing and making-up at her desk; that she should not use the office phone for making or receiving chatty personal phone calls; that she should not abuse the time limit of the coffee loaded with bundles from shopping — in short, she should never, in any way, give the boss the opportunity to grumble to himself: "Just like a woman!"

Any smart secretary who puts her mind to it can think of a million stereotyped feminine foibles to add to this list of don'ts.

Finally, our ambitious young gal should be certain that the suggestions she makes are as good as she thinks they are.

A friend of mine used to say

Resentment Of His Mother Causes Him To Dislike Women.

of a certain type of suggestion-maker:

"It's not so much that she has something to say as that she is filled with the desire to say something."

Beware Of This

It would be wise not to fall into this category.

As a matter of fact, just quietly applying the efficiency measures to one's own job, so that the boss may be confronted with results rather than talk, often works wonders in getting him to seek out your opinions in the future.

Net Income Vs. Taxes

By William A. Doyle

Q. I have been told that the American Telephone & Telegraph system paid over $1.5 billion dollars in Federal, state and local taxes during 1959. That seems like a fantastically high amount. Is this true? If so, how does it compare with the total dividends paid to AT&T stockholders for that year?

A. Yes, it's true. The annual report of the Bell System (AT&T and its principal telephone subsidiaries consolidated) shows total operating taxes of $1,690,289,000. The Federal corporate income tax took $1,054,726,000 of the total bite. The rest went out in state, local and social security taxes.

After paying all taxes and other expenses, net income for all AT&T stock came to $1,113,152,000. That brought the earnings on each outstanding share of AT&T stock to $5.22.

During the year, dividends of $3.30 a share were paid to stockholders for a total of $688,327,000.

So, AT&T paid out well over twice as much in taxes during the year as it paid in dividends to its stockholders. And the tax bill was some 50 percent higher than net income.

Figures such as these certainly prove that corporations and their stockholders carry a huge tax load.

Q. About two months ago, you stated that AT&T stock is still selling at a lower price than it did before the 1929 stock market crash. Isn't it true that if a persons had taken advantage of all the AT&T "rights offerings," he would be way ahead?

A. Since 1929, AT&T has made 11 rights offerings to its stockholders. Twice AT&T stockholders have had the right to buy additional stock. Nine times they have had the right to buy convertible debentures. These debentures could be swapped for stock.

If an AT&T stockholder exercised all his rights and converted his debentures, the AT&T stocks he now owns would have a higher market value than his original number of shares would have had before the '29 crash.

All the rights offerings were made at prices that gave the stockholders a break. That made the rights valuable. The rights were traded on the stock market, just as stocks are traded.

Many people, especially the smaller stockholders, sold the rights. For them, the market value of the stocks they hold is still below the high prices AT&T hit in 1929.

In that boom (and later bust) year, AT&T soared to $310.25 a share. It was split three for one in 1959. So, it now takes three shares of the split stock to equal one share of the old stock. The new stock would have to trade at over $103 a share to pass its 1929 high.

It would be almost impossible to tell exactly how much better off a person who exercised all his rights would be, in comparison to someone who sold his rights.

The value of the rights went up and down in the market, just as the value of the stock has done.

3rd Period Famine

Nazareth Hands E-Burg 63-30 Road Thumping

NAZARETH—Nazareth's Blue Eagles staged a 22 point third period Tuesday night to bury East Stroudsburg High School 63-30.

It was the second loss in a row for the winless Cavaliers, who managed only 24 points in their opener.

The Eagles' man-to-man defense was so effective that the Cavaliers did not get off a field goal attempt for five and a half minutes of the third period and scored only six points in that quarter.

No Double Figures

None of the Cavaliers reached double-figures. Brian Farris led the East Stroudsburg scorers with nine points. Jack Van Horn was next in line with seven Glenn Kane added six, Jack Fellman, four and Earl Palmer and Don Wescott, two each, to account for the 30 points.

Hal Toth was high for the Eagles with 16 and Ken Butz had 12. Nazareth used 10 players and all but one scored.

The Cavaliers trailed 11-4 at the end of the first frame but were behind by only 11 at the half, 24-13.

But Nazareth scored on the tap to start the second half, when Larry Roth hit a lay-up off a jump ball play.

Out of Reach

Field goals by Ron Gold, Bob Freeman, two foul shots and another bucket by Freeman pushed the Eagles out of reach, 35-13.

Farris broke the Cavalier ice with two free throws, mid-way through the period. Ninety seconds later he added a field goal and after Toth hit for five straight points, Farris ended his and the Cavaliers' scoring in the frame, with another field goal.

Roth, Toth and Butz pumped in three quick baskets in the final minutes and at the end of three quarters Nazareth was in front 46-19.

2 NBA Prospects Here With Kids Today

HAL (KING) Lear, who has reportedly been offered a $12,000 a year contract to play with the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Assn., leads the Harlem Komedy Kids against the Pocono All-Star Coaches tonight at 8:30 at East Stroudsburg State College.

The Knicks' offer supposedly came after Lear scored 48 points against Wilkes-Barre Sunday, to pace the Easton Madisons to a 139-132 Eastern League victory. Lear plays for the Madisons on the weekends and the Komedy Kids during the week.

Lear, the leading scorer in the Eastern League with a 42 point plus average a game, showed up late for Sunday's game and did not have time to warm-up. He had only four points in the first period and had collected 16 by halftime. A phenomenal 32-point second half gave Lear his 48 points. He has been held below 40 points only once this year, a 30 point performance at Baltimore Friday.

Scott Considered

Lear is not the only member of the Komedy Kids who may be NBA bound. Ray (Chink) Scott, who also plays with the Allentown Jets, is being sought by several big league clubs.

Scott, 6-10, played at Portland University, but will not be eligible for the NBA until his class graduates this June. He is considered a top draft choice.

Despite his size, Scott is a good outside performer with an excellent two-hand set shot and drive. He is the eighth ranking scorer in the Eastern League and in his last game against Hazleton, scored 32 points.

Two other Eastern League players also appear with the Kids Jay Norman of Easton and Sonny Hill of Sunbury.

Leading Rebounder

Norman played at Temple University with Guy Rodgers of the Philadelphia Warriors. Norman was the Owls' leading rebounder and is also one of the top boardmen in the EBL.

Against Maryland in the Assn. Regional Tournament National Collegiate Athletic at Charlotte, N.C., in 1958, Norman collected 30 rebounds, even though the Terrapins had two men who were four inches taller than Norman.

Hill, a former Ohio State performer, is only 5-9, but he can "dunk" a basketball and can out-rebound opponents a foot taller.

The Kids are not only fine basketball players, but also top court comedians.

Laugh Workers

Frank Washington, a nine-year veteran of the Harlem Globetrotters and Bozo (The Clown) Walker, of the Broadway Clowns, handle most of the laugh work.

Washington starred with the great Globetrotter teams that featured Goose Tatum, Josh Grider, Marques Haynes and Rookie Brown. Washington appeared in two Columbia motion pictures with the Globetrotters.

The Kids comedy routines include slow motion dribbling, football and baseball plays and trick foul shooting.

Board Help

Bob Johnson, a 6-6 former Kansas State star, helps the Kids on the boards and is also a double-figure scorer.

The Coaches team is made up of Bob Wert, Walt Bjorn, Wilmont Smith and Dick Merring of Stroud Union; Doug Schoonover, East Stroudsburg; Dale Baker, Bangor; John Melhem, Pius X; John Bush, Tobyhanna; Harry Werkheiser, Pocono; Al Shollenberger, Barrett and Bill Frear, Pleasant Valley.

Ticket windows open at 7:30 an hour before game time.

Late Rally Wins 60-57 For Barrett

HAWLEY—Barrett High School, behind for three periods, poured in 21 points in the last period, to defeat Hawley 60-57 last night.

A. J. Bittner led the winners with 19 and Tom Young added 18. Norb Ryan was the only other Barrett player to hit double figures. He had 13.

Hawley connected on one more field goal than the winners, 24-23 but could manage only 12 trips to the free throw line. The losers hit nine free throws.

Barrett had a fair free throw night but it had 22 attempts, which made the difference. The winners made good on 14 charity tosses.

Barrett trailed 15-12 after one period and after playing Hawley on even terms in the second frame fell four more points off the pace at the end of three periods and was behind by seven.

But Al Shollenberger's team limited Hawley to only 11 points in the last eight minutes and collected 21 itself, to seal the win.

Meet Oregon Saturday

Penn State Forced Indoors For Liberty Bowl Practice

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—A bitter cold wave following on the heels of a heavy snow storm has put the chill on the Penn State football team's training sessions for the Liberty Bowl Saturday in Philadelphia.

Twelve inches of snow over the weekend forced Coach Rip Engle to hold indoor practice Monday.

Despite temperatures in the teens Engle called outdoor practices Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday before the team leaves for Philadelphia.

"We must get out because we are going to have to handle the ball in cold weather," said Engle.

Reports from the training camp of Penn State's Liberty Bowl opponent, Oregon, indicates the Webfoots have been training in moderate temperatures.

But, as Engle pointed out, the Nittany Lions have enjoyed good weather most of the season.

"A cold day Saturday would affect us as much as it would them," he added.

Clearing Weather

Bud Dudley, a promoter of the game, said in Philadelphia recently that advance weather forecasts indicate Saturday in Philadelphia will be clear with temperatures around 40 degrees.

Sources close to Penn State privately indicate they hope Dudley is right, since a warming trend would soften the turf in the huge Philadelphia Stadium and perhaps affect the vaunted speed of the Webfoots.

Engle, meanwhile, is reported preparing some special plays for the game.

Of course, the grey-haired veteran is keeping his own counsel on this angle, but it will be remembered a special play he installed especially for last year's first Liberty Bowl gave Penn State a 7-0 victory over Alabama.

The Lions lined up on the Alabama 17 as if to try for a field goal. Quarterback Galen Hall, in a kneeling position, took the snap, quickly stood up and threw a flat pass to halfback Roger Kochman who raced over for the TD.

Philadelphia Stadium, where the game will be played, is under as much as five feet of drifted snow. But Robert W. Crawford, recreation commissioner for Philadelphia, said the city will clear the snow from the stadium in time for the game.

Stags Blast Bears

NEWFOUNDLAND—Southern Wayne High School put five men in double-figures as it smacked Pleasant Valley 90-48 Tuesday night.

The Stags started slowly, with only a 14 point output in the first period and it looked as if the Bears might make a game of it. But a 25 point second period and a 33 point third frame killed any Pleasant Valley hopes.

Bob Strupcewski led the winners with 24 points while Ed Romascavage collected 23 for the Bears.

Four In Doubles

Tob Duty, Bill Simon, Jordan Deskus and Donnie Barnes also hit double figures for the Stags.

Southern Wayne poured in 35 field goals and 20 of 36 foul shots, while Pleasant Valley collected 16 of each variety.

The Little Stags won the junior varsity game 48-17.

Floyd Gets Neil Award

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson, the first man to regain the world heavyweight boxing championship, Tuesday was named winner of the Edward J. Neil memorial plaque as "fighter of the year" for 1960. The award was made by the Boxing Writers' Association.

It was the second time that Patterson, 25-year-old New Yorker, has been voted the Neil award, named in memory of The Associated Press sports writer who was killed in 1938 while covering the Spanish Civil War. The only other double winner was Carmen Basilio, in 1955 and 1957.

Patterson was the youngest to win the heavyweight crown when he knocked out Archie Moore in the fifth round, Nov. 30, 1956. That made him the Neil winner for that year.

New Clubs Start Stocking Session

BOSTON (AP)—Officials of the new Washington and Los Angeles clubs Tuesday went over final plans before a history-making session in which they will select many of the players who will perform for the two new American League teams.

Wednesday, they meet with League President Joe Cronin and draft 28 players each from a pool provided by the eight existing teams.

The meeting originally was scheduled Tuesday, but was postponed when a blizzard halted all air travel in and out of Boston.

Los Angeles General Manager Fred Haney and Bill Rigney — named as the Angels' field boss only Monday — arrived Tuesday and, along with Washington General Manager Eddie Doherty paid a visit to American League headquarters.

Social Visit

"It was just a social visit," league publicist Joe McKenney said. "We didn't discuss any business. They just dropped by to visit with Cronin."

Los Angeles President Bobby Reynolds and Board Chairman Gene Autry; Washington owner Brig. Gen. Elwood (Pete) Quesada, and Washington Manager Mickey Vernon were due later Tuesday.

They will gather with Cronin and his staff in a closed-door session to pick their players—at a price of $75,000 each — from the 120-man pool.

Each of the eight existing clubs have placed 15 players from their 40-man rosters in the pool. A list of those players has not been announced officially.

Detective Ambushed

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A private detective was embushed in a midtown radio and television store and killed last night by someone who left no clues for police to follow. The detective's partner was wounded seriously.

Both men, employes of the Holmes Protective Agency, were shot in the head by the gunman, who smashed a hole in the locked front door and fled.

William Mitchell, 57, died shortly after admittance to Jefferson Hospital.

The other detective, suffering a wound of the left temple, was James Kilroy, 38.

Police said guns carried by Mitchell and Kilroy were still in their holsters, indicating the two men were surprised when they entered the darkened store to investigate an alarm that had sounded in the detective agency's downtown office, but not in the store.

Police said the culprit apparently broke into the store from the roof, bent on burglary. Found there, partly buried in the snow, was a tape recorder and hi-fi parts.

Lehigh Valley Railroad Hits Government Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Lehigh Valley Railroad claimed Tuesday that if the government compels it to keep providing passenger service a "complete breakdown of carrier rail service" will almost certainly follow.

This, the road said in a brief filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, would mean "serious damage to the public good and loss to thousands of security holders."

Lehigh's brief was written in support of a request to drop all of its remaining passenger operations on grounds that this service is running up big deficits.

The east-west service Lehigh wants to drop consists of:

Six Days

One train six days a week to and from Lehighton, Pa., and New York City.

Opposition to Lehigh ending this remaining passenger service was voiced in a brief filed with the ICC on behalf of the Cooperative Legislative Committee of the Railroad Brotherhoods in the state of Pennsylvania.

This brief claimed that Lehigh Valley passenger service is vitally needed. Moreover, the brotherhoods challenged the computations used by Lehigh in its claim that passenger service is causing great losses.

Pennsylvania Senator JFK Guest

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., was a luncheon guest of President-elect John F. Kennedy Tuesday.

When Clark arrived at Kennedy's Georgetown home, he declined to tell newsmen what matters he wanted to discuss with the president-elect.

Asked if he intended to discuss appointments, Clark replied:

"I wouldn't want to tell you. Any comment should come from Sen. Kennedy."

At the request of photographers, Kennedy came out to his front doorstep to shake hands with Clark. A reporter asked Kennedy what he intended to discuss with Clark and Kennedy said, "Well talk about legislation." He didn't amplify.

Clark is an outspoken member of a group of Senate Democrats who describe themselves as liberals. In a challenge which Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., interpreted as aimed at him, Clark recently questioned the right of Democrats to head congressional committees if they did not support Kennedy and are not in sympathy with programs in the Democratic platform. Byrd is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

When Clark left the Kennedy home, he still refused to discuss his conference with the president-elect. But he said in reply to reporters' questions that he saw no reason to change his mind on plans for rule changes in the Senate.

He said that Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., has called a conference of the liberal group for Dec. 30. He said he was hopeful a Democratic conference could be held on Jan. 2—"this I strongly recommend," he added.

Clark also said that he still planned to push bills on medical care, Social Security, minimum wages, housing and civil rights. The senator said he expected "trouble from many sources."
